From the Chair

We are less than two weeks out from the convention and things are at a fever pitch. The entire team is bouncing between moments of elation and mild hysteria but have managed to keep calm and (relatively) clear heads. No matter how much you plan ahead and try and spread the workload the last month before con is always hectic and it is a tribute to the whole team that we have got where we are in one piece - Well done all.

Thanks to the social media networks such as Twitter and Facebook I think we have been more personally in contact with many of you than has been previously been possible. This has been an enlightening experience and has enabled us to have more pre-con feedback than ever before as well as being an enjoyable two way experience that has helped us shape Olympus2012 into something we are feeling quite proud of.

We've got more than 1200 members coming along to the convention and a full-on programme lined up that will start mid-morning on Friday and end late into Monday evening. A more or less final version of the programme (or as final as pre-con programmes get) is up on line on the website (but there are still something's that may go on it) at www.olympus2012.org/programme.php.

We are in the surprising situation of having to cap memberships this year - we know the venue and we know how many people it can really accommodate in the programme rooms. The decision to close memberships and say 'no' to on the day walk in memberships is never an easy one for a convention to make - both for the convention's and for the fan's sake and one we haven't taken lightly. It was a tough call but we have made it.

We have come a long way from the low point in 2007, when the winning bid for that year had to take the decision to fold due to an insufficient level of hotel room bookings at the six months out stage. We have excellent bids for 2013 and 2014 Eastercons at this year's voting session on Sunday and of course the exciting news that the 'London in 2014' UK Worldcon bid will be uncontested in Chicago in the Summer, so it looks like fandom has some good times ahead. See you all in - well a few days, at Easter.

GUEST OF HONOUR INTRODUCTIONS

Tricia Sullivan

BY EDDIE COCHRANE

The first book by Tricia Sullivan I read was Maul. It was a hard book to miss, with the striking cover of a bright red lipstick coming out of a rifle cartridge, a quick browse lead to an opening sequence that was uninhibitedly sexual, and went on to show a future of guns, teen-gang turf wars, desire, shopping, plagues and sexual politics. This complex and almost satirical novel was nominated for the Arthur C. Clarke Award in 2004, an award that Tricia Sullivan had already won for her 1999 novel, Dreaming In Smoke, and for which her 2010 novel Lightborn was also nominated. It was not a surprise to me that Maul was included in a list of the top ten Future Classics from the poll run by the Torque Control blog. As well as the Arthur C. Clarke award nominations Tricia's books have been shortlisted for the Tiptree and BSFA Awards.

Originally from New Jersey and now living in the UK with her partner and three children, Tricia has studied music, teaching and martial arts, and she published her first SF novel Lethe in 1995. Lethe was nominated for a Locus Award for First Novel, and Tricia was nominated for the John W. Campbell Award for Best New Writer. As well as seven science fiction novels Tricia has also written a high fantasy trilogy under the name Valery Leith. Her books, both SF and Fantasy have strange technologies, multiple views of reality, yet always with believable characters, with relatable desires and needs, and all at an engrossing pace.

Her most recent novel Lightborn is complex, effective and affecting. While it has teenage protagonists and there are zombies roaming the city, it's hardly a YA novel, and far from the typical zombie novel. It's complex, with abstract themes and strongly textured relationships, and also, these are not your typical shambling zombies, but the brain-damaged victims of a pervasive, mind altering technology gone horribly wrong. The characters are diverse and engaging, and how could I not love a novel whose parts are named after Prog Rock albums? 🌟

George R. R. Martin

BY MICHAEL O'TOOLE

Here's a great moment to be alive – it's the early '90s and George R. R. Martin is (repeatedly) sinking the boot in to the decrepit body of heroic fantasy. Just so you know I imagine he's wearing heavy steel reinforced footwear, with a nice ermine trim, and laughing a lot. Just so you know. After he's finished things are no longer quite so heroic, but they are much better. More fantastic, if you will. Because now all bets are off, the predictable plots have gone by the wayside, and we're really not sure if the good guys are going to win.

