Letter from the Chair

Hello and welcome to our first Progress Report! We hope you have all been keeping safe, healthy and happy in these strange times we find ourselves in.

For our part we are continuing to plan for an in-person convention but always with a view to how we might make things work in a virtual world. We are watching and learning :-)

We are excited to welcome James Shields and Fionna O'Sullivan as our membership/registration team and Russell Smith as the head of Programme. We have plans to bring you a great convention with liberal sprinklings of whimsy and fun. Watch this space!

As always, thank you for your support. We could not do it without you.

Vanessa May
Chair

ConFusion Guests of Honour

Nik Vincent

Nik Vincent-Abnett began working as a freelance editor, but has published work in a number of mediums, including advertising, training manuals, comics and short stories. She has worked as a ghost writer, and regularly collaborates with her partner, Dan Abnett, writing novels, and working on projects for the games industry. Nik's first solo, independent novel, Savant, was published by Solaris in 2016. She lives and works in Maidstone, Kent, where she cooks and decorates, and throws pots.

Dave Lally

Dave Lally is well known across the whole of UK, Irish and European fandom, and he has been active in the organisation and promotion of fannish events since his first UK Eastercon in 1984. He has run video programmes for Worldcons including The Hague 1990 (Confiction), Glasgow 1995 (Intersection) and 2005 (Interaction), for many of the Eastercons between 1991 – 2005, and for many Octocons, as well. He was chair of the European SF Society from 2006 – 2013, and since 2014, he has been the Membership Officer for the British SF Association. He was also a member of the 2016 Eastercon committee (Mancunicon). He sees conventions as fandom's lifeblood, allowing interaction not just between Guests and fans, but between fans themselves. Outside fandom, Dave worked in financial services, but is now retired. Irish by birth, he now lives in London.

ConFusion Committee

Chair – Vanessa May Vanessa has always insisted the chair did not define her. In this case, she has accepted that it does. Her alter ego, Incognito, is an internationally known person of mystery and a fair few conrunning skills. She has been volunteering at cons since mumble and has yet to figure out how to say no. By day Vanessa is a Data Architect for the Royal Mail; by night she is mostly tired. When she has time Vanessa likes to gallivant around the UK and Europe impressing random strangers with her mad stealth abilities.

Art Show – Serena Culfeather Serena discovered fandom later in life and didn't get the message that you can attend a convention without having to work at it. Since 2005 she has served as Press and Guest Liaison as well as helping run art shows and dealers' rooms at Novacons, Eastercons and a couple of Worldcons. Dublin 2019 gave her a taste for mojitos. When not working on conventions, Serena has a full-time job as a compliance manager with her own mini laboratory.

John Wilson John came to conventions late, a sign of his insanity being despite his inexperience he ran ops for a first flight convention and the following week running the convention printshop for the Glasgow WorldCon in 2005. Since then he's covered hotel liaison, press and guest liaison and most frequently and recently, art shows. In addition to multiple Novacons and Eastercons, John has two WorldCons under his belt and has developed an obsession with industrial fencing.

Hotel Liaison – Alice Lawson Alice has been helping run conventions for many years and chaired a few including Novacon, Eastercon and Worldcon. She was amazed and honoured to receive the both the Doc Weir award in 2010 and the Big Heart award in 2019. Working with Serena Culfeather and John Wilson on the Dublin 2019 artshow is one of her favourite memories. When not working on conventions Alice lives a quiet life with husband Steve - or as quiet as it can be living with her fellow conrunner Steve.

ConFusion Committee

Logistics – John Dodd That Dodd is out there, he runs conventions, that's what he does, that's all he does, he can't feel pity, or remorse, or fear, and he will not stop, ever, until the job is done. Then he'll start again...
John's been running cons for a few decades, and now helps with Eastercon, Worldcon, UK Games Expo, Dragonmeet, Longcon, Airecon, and Wyntercon, he's been at the Birmingham Metropole for more conventions than he wants to remember, but he loves every second of it.

Membership and registration – Fionna O'Sullivan Fionna has been floating around fandom in Ireland, Finland, and the UK for more years than she likes to contemplate. She has been a fan of literary SF since the age of 9, when somebody bought a copy of The Boy's Book Of Science Fiction Stories for her brother; she hopes to one day own All The Books. She published a one-woman fanzine, FRINGE, in the 90s and 00s, was co-area head for Theatre Events in Dublin 2019, and is on the board of the ESFS. She lives in Drogheda, Ireland, with James Shields, their dog Leia, and pieces of LEGO embedded in the soles of her feet.

