WELCOME TO CONZEALAND

NORMAN CATES & KELLY BUEHLER

KIA ORA!

Welcome to the first virtual Worldcon!

We the CoNZealand bridge crew hope you are safe and well as we bring a Virtual CoNZealand from New Zealand to the world, boldly going where no worldcon has gone before!

In our CoNZealand voyage of discovery, we had to deviate from our intended course, flung into unknown territory. CoNZealand is a ship in uncharted space, but our members bring the love of science fiction and fantasy and their own special energy to our voyage, and together we can find our way through these new stars.

Now sit right back, and you'll read a tale, a tale of a fateful con,

that started out by inviting you to New Zealand's Wellington.

The crew was a great con running team, the Chairs were brave and sure.

The journey started long ago, it was a ten-year tour.

Yes, a ten-year tour.

Then Covid started getting rough, oh, what would be the cost?

If not for the courage of the fearless crew, CoNZealand would be lost.

CoNZealand would be lost

The con moved to the internet, virtual it would be, with Norman Cates, and Kelly too, Dave Gallaher and Lynelle, the mighty crew, here at CoNZealand with you!

This Worldcon is not the one we envisaged when we started this journey ten years ago, but we are buoyed by the spirit of fandom to give anything a go, and take on the new challenges we face in our new normal.

It is a pleasure to have Mercedes Lackey, Larry Dixon, Greg Broadmore, and Rose Mitchell as our Guests of Honour. We are also very pleased to have George R. R. Martin as our Toastmaster. This isn't the convention they were expecting either, but we hope they will enjoy it nonetheless.

We want to acknowledge all of the writers, artists, gamers, costumers, fans, and many more who have volunteered to participate in our programme. You are a big part of what makes CoNZealand tick.

We are very grateful to our hundreds of crew, staff, volunteers, and fans from around the world who have spent countless hours working on CoNZealand, both for the original version and our new virtualised experience. Without you this convention would not be a reality.

We also want to acknowledge the support of The Fantasy Network in bringing CoNZealand to an interactive, virtual platform. We hope you'll enjoy panels and streaming video to informal hangouts and late-night networking with our virtual convention providing you with the most fun that you can have at a convention from your own home.

We are excited to see where all our exploration leads, and who will follow us into the unknown!

LARRY DIXON

AUTHOR GUEST OF HONOUR

LARRY DIXON IS A respected, funny, friendly and completely approachable guy with a diverse and adventurous history. He is a “Player Character,” as he puts it, whose life seems like fiction—but he is completely for real.

Son of a Delta Force career commando and an Oklahoman farmgirl, Larry grew up in many American and European settings, usually haunting the local art museums and hobby stores. At age 9 he saved up his babysitting money and bought his first typewriter, intent upon writing and illustrating his own novels. Northern Italy is where his passions for painting, sculpting and storytelling took root, as well as his interests in state-level diplomacy, early computers and rocketry.

In Junior High, Larry became one of the “Boy Wonder” strategists at the Ft. Bragg Battle Simulations Center, spending his weekends facing off against Army officers on armor-and-batallion sand tables. During this time, he learned Chainmail and D&D from some of the original mimeographed and handwritten manuscripts of the games. He has been a roleplaying games buff since the 1970’s, and has illustrated or helped design many RPGs.

and then at the Savannah College of Art and Design, his story work became as popular as his artwork. He has been an uncredited co-plotter or co-writer for many popular properties, bringing jovial and energetic approaches to collaborative work. Many cover-credited novels have followed, too, including the ever-popular Gryphon series, the Winds, Storms, SERRAted Edge, and Owl books with the mighty Mercedes (Misty) Lackey. Born to Run has been hailed as a “romp with a conscience,” and The Black Gryphon has been critically referred to as “A modern classic,” and is in its nineteenth printing.

As a birds-of-prey rehabilitation specialist, he and his wife Misty have gotten over four hundred hawks, owls, falcons and corbies back into the wild from their home-based facilities in Oklahoma. Additionally, Larry is an accomplished race car driver, storm-spotter, volunteer firefighter, world traveler, aviculturist, show host, occasional movie consultant/special effects man, model maker and internet veteran. His biggest movie contribution thus far—though still very minor, he says—is as the Great Eagles advisor for Peter Jackson’s Lord Of the Rings films.