Wait, rewind. Things really start in the '70s, well before Game of Thrones first brought a little grimy unexpectedness to doorstep fantasy.

Martin got his start writing short stories for magazines, and therein learned a discipline that (for my money) is the key to why he's successful.

OLYMPUS 2012 – PROGRESS REPORT TWO

As the bearded one himself has remarked: 'Short stories help you learn your craft. They are a good place for you to make the mistakes that every beginning writer is going to make. And they are still the best way for a young writer to break in, since the magazines are always hungry for short SF and fantasy stories'.

He's kept short stories pretty close throughout his career, in one way or the other. He's a prolific editor of anthologies. Maybe the highest profile story collection of recent years was his homage to the work of Jack Vance, with contributions from such luminaries as Silverberg and Gaiman. Back in the 80s he created probably fantasy's longest running themed short story collection in Wild Cards, a superhero anthology that's been recently super-rebooted.

The late '70s and early '80s also found him writing some superb one off novels which garnered their own fair share of high profile awards and nominations. To mention just one: Fevre Dream is a great piece of writing. In some ways that novel prefigured what was pretty special about Game of Thrones in the way he could take some already very familiar territory and reveal something new. In Fevre Dream's case it took the almost mythic concoction of American south of Mark Twain, riverboats, vampires – territory perhaps too well staked out by Anne Rice and Stephen King – and create a novel that is genuinely unexpected, atmospheric and haunting.

Perhaps his main career at the time was in TV though, and he contributing scripts to the revamped Twilight Zone TV show, as well as working on scripts for Beauty and the Beast.

All of which is quality stuff, but none of it gave any sign of the big things to come. To the mega-selling Game of Thrones novels, whose combination of broad canvas violence, Machiavellian intrigue and the occasional sizzling sex scene has earned Martin legions of devoted (and somewhat impatient) fans.

Game of Thrones has also brought about a return to TV for Martin in the form of the HBO series. Like anyone in fandom I have my opinions on it (cons: I know everything that's going to happen, and the nudity is gratuitous; pros: it's a great story anyway, and the nudity is awesome). Nevertheless, it's bringing him greater fame and an even greater fanbase. It may prove the biggest door opener for fantasy audiences since the Lord of the Rings films.

As an author, does he hate happy endings? They're not something you get often in short stories, so I doubt if they're high on his list of priorities.

Anyway, I suspect it's not a question that bothers him – he's a storyteller, not a moralist – but it's one that's right at the heart of why, as fanboys and fangirls, we keep on reading. Unlike most fantasy, with Martin you simply don't know if 'good' will win, and even who 'good' is. It's all shades of grey, it's complex and it's unexpected, and frankly, that makes this a beautiful time to be a reader. 🍀

Cory Doctorow

BY EDDIE COCHRANE

When Cory Doctorow won the John W. Campbell Award for Best New Writer at Chicon in 2000 I'd read two of his stories, Craphound in The Mammoth Book of the Best New Science Fiction 12, and A Place So Foreign in one of the last issues of Science Fiction Age magazine, but as that was two more than I had usually read by nominees of that award, and I had greatly enjoyed both stories, I was pleased to see him win. I had been reading the blog Boing Boing since late 2000, so I noticed when Mark Frauenfelder invited Cory to be a "Guest Editor" of the blog in January 2001, but it took a party for me too notice that Cory was a big deal. When the Electronic Frontier Foundation threw an open house party in December 2002 to celebrate the expansion of their San Francisco headquarters I was lucky enough to be in town, went along, chatted, circulated, heard John Perry Barlow make a great speech, then late in the evening Cory arrived. It was like a rock star arriving, the whole focus of a large and fairly packed room snapped in place around him, and everyone wanted to talk with him, or hear what he was going to say. That focus is well deserved, because what Cory Doctorow is going to say is invariably interesting, often thought provoking, occasionally provocative, and always worth paying attention to.