James Shields James has been involved in fandom and conventions since the early 1990s. He has helped organise many cons in Ireland and abroad, including Octocon, P-Con, Shamrokon (Eurocon), Eastercons and Worldcons. He has also been involved in fanzines, fan clubs and fan funds. He is a former LEGO Ambassador, and enjoys getting LEGO activities onto convention programmes whenever he can. He organised the LEGO display at Dublin 2019. He lives in Drogheda, Ireland with Fionna O'Sullivan, their dog Leia, and a collection of bookshelves that are never quite capacious enough to fit all the LEGO models.

Programme - Russell Smith An author, podcaster and freshly-minted historian who has found himself at the dangerous side of putting together programme as much as being on it. Russell has done a number of volunteer roles for conventions before in recent years which some will have seen him about on, and different ones from different cons too. Ops, Registration, guest liaison and of course programme, there is no section of a convention which Russell can fail to run away from fast enough.

ConFusion Committee

Publications – Diana ben-Aaron After several decades of being a fan of fans, Diana started her con volunteer career at the Dublin 2019 Worldcon, where she was head of press area. During lockdown, Diana attended many cons on social Zooms, caught up on some reading (including, finally, The Dispossessed) and terraformed her bathtub to grow potatoes. She has opinions at Twitter: @diana180 and blog Field Notes.

Social Media – Zoe Deterding Zoe is the one normally disguised as a very large Dr Who scarf which she knitted herself. She discovered fandom and conventions in 1983 with her first Eastercon in Brighton in 1984, and volunteered on a small scale with many conventions in her early days of con-going. You'll often find Zoe socializing and discussing the meaning of life with like minded fans. When the internet, smartphones and social media became a thing, it was like these were made for her! She was sucked in big time with Dublin in 2019, being the Social Media Area Deputy Head. Zoe now works with social media for several conventions.

Tech – Keith Smith Keith has been supporting and running Tech at conventions for well over a decade, and has been involved in the discipline for a good deal longer - as the improbably large number of gizmo-filled boxes that fill his storage spaces attest. He was once given the opportunity to name a star. But for reasons he has never been able to satisfactorily explain, he didn't. Something he now regrets. He was the Tech Director for Dublin 2019, which he doesn't regret. Favourite misquote: "Ooh look! A standard. I wonder if it'll be friends with me?"

Treasurer – Mike Howard Hardworking, sober, honest, literate, solvent, these are just some of the words no one would ever use to describe Confusion Treasurer, Mike. Mike was press-ganged into the committee when a chair of ConFusion who-shall-remain-nameless bought him a drink, Mike immediately downed it swallowing the king's shilling contained within. From this two things were learned first that Mike is an idiot, secondly that once you give Mike money you can't get it back out of him, this has generally been regarded as an ideal quality in a treasurer. When Mike isn't writing bios that he at least thinks are funny, he runs a Blood Bowl league, smokes a pipe and sleeps more than he should but less than he would like.

ConFusion Committee

Website - Paul Taylor Paul grew up with television series such as Doctor Who, Star Trek, U.F.O. and Blake's Seven. And of course he was captivated from the beginning by books. When he had read all of his own, he discovered science fiction by raiding his father's shelves, and poetry by raiding his mother's. Both offered new worlds of surprise and delight, as they still do today. Other passions followed, including opera, music and theatre, today ensuring that Paul is rarely bored, and even more rarely home. It took him rather longer to discover fandom and conventions, but he immediately decided to get involved, and has since worked with many of the recent Eastercons. Dublin 2019 was his third Worldcon committee, but it's unlikely to be his last. Twitter: @pault_cam ; Instagram: pault_cam .

Call for Staff and At-Con Volunteers

We need help with all kinds of tasks, before, during and after the convention. These include planning and organisation; promoting the convention, and practical work at the convention itself. Some tasks can be done by individuals, although many of our volunteers will work as part of a team.

As well as the satisfaction of contributing to a successful event enjoyed by hundreds of fellow fans, volunteering can be a good way to meet people. Whether you're a seasoned volunteer or this is your very first convention, your help will be valued by us and by everyone at ConFusion.

When you join ConFusion, you can tell us what you're interested in helping with. If you'd like to help but you're not sure what you would like to do, get in touch with us and we can tell you more. Any experience you've got from running other conventions or events could be useful, as could skills and experience at work, from your studies or other leisure activities.

Expressing interest in volunteering won't commit you to anything at this stage, and you can choose the amount of time you are willing to give and when you are available – including at the con itself.

For more information, contact us at volunteers@confusion2021.uk .