Larry loves standup comedy; genre movies; subcultures; aikido; storms; design; SF TV; odd cars (he owns many, and a few even run); his hawks, cockatoos and owls; history; comic books; architecture; costume; road trips; woodworking; studio scale and hobby scale modelmaking; International Rally and American LeMans Series racing; dirty jokes; club/trance/electronica, synth, experimental, and ambient music; and just plain making people feel good about themselves.

Additionally, Larry sponsors substance abuse rehab patients and he seems to be the “go to guy” for emotional, relationship, and life-direction advice. He is a survivor of many serious illnesses and refuses to be stopped by his health circumstances. Over the years, his rescue work has led to all sorts of injuries (when a paramedic calls a man “hard to kill,” you know a guy’s been around). He’s licensed as a bodyguard and trained in executive protection & extraction and combat driving. As of this writing, he is also just a few months short of his private investigator license.

Larry’s work is in a dozen languages and millions of copies in print, and he’s been a Guest at over 200 conventions worldwide over the last 25 years. BUT—he’s available for work, don’t be bashful about asking. He isn’t ALWAYS off on some adventure. Be bold! Reach him at gryphonking@gmail.com anytime.

His ongoing, everchanging decades-long romance with Mercedes Lackey is legendary. Larry feels equally comfortable around generals, rock stars, fans, firefighters, victims, cops, media and movie makers because, hey, he’s an Okie. Definitely chat with him or ask questions at panels about approaches to your work—nothing makes him happier than helping someone with their avocations, and bringing more beauty into the world.

MERCEDES LACKEY

AUTHOR GUEST OF HONOUR

MERCEDES ENTERED THIS WORLD on June 24, 1950, in Chicago, had a normal childhood and graduated from Purdue University in 1972. During the late 70's she worked as an artist's model and then went into the computer programming field, ending up with American Airlines in Tulsa, Oklahoma. In addition to her fantasy writing, she has written lyrics for and recorded nearly fifty songs for Firebird Arts & Music, a small recording company specializing in science fiction folk music.

"I'm a storyteller; that's what I see as 'my job.' My stories come out of my characters; how those characters would react to the given situation. Maybe that's why I get letters from readers as young as thirteen and as old as sixty-odd. One of the reasons I write song lyrics is because I see songs as a kind of 'story pill'—they reduce a story to the barest essentials or encapsulate a particular crucial moment in time. I frequently will write a lyric when I am attempting to get to the heart of a crucial scene; I find that when I have done so, the scene has become absolutely clear in my mind, and I can write exactly what I wanted to say. Another reason is because of the kind of novels I am writing: that is, fantasy, set in an other-world semi-medieval atmosphere. Music is very important to medieval peoples; bards are the chief news bringers. When I write the 'folk music' of these peoples, I am enriching my whole world, whether I actually use the song in the text or not.

"I began writing out of boredom; I continue out of addiction. I can't 'not' write, and as a result I have no social life! I began writing fantasy because I love it, but I try to construct my fantasy worlds with all the care of a 'high-tech' science fiction writer. I apply the principle of TANSTAAFL ['There ain't no such thing as free lunch', credited to Robert Heinlein) to magic, for instance; in my worlds, magic is paid for, and the cost to the magician is frequently a high one. I try to keep my world as solid and real as possible; people deal with stubborn pumps, bugs in the porridge, and love-lives that refuse to become untangled, right along with invading armies and evil magicians. And I try to make all of my characters, even the 'evil magicians,' something more than flat stereotypes. Even evil magicians get up in the night and look for cookies, sometimes.

"I suppose that in everything I write I try to expound the creed I gave my character Diana Tregarde in Burning Water:

"There's no such thing as 'one, true way'; the only answers worth having are the ones you find for yourself; leave the world better than you found it. Love, freedom, and the chance to do some good—they're the things worth living and dying for, and if you aren't willing to die for the things worth living for, you might as well turn in your membership in the human race."

JUST A FEW QUESTIONS...

Mercedes Lackey

RATHER THAN WRITE ON one topic, I thought I'd answer a few questions that have come up in the past.

You've written in almost every era of fantasy, what brings you back to writing contemporary fantasy and what advantages do you see to writing in a contemporary time frame?

Well in contemporary fantasy there is the challenge of making it fit into the "real world" and the advantage of not having to explain everything to the reader. After all, everyone knows what a 747 and a microwave are.

Epic and historical fantasies have the advantage of being more 'timeless' to readers. What aspects do you believe would make a contemporary fantasy timeless?

By treating it as an historical fantasy. If something is clearly "the flavor of the month" and might not be recognized a few years down the road, embed it in such a way that later readers will "get it."