OLYMPUS 2012 – PROGRESS REPORT TWO

As well as being a science fiction writer and notable blogger Cory Doctorow is a journalist and technology activist. He is a contributor to The Guardian, the New York Times, Wired, and many other publications. He was formerly Director of European Affairs for the Electronic Frontier Foundation (eff.org), a non-profit civil liberties group that defends freedom in technology law, policy, standards and treaties. He is a Visiting Senior Lecturer at the Open University; in 2007, he served as the Fulbright Chair at the Annenberg Center for Public Diplomacy at the University of Southern California. His activism is the area of copyright laws, which he is in favour of liberalising, promoting the use of Creative Commons licences, online privacy, and against the use of Digital Rights Management. This overlaps into the themes of his fiction, which also include the impact of technology on creativity, post-scarcity economics, and free-speech rights.

Down and Out in the Magic Kingdom, Doctorow's first novel, was published in January 2003, but it was more than just a good novel, Nebula-nominated that year, and winning the Locus Award for Best First Novel, but a significant milestone in internet publishing as it was the first novel released under a Creative Commons licence, and because readers were able to circulate the electronic edition as long as they did not make money from it, and because that freely available electronic edition was released simultaneously with the print edition, it was something of a revolutionary event in publishing. Much of what is discussed today about copyright, internet and ebook publishing today has roots in that initial release, practically the Jonbar Hinge of modern publishing. Since then Cory has published five more novels, including Little Brother, which was winner of the 2009 John W. Campbell Memorial, Prometheus and Sunburst Awards, and his most recent, For The Win, which is also available free on the author's website as a Creative Commons download, and published in traditional paper form by Tor Books. His novels and short fiction have gained 3 Hugo nominations, 3 Nebula nominations, and 20 Locus Award nominations, winning 4 times. His forthcoming books include the novel Rapture Of The Nerds (written with Charles Stross) and a sequel to Little Brother. 🌟

Thursday Evening Meal

Many of us will be at the convention by Thursday evening – almost 200 people are staying at the Radisson that night! We have made arrangements with the hotel for a three-course buffet meal to start us all off on the right foot, priced at £17 for those aged 13 and over and £9.00 for children aged 5 to 12 (wearing a convention 'Child' badge). Children under 5 (wearing a convention 'Infant' badge) dine for free!

The Thursday meal is always an excellent icebreaker and Registration and the con bar will also be open from late Thursday afternoon. If you would like to join us, just come along! Dinner on Thursday is later than it will be on the other nights, and runs from 7.00 - 9.00pm. Payment will be on the door, on the day. 🌟

Respect the Furniture!

Once again additional social seating is provided for you in the social room and the Atrium and this furniture will be available for attendees to take away at the end of con, with the remaining being donated to a local charity. If you are interested in a chair/sofa/coffee table please register your interest at Ops – but note you must be available to take it away on the morning of Tuesday 10th April.

Please treat the furniture with respect and leave the safety tags attached. We are aware that at Odyssey one or two individuals decided it would be funny to see how fast they could snap the legs on the armchairs. If anyone is found to be doing the same this year they will be ejected from both con and hotel. 🌟

Programme Updates

SCIENCE AT OLYMPUS

Science is an inherent part of science fiction, whether it's obvious or not, and so there is always strong interest in this side of things at conventions. Things will be no different at Olympus, with a mixture of science items, covering the hard and the soft (from rocketry to biology), from serious to light hearted (talks by professionals to madcap tales from the lab), current and future (internet law to the ethics of AI). We'll also be looking at science in a broader context, in the media, in fiction and in daily life.

As a professional scientist myself, working on astrophysics at Imperial College London, I'm also hoping to tempt some of my work colleagues to give talks from the cutting edges of science. While these have yet to be confirmed we hope to bring you news from the Large Hadron Collider at CERN, details of the next Mars mission, and much more.

David L Clements

FANCY DRESS AND CABARET

There will be a Main Hall fan-produced masquerade and cabaret on the Saturday evening. Participants must go to one of the two sign-up sessions (one on Friday and one on Saturday – see Read-Me at the convention to check times) if they want to take part. Cabaret entries should normally be less than two minutes. If you want longer, you'll have to convince us that it is worth it.

For those who want to dress up but not go on stage, Saturday will also be Hall Costume Day. Every member will have hall costume tokens in their con pack to give to the people they see wandering around in the best costumes. The one who collects the most tokens, wins.

FAN PROGRAMME

The fan programme is shaping up to be something special, with our two excellent Fan Guests of Honour, Martin Easterbrook and Margaret Austin, as well as fan fund winners from both North America and Australia. There will be a mixture of panels, performances and other items, including an Ian Sorensen extravaganza A Dickensian Tale, fannish tales from the much acclaimed Edinburgh Writers Bloc, a chance to learn how to make a fannish podcast, and discussions ranging from the contentiously named "Do Swedes have more fun?" to a debate on the impact of online fanzines and an introduction to the delights of attending a virtual convention.

OLYMPUS 2012 – PROGRESS REPORT TWO

DISCO THEMES

The themes for the discos will be "Superheroes" for Saturday night and "Robots" for Sunday night.

RED PLANET LARP

Red Planet is this year's Eastercon LARP. Take control of one of the 5 factions vying for control of Mars and its resources in the year 2212. Will you be a member of a mining company that has operated on the world for the better part of two centuries, a miner trying to fight for fair pay and conditions from the "Profits before People" companies or a politician who is trying to curtail the power of the companies and get a result that's best for those they represent?

Register your interest at redplanet.olympus2012@gmail.com to choose your character and faction

Spaces will be limited for each faction.

THE 2012 BSFA LECTURE: MARC MORRIS

The British Science Fiction Association will present the fourth BSFA Lecture at Eastercon. The BSFA lecture is intended as a companion to the George Hay Lecture presented at the Eastercon by the Science Fiction Foundation. Where the Hay Lecture invites scientists, the BSFA Lecture invites academics from the arts and humanities (with a particular bias towards history), because we recognise that science fiction fans aren't only interested in science, and give them a remit to speak "on a subject that is likely to be of interest to science fiction fans" – i.e. on whatever they want!

The 2012 BSFA Lecture will be given by Marc Morris. Marc is a mediaeval historian and broadcaster. He presented the television series Castle in 2003,

OLYMPUS 2012 – PROGRESS REPORT TWO

and wrote the accompanying book; he is also the author of The Bigod Earls of Norfolk in the Thirteenth Century, and A Great and Terrible King: Edward I and the Forging of Britain. His new book, due for publication in March 2012 (so hopefully may be available for Eastercon), is a history of The Norman Conquest. His lecture draws upon that work, and is entitled: "Regime Change in England, 1066".

AUTOGRAPH SESSIONS

We have two signing sessions planned (one on Saturday, one on Sunday).

The limit is two items max to be signed per person (per guest - i.e. two for George, two for Tricia, etc.). If you have more items you can rejoin at the back of the queue, and take a chance on getting in again before the end of the signing session.

No signing of unauthorised materials, or body parts (whether authorised material or not).

Generally speaking George does not do personalisation, other authors may do so.

The signing is in a set time slot - the convention does not guarantee that every attendee will get an autograph and the signing will finish at the advertised time regardless of remaining queue length. 🌌

Travel and Parking

GETTING TO THE RADISSON EDWARDIAN HOTEL

The hotel's address is:

Radisson Edwardian International Plaza Hotel
Heathrow
140 Bath Road,
Hayes
Middlesex
UB3 5AW

The hotel is on the north side of the A4 right by Heathrow Airport.