Much about the writing of fantasy is the author's ability to get the readers to 'suspend disbelief'. What literary devices have you used to get your readers to believe in mythical creatures and feats of magic?

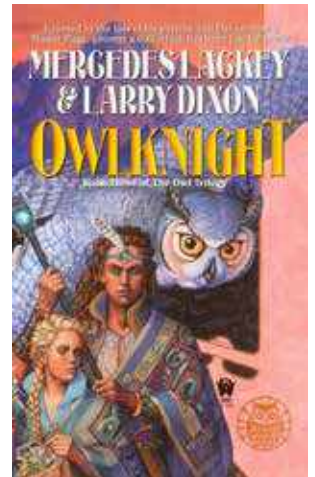

My magic always obeys rules, and generally obeys the rules of physics. It doesn't come out of nothing, it costs to use it, and there is no such thing as free lunch or the cavalry coming over the hill for a last minute rescue—unless the story has been set up in such a way that such a thing is logical and doesn't break the third wall. The more you can get readers to go "yeah, I can see that," the easier it is for them to suspend disbelief.

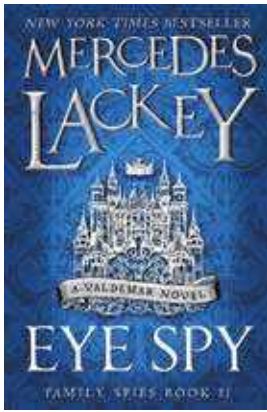

You've broken many fantasy taboos, including stronger genre blending (such as adding a mystery or strong romance line to a fantasy story), writing homosexual protagonists, and writing pagan friendly fiction. Do you see (or plan on) any new groundbreaking trends coming for contemporary fantasy?

Actually I haven't broken any taboos that hadn't already been broken by other, abler writers before me. Marion Zimmer Bradley, C.L. Moore, C.J. Cherryh, Fritz Leiber, Manley Wade Wellman, Thomas Burnett Swan, Roger Zelazney, just to name a few. All of us have had, I think, one thing in common: we were more interested in doing justice to the story we wanted to tell than worrying about breaking taboos. That's certainly all I have ever done, and all I ever plan to do.

Collaborative work is difficult for most writers, yet, you seem to be able to write with a wide variety of other writers, including your spouse. Do you have any secret tips for this type of work? What are the best and worst aspects of writing collaboratively? Are you flexible in your role as a collaborator, or do you tend to do the same tasks when you are collaborating?

For collaborative writing to work well, you have to get along, you have to have similar (but by NO means the same) ideas about things, and one of you has to be the boss with the final say. Generally that's the most senior writer—but the boss also has to recognize his strengths and weaknesses, and when the partner(s) are stronger in one aspect, get out of the way and let the partner do his job. The best aspect is that it is social and that you never have to worry about hitting a wall, because if you do, you just hand it off to your partner. The worst is waiting. All partners generally have other projects on the boil, and waiting is always tough. I've been both junior and senior on collaborative projects, so I guess you could say I am flexible.

Several authors have done television series based on their contemporary work. Do you see this as a possibility for any of your stories? If so, would you say which one(s) you'd like to see serialized?

You have to understand that the odds of something like that happening are equivalent to winning the lottery. Hundreds of books are published every year, a very, very small number get optioned, and of those, an even smaller number make it into production and then into actual broadcast. I'm pretty realistic about this; I think it pretty unlikely. I would say that the most cinematic and easy to translate into any size screen are the contemporaries, but I very much doubt it is going to happen.

Your writing life, as you describe it, is a good deal different from your former working life. What's it like being a self-described 'vampire' and what adjustments have you had to make to co-exist with editors, agents, and others who live in the daytime workday world?

Well actually it's not as hard as it might seem. I catch their early-morning emails before I go to bed, and get the last of their afternoon ones when I get up, usually in time to answer them. I rarely talk to anyone on the phone anymore, and I am pretty sure that is the case for just about everyone these days, not just me.

What is one question you have always wished someone would ask you—and how would you answer that question?

"Would you be willing to option this book for a million dollar movie deal?"

"Yes, please!"

GREG BROADMORE

WRITER, ARTIST AND STUDIO DIRECTOR

IN THE HANDS OF Greg

Broadmore, the imaginary becomes reality. As Studio Director for Weta Workshop's games studio, Greg's artistic visions have been brought to life in a variety of media including Spatial Computing via the visionary Magic Leap One platform, which his team helped shape as a pioneer developer in Spatial Computing. This trailblazing technology allows the wearer to see and interact with virtual make-believe worlds and characters while still seeing the real world around them.