TRAVELLING TO OLYMPUS BY CAR

Coming west on the A4, you'll pass the following hotels on your right: Hotel Ibis, Holiday Inn Heathrow Ariel (white circular hotel), then three in a row: Sheraton Skyline, Marriott and then the Radisson Edwardian. Continue to the next traffic lights with a right turn and turn right into Boltons Lane (at the McDonalds). Turn right at the mini-roundabout into Mondial Way. The hotel is straight ahead and there's an entrance to the car park off the next mini-roundabout (the gates will open when you take a ticket). If you want the front of the hotel, turn right at the second roundabout and back up to the A4. Turn left and very shortly after turn left into the entrance of the hotel.

Coming east on the A4 from Slough and the M25, wait until you see the Renaissance Hotel ahead on your right (at Heathrow Airport) and a McDonalds on your left. The Radisson is the next big white building on your left (and clearly marked).

PARKING AT THE RADISSON EDWARDIAN

The Radisson Edwardian hotel has a large open-air car park, and parking will be charged at a special convention rate of £5 per day over the convention weekend. This rate is available to all convention members, regardless of whether they're staying at the main hotel.

OLYMPUS 2012 – PROGRESS REPORT TWO

Parking for the weekend can be prepaid at the convention rate at any time, either on check-in, or over the weekend at the concierge desk in the hotel lobby. Normally, if you leave and re-enter the car park, you would be charged for the period up to the point you leave, and then have to start a new period when you return. But, for the convention, the hotel have agreed to allow people unlimited access if they prepay.

If you haven't prepaid, you must validate your car park ticket at the concierge desk in the hotel lobby before you leave the car park, in order to obtain the convention rate. If you don't do this, and use the ticket machines to pay, you will be charged the normal hotel rate, and it will not be possible to obtain a refund – so you really should not use these machines at all.

Dealers should contact Richard Proctor for instruction on where to park for unloading.

If you've been to the hotel before, please note that parking at the front of the hotel (apart from disabled parking) will not be available this time, because of refurbishment work. To get into the main car park, at the rear of the hotel, use the north car park entrance off Mondial Way. Parking at the main hotel is free for registered disabled drivers. There are parking spaces for disabled drivers at the front of the hotel, but space there is limited because of refurbishment work. If you will need a space at the front of the hotel, please let us know as soon as possible, so that we can ensure that one is available for you.

Parking for motorcycles is free at the main hotel, but not for three-wheelers, motorcycles with side-cars, or anything else that takes up an actual parking space.

TRAVELLING TO OLYMPUS BY PUBLIC TRANSPORT

Tube (Piccadilly) or Heathrow Express train (Paddington) to Heathrow Airport (Terminals 1, 2, 3) and then get a (FREE) bus (105/111/140/285/423/555/N9) from the Heathrow Central bus station to the hotel (it is within the free travel zone, so just tell the driver you're getting off at the Radisson and there will be no charge). When you see the McDonalds head on your left, ring the bell to get the bus to stop. Or you can take a taxi from the airport (expensive). Finally, the Hotel Hoppa bus service (H3) runs from the airport to the hotel (and to the Marriott and Sheraton) for £4 per person. The Hoppa buses run from approximately 5:30 to approximately 23:30. See www.nationalexpress.com/coach/airport/london-heathrow-hoppa.aspx or www.londontoolkit.com/lhr/hotel_hoppa_bus.htm for more details.

OLYMPUS 2012 – PROGRESS REPORT TWO

From London Waterloo or from Reading, you take the train to Feltham Station and then get the 285 bus (towards Heathrow Airport) to the Radisson (not free). the 285 bus runs 24 hours a day, but the trains to/from Feltham end around midnight. Tubes may run a little later.

TRAVELLING TO OLYMPUS BY AIR

Fly to Heathrow, follow Public Transport directions above. Or fly to Gatwick, Luton or Stansted and use the Heathrow transfer buses/trains and follow Public Transport directions above. Alternatively, if flying into Gatwick, take the train to Feltham, changing at Clapham Junction, then follow Public Transport directions above.

Note: There is no pedestrian access into or out of Heathrow Airport. However, the buses are free from the centre of the airport to the immediately-surrounding hotels. There is a bicycle route which you can use if you have brought a bicycle with you on your flight, or a folding bicycle on the tube/train. 🚲

Convention Policies

INTRODUCTION

Members attending Olympus 2012 agree to abide by each of the following policies while within convention areas and while participating in convention activities as a condition of membership. The Committee have been authorised by the Chair to issue warnings if they observe any violations of these policies. Serious or repeat offenders will have their Olympus 2012 membership revoked without refund, and will be asked to leave convention areas immediately. In any dispute over the interpretation or enforcement of any policy, the decision of the Olympus 2012 Chair shall be final. We reserve the right to refuse membership to any person.

GENERAL CONDUCT

Our conduct policy is intended to help everyone have a safe, sane, and fun convention.

The Olympus 2012 Committee asks that you show respect and courtesy toward your fellow Convention members, the hotel, and its other guests. Consideration for the safety, rights and feelings of others will help to create a positive experience for everyone. Harassment, bullying, and any form of verbal or physical abuse will be dealt with swiftly and severely, with recourse to hotel security or local law enforcement as necessary.

Members must wear their convention badge at all times while in convention areas or participating in convention activities, and display their badge upon request by convention staff. This includes but is not limited to gophers doing door checks, Green Room, Ops staff and any Committee member. Badges may also be required for late night access to the hotel and may need to be shown to hotel security on duty at that time.

There will be an administration charge for the replacement of lost badges so please keep your badge safe.

Laser pointers and similar devices may not be carried or used within the boundaries of the convention, unless specifically required for use in a programme item.

PRIVACY

We take your privacy seriously and have policies defining how we intend to use the personal data we have collected from you, your name and badge name, email address, postal address, telephone number, credit & debit card information, etc. However, this is quite a long and detailed policy, so please see the full version on our web page, or you can request it from the convention General Queries address (page 4).

FULL NAME AND BADGE NAME

If you haven't specified what you want your badge name to be, by default, your badge name will be your full name. You can change this by accessing your membership record and updating it to your preferred badge name before the convention.

OTHER PERSONAL INFORMATION

If you have supplied us with hotel related information and requests (food allergies, room location etc); we will pass these on to the relevant hotel official at an appropriate time. The hotel liaison team will be monitoring the hotel's responses to your requests, so it is likely they will be also be accessing this information throughout the convention.

MEMBERSHIP RECORDS

Paper membership forms are retained in the custody of the membership secretary until after the convention. At that point they will be securely shredded. The membership database will be retained intact until the request from the 2014 committee to email a reminder to our members has been actioned or until the 2014 Eastercon committee has confirmed to us in writing that they do not wish to send an email to our members.

PROGRAMME PARTICIPATION

We anticipate having a large programme with several different strands and in order to effectively prepare for this we need all programme participants to be able to communicate with the programme team via email. Regretfully, if you are unable to provide an email address that can be shared for this purpose, you will not be able to participate in the programme.

Programme participants will need to bring their own laptops if they require one for their programme item, preloaded with any software required. A projector and screen can be provided so long as you let us know you need these items in advance of the convention.

CARE OF CHILDREN

Our overriding policy regarding the care of children at the convention is that parents and guardians attending the convention with their children remain responsible for their supervision and behaviour at all times.

To assist parents and guardians, we have drawn up a detailed policy, giving information on the classification of programme items, children's behaviour, and the professional childcare facilities that will be available at Olympus. The policy is available as a PDF file on our web page, or can be requested from the convention General Queries address (page 18).