Since the launch of Dr. Grordbort's Invaders, the flagship game for the ML1, Greg has been leading a forward-thinking team of game developers through this new medium of storytelling and world-building. Today, the studio continues to explore new ways of creating interactive experiences at the exciting forefront of realtime technology.

Games are among the most immersive and engaging ways to draw people into stories, allowing us to explore exotic worlds and meet strange characters. The goal of Weta Workshop's game studio is to extend its love of world-building and creation into this exciting medium.

Before delving into games, Greg was best known for creating the world of Dr. Grordbort—a satirical retro-sci-fi world of elaborate rayguns, rocketships and interplanetary colonialism, which he created in 2007. He designed and released a line of high-end, collectible rayguns and merchandise based on the universe of Dr. Grordbort and, in 2009, launched an exhibition, "Dr. Grordbort's Exceptional Exhibition", which toured the world via China, Hong Kong, Germany, France, Switzerland and New Zealand.

Since 2002, Greg has worked at Weta Workshop as a designer, artist/sculptor and writer. He was the lead concept designer on Neill Blomkamp's District 9 and a concept designer and sculptor on Peter Jackson's King Kong,

The Chronicles of Narnia: The Lion, The Witch and the Wardrobe and The Adventures of Tintin.

Greg has also written and illustrated many books, including four based in the world of Dr. Grordbort: Dr. Grordbort's Contrapulatronic Dingus Directory (2008), VICTORY - Scientific Adventure Violence for Young Men and Literate Women (2009), TRIUMPH - Unnecessarily Violent Tales of Science Adventure for the Simple and Unfortunate (2012) and ONSLAUGHT (2014).

NICEST GUY EVER (CONSIDERING HOW MANY PEOPLE HE KILLS)

By Caroline Spector

GEORGE R.R. MARTIN HAS lots of friends. A lot. This is because he's a nice guy and an all-around, first-rate human being.

I first met George in Austin, Texas in 19-mumbilty-mumble-something. My housemates (Howard Waldrop, RU Steinberg, and The Future Husband) decided they wanted to throw a house party during a convention where George was Guest of Honor. (Howard and George have been friends since long before 19 mumbilty-mumble-something. They'd met in 19-mumbilty-mumbilty-mumbilty-mumble-something, bonding over comics. The Brave and the Bold #28 to be exact. George came to the fandom party early.)

By the time I first read him, he'd already published a terrific body of work. Mumbilty-mumble years of work. Good stuff. Mainline-it stuff. The stuff you hope goes on and on because it's that good.

Sadly, I came to the Martin party late.

The first thing I read by George was "Sandkings" published in OMNI Magazine. (Yes. Yes! I said I was late to the party. Very late. Epically late.)

"Sandkings" is set in George's "Thousand Worlds" universe. Other works set there include, A Song for Lyra, Dying of the Light, Nightflyers, and "The Way of Cross and Dragon." Even before his later books (the you-know-which-ones-I'm-talking-about-don't-make-me-say-it books) were published, George was working at an epic scale.

His stand-alone novels, Fevre Dream and Armageddon Rag, each feel as if they are part of much larger universes. For those of you who have never read anything other than his later books (and you know who you are), you owe it to yourself to read them. These terrific novels possess the same qualities all his work does. They take familiar tropes and turn them around in unexpected ways that make perfect sense, even as they toss you about, whip you from side-to-side, and leave you wishing for more. That came out more pervy than expected. I digress.

The party starts and I get all distracted with hosting and whatnot when The Future Husband says, "Hey, let me introduce you to George." Not Mr. Martin, just George. The introduction was made and I'm pretty sure I said something witty like "Ngha gerup gnhaaaaaa." It's a blur. What isn't a blur is how utterly lovely George was. He said, "Hello," ignored my momentary lack of verbal skills, and then proceeded to chat with me until I was able to construct whole English sentences.

This experience will come as no surprise to anyone in the fannish community. George's kindness is well-known. I've seen him put speechless, and not so speechless, fans at ease. I've seen his long-standing and incredibly close relationship with SMOFS the world over. Fandom is his family. You know, the family you get to choose. Unlike those strangers who keep showing up for holidays with weird casseroles featuring candied fruit rind.

And for as many beloved characters as George has killed (and tortured) over the years, he's a very sweet, funny guy. I'd love to regale you with the funny, except, like all great humor, it's of the moment. And if anyone is going to be funny here, it's me.