PHOTOGRAPHY AND VIDEO

We reserve the right to restrict photography and video recording in any part of the convention's function space. This includes but is not restricted to, the room designated as a crèche and any part of the masquerade event other than the publicised photo call. You are asked to restrict any flash photography to the first few minutes of panels and talks and to avoid blocking any aisles with your camera equipment. You may not take photographs during the masquerade; there will be a planned opportunity to photograph masquerade participants in their costumes during the event.

Except for these specific restrictions and any further restrictions we publicise at the beginning of any programme item, all members in attendance at Olympus 2012 should be aware that they may be photographed or recorded at any time while in public areas. The term "public areas" covers all parts of the hotel other than bedroom space and washroom facilities.

We appreciate that some members are uncomfortable about appearing in photographs or video recordings and we will be offering these members a brightly coloured ribbon to wear on their badge so that photographers can easily spot them and have an opportunity to avoid including them in their photographs and video recordings.

We ask all our members to please be courteous and avoid taking photographs or video recordings of anyone who is wearing one of these ribbons or otherwise requests that their picture not be taken.

To help everyone easily locate photographs and recordings from Olympus 2012, please tag any items you upload with "Olympus 2012."

Olympus 2012 is a private social function for members only, and as such, is generally closed to all press and media members and organisations. Making photographic, audio or video recordings of any convention event for investigative or commercial purposes is strictly forbidden.

Journalists may be permitted to participate in a pre-bookable supervised tour of the convention. To request a guided tour of the convention, please contact our Press Liaison team at media@siriuscybernetics.eu well before the start of the convention. We are unlikely to be able to assist you without prior arrangement.

WEAPONS

No weapons or realistic imitations of any kind are permitted on site at the Convention without approval of the Ops Manager. Approval may be granted for weapons used in programme items, dealer stock or as props for the Masquerade, but this must be obtained in advance of their use or display.

Approval can be obtained by bringing the item to Ops. The Ops Manager may deny approval if they think there is any chance that your weapon can injure anyone or be mistaken for something that can injure. The Ops Manager has the full support and delegated authority of the Chair in respect of all decisions regarding weapons.

Unless permission has been specifically granted for use in a programme item (such as a demonstration), all approved weapons or props must be peace bonded (visibly locked or tied so as to make clear that it is not intended for use) whenever displayed. All approved weapons or props should be wrapped when taken to and from programme items.

Beyond Cyberdrome

The Titanic spirit

I'm sure you're all as thrilled as I (A shareholder) that Olympus 2012 is to be hosting the BEYOND CYBERDOME TITANICS (Not Olympics BOAC¹).

Yes! Of all the Cons that the massive Beyond Cyberdrome business could have chosen to fund and organise this massive advertising extravaganza, we've chosen YOU to foot the bill.

We have so many exciting plans for this event that we can't wait to tell you all about it but in the meantime, we'll just give a rough outline of what we'll be expecting you – as the Host Convention – to supply for us.

The Titanics will be held on three separate days, at three separate venues in the Convention (Where we will take over public areas and declare them to be Titanics property²). This should mean that even if you can't afford a ticket to one of the events, you have twice the chance of getting to see the other one.

The three events (Venues to be announced) are all themed around the original events of the inter-City competitions of the Greek City States of the 5th Century BC. We're inviting you all to enter a robot for one or more of the following events.

² After the event, we'll be selling off the area to one of our subsidiaries and making a small donation to a Fan Cause.

Event One

THE MARATHON

An endurance test to see how long the robots can run round a track until they die. We expect this to be a continuous event over the course of the Convention. The winner will be permitted to deliver the news of a Convention Award at the closing ceremony before expiring.

Event Two

SPRINT

Speed trials. There will be rigorous dope testing for this event. We will announce our official plasticised lacquer sponsors soon.

DISCUS/JAVELIN

Following the tremendous success of the Alex Holden Projectile Challenge last year, we're expecting robots to propel an object through the air. We're more interested in the sponsorship than the science so we're not fussy what you throw. Preferably something we've been sponsored by.