Flash forward to 2005. A group of us are hanging out at Conestoga 9 where George is Guest of Honor. Later, there's a small group (Howard Waldrop, The Now Husband, Toastmaster Brad Denton and his wife lovely Barbara, Walton Simons, Ken Keller, Terry Matz, and George) who decide to give Brad a little surprise birthday party in Howard's room. It's an impromptu thing cobbled together at the last minute. We get a small performance of The George and Howard Show. Okay, this isn't exactly true. There aren't any small performances of the George and Howard Show.

Anyway, George is, as ever, a delight. This is after A Song of Ice and Fire had become a thing, though not yet THE THING it was going to become, but it's still a thing. We chatted at the party, and I managed not to fangirl again.

The next week, I get an email from George asking if I'd like to pitch a character for Wild Cards. (Now Wild Cards, if you're not familiar with it, is a shared-world science fiction series first published in 1987 that continues in print to this day.) George has been its editor since the beginning. This is a labor of love for him. And, like The Thousand Worlds and A Song of Ice and Fire universes, it's detailed, robust, and a great place to write in. And, because I'm no fool, I said, "Yes. Yes, I would like to pitch."

George liked a couple of my characters and I've been writing in the Wild Cards universe ever since. This is par for the course with George. He likes to give people opportunities. I'm hardly alone in this good fortune. Look around, there are loads of people he's given a hand up.

And though he's a really nice guy, being edited by George can be a singular, and often ego-crushing, experience. He may eviscerate your story, but he does it with love. He may like you, but if you turn in a bad proposal or give him a story that isn't working, he's going to let you know. Annoyingly enough, he's right about this stuff a lot of the time. Dammit.

Because George apparently dislikes being bored, while he was writing all these wonderful novels, stories, and editing Wild Cards, he also edited a wide variety of short story collections, wrote for television, and played a mean triangle in a skiffle band called The Tube Tops. (Just checking to see if you're still paying attention.)

A lot of this may seem like ancient history, but George is far more than just his ASOI&F work, and it would be a shame if all you ever knew of him were those works. (Though heaven knows, that really is plenty.)

And I'd totally call him if I needed help burying a body. Because he's nice that way.

“And for as many beloved characters as George has killed (and tortured) over the years, he's a very sweet, funny guy.”

ROSE MITCHELL

FAN GUEST OF HONOUR

Rose recounts her journey into fandom

I HAD ALWAYS BEEN a reader and had discovered science fiction when I was a teenager and watched SF TV as an adult. Started taking notice of adverts around the traps and decided to trot along to a Star Trek convention. This would be about 1992—it was George Takei; and it was great. Had so much fun, even though I was alone I didn't feel lonely. Talked to lots and lots of folks. Even had drinks in the bar with a group. It was there I picked up lots of flyers for various fan clubs in Melbourne.

How did I get involved in organised fandom? I didn't sit back passively and read and watch. I joined various fan clubs because of the camaraderie. I wanted new friends (because a divorce stole my old ones); these people were welcoming, inviting, generous and fun. I wanted that too. And I had a ball doing it. Playing in a small pond. Many, many of those people are still my friends—my life-long friends and I maintain contact with them.

I moved into general fandom because I have a core belief/value that it is irrelevant what medium science fiction is published in; if it fits the criteria, then it's science fiction. Same with fandom: it really annoys me when the distinction is made between fandoms: Literary or Media. With the onset of the Internet and the popularising of science fiction in mainstream entertainment whether visual or books (because the literati still won't accept genre as Literature—pull po face), then the genre is a legitimate entertainment form. I have been involved with many groups in Melbourne: Austrek (Star Trek), Melbourne Science Fiction Club, national conventions and Worldcons. Does that mean I moved to General Fandom?

I am the President of the Australian Science Fiction Foundation (Assf.org.au). I was involved at committee level on and off through the early 2000s and in 2014 attended the AGM because I recalled ASFF always had really nice afternoon teas, and didn't do much else mind you (now that statement will put the cat amongst the pigeons). Trotted along and they were all on diets or had chronic illnesses so no nice cakes! Got roped back in and became VP I think 2016 and President 2018.

From there I have found that my fannish experience has proven really helpful in my Day Job. Managing dispersed and diverse teams is what you did in a club or convention committee.