HOPLITE RUNNING

This is 'Running in armour'. Robots traverse an uneven course carrying 'armour' (Some circular pieces of metal and wooden sticks) without the 'armour' falling off.

Event three

THE HIGH JUMP

Robots will propel themselves into the air. Points awarded for their estimated height of climb. Special points will be awarded for ideas on how we measure this. Special dispensation may be bought from the Organisers for entrants of the 'Javelin/Discus' event to enter this event as well.

THE LONG JUMP

Robots will propel themselves into the air. Points awarded for how far they fall from their starting point. Special dispensation may be bought from the Organisers for entrants of the 'Javelin/Discus' event to enter this event as well.

CHARIOT RACING

Robots must pull a 'chariot' around a circular course. We provide the 'Chariot'. Cheating is encouraged.

WRESTLING

In which robots must lift their opponents off the floor. Points awarded for cunning and guile.

PAINTING AND TRUMPETING

We're not quite sure how we're going to organise these two but as genuine Ancient Greek Sporting Events, we'd be silly to miss them out.

The robot with the most overall points will be presented with a crown of olive leaves. This is plainly a bit of a waste of your time and effort so we recommend you do as the contestants did in the original Greek Games and get yourself a sponsor.

In accordance with the rules of the original Ancient Greek competitions, all robots must perform in the nude.

This year we'll be providing a workshop according to defined hours.

More details will be released at the convention, along with exciting news about our sponsors, our Special Security Regulations and where to buy cuddly toy versions of our Official Mascots: Payback and Mandatory. 🍀

BSFA Awards

The British Science Fiction Association's awards are traditionally presented at the Eastercon, and members of the Eastercon, as well as members of the BSFA itself are entitled to vote for the awards. You will receive a copy of the ballot form in your pack at the convention, or you can pick one up from the BSFA table. Full details about how to vote are on the form. Deadline for voting at Eastercon will be 12 noon Sunday, 8th April. The awards ceremony will be held at 6:00pm Sunday, in the Commonwealth room.

The BSFA will be presenting awards for the best novel, short fiction, non-fiction and artwork of 2011 and will be presented by acclaimed author, John Meaney. The winner in each of the categories will be presented with a specially commissioned artwork created by Northampton Skulls and Robots artists, Dan Brodie and Lauren Hubbard.

The BSFA and Olympus offers their congratulations to all those short listed for the awards. 🌟

Hotel Facilities

For attendees not already familiar with our convention venue, the Radisson Edwardian Heathrow is a large, well appointed hotel. In addition to the usual range of rooms, it has a good range of facilities, including the Brasserie Restaurant, the Bijou Bar (formerly the Polo Bar), a number of gift shops, and the Pegasus Spa, which encompasses an aerobics suite, steam room, sauna, cold plunge, men's and women's locker rooms, and a well equipped gym. The Pegasus Spa can also provide a full menu of spa treatments, although it is probably best to book in advance.

If you're looking for a brief escape from the chaos during Olympus, you may want to consider a visit. The gym carries the full range of free weights and exercise machines, including bikes and elliptical trainers, as well as a power plate, which is available at no additional charge. Locker rooms are spacious, with multiple showers and plenty of storage space. Be sure to bring swimwear for the sauna and steam room, as the latter are mixed gender - as well as a pound coin to operate the locker! 🌟

NAME AND BADGE NAME

Our records have both your full name and your badge name. Our web site only shows your badge name unless you have chosen to have your full name shown as well. If you have chosen not to have your name or badge name shown at all then it will not appear here as this is available on the web site as a PDF. If you have a badge name that might be confused with another fan (such as just first name) you may wish to visit the web site and give permission for your full name to appear on the web site. Membership details can be changed on the web at <http://www.olympus2012.org/memserv.html> 🌐