I found I liked hanging out: “networking” (which is code for drinking in the bar), going to meals with groups of interesting people, catching up and chatting to lots and lots of people. I used to like working on conventions behind the scenes but am now too old to lug stuff around, stay up all night and turn up the next morning with a hang-over. AussieCon 4 made me jaded. Recently, well, last year when Alan Stewart dragged me along to an Austrek meeting to help him promote CoNZealand that joy reawakened again. Had such a ball and am now going to meetings again. Well, was until Covid-19. I do little things—organise an event, or award presentation etc on behalf of the ASFF. I still enjoy hanging out in the Dealers Room just sitting at a table chatting to people—nearly everybody at a convention will wander into the Dealers Room at least once. I loved doing that when AussieCon 4 was bidding for the Worldcon. Plus, you got to sit down AND other people would bring you food and drink. I’m looking forward to more of that.

A HISTORY OF NZ FANDOM

By Simon Litten

WHILE NEW ZEALANDERS HAVE been reading, creating and watching science fiction for over 140 years, organised fandom in New Zealand didn't start in earnest until the early 1950s with scattered groups around the country organizing local clubs, publishing fanzines, and corresponding with fans overseas. With the 1976 founding of the first national club, the National Association for Science Fiction (NASF) by Wellington resident Frank Macskasy, Jr., national activities really coalesced. NASF pre-dated the first national convention, Wellcon, in 1979.

Clubs and Things

NASF expanded over the following years and by the early 1980s had branches in Wellington, Auckland, Christchurch and Dunedin, and was for 12 years New Zealand's only nationwide science fiction fan organisation. Members in Auckland, Wellington and Dunedin were involved in running national conventions, although none were officially run by NASF, and in many of the fanzines that sprouted up in the late 1970s and early 1980s, as well as amateur press association Aotearapa. NASF was also a motivating force behind the inauguration of a New Zealand Science Fiction fan awards in the late 1980s (these later reappeared as the Sir Julius Vogel Awards), and was the umbrella organisation responsible for the appointing of host sites for national conventions.

At its height in the mid-1980s, NASF had a membership of about 150 and a bimonthly club magazine called Warp, which had the distinction of being the first NZ club magazine to make it to 100 issues. By the mid-1990s, the Auckland and Christchurch branches had folded, although there were still club members in those areas. The Dunedin branch and the Wellington branch continued until the late 1990s.

Debate continues on why NASF died, as well as whether it was officially wound up, but it was largely inactive by the mid-1990s and went into indefinite recess in late 1997. The rise of science fiction as a popular genre in the cinema and television, coupled with easier access to science fiction books, magazines, movie and television series on video and later DVD likely contributed to NASF's demise. Considerable infighting within the Wellington and Christchurch branches may also have contributed, along with an unwieldy National Committee. The Phoenix Science Fiction Society was founded in Wellington specifically as an alternative to what was seen as a moribund branch of NASF, draining many active fans away from NASF. Other factors included the growth of the internet, which made an organised club less relevant. In contrast to when Macskasy formed NASF in 1976, by the late 1990s, New Zealanders could soak themselves in science fiction without any need to meet other people with the same interest.

The next national science fiction club was the New Zealand Doctor Who Fan Club (NZDWFC). The club was founded in 1988 by Scott Walker and Andrew Poulson, and was at its height during Doctor Who's 'wilderness years', during the 1990s and early 2000s, when the programme wasn't being made. Sadly, the club folded in 2009. The club fanzine was Time Space Visualiser (TSV). TSV was first published in 1987 (before the club officially started) and was adopted as the club magazine the following year. It ran for 76 issues over 22 years, with the final issue appearing in 2009.

With the growing popularity of science fiction and fantasy, local clubs sprang up. The oldest still extant is the Upper Hutt Science Fiction Club. The next oldest is Wellington's Phoenix Science Fiction Society, which began in 1989 and was founded by two former NASF members. The club meets monthly and publishes a monthly club magazine. Founded around the same time was the Auckland Science Fiction Modellers Club. Although there was an initial focus on model making, this club later transformed into Stella-Nova and still meets regularly. However, other clubs such as the New Zealand Star Trek club have died with the advent of the internet.

Aotearapa, a pun on Aotearoa (NZ's Māori name) and APA (for amateur press association), began its existence in 1979 and runs in association with New Zealand science fiction fandom. Aotearapa caters primarily—but not exclusively—to science fiction fans. Founded by Greg Hills in 1979, it is New Zealand's only APA, and NZ's longest-running science fiction-related publication. Members have mostly been from New Zealand, although there have been members in the United States, Australia, and the United Kingdom. As with all fan-based works, it hasn't been without its controversies and humorous moments. One member, tired of the often contentious commentary his own commentary produced, circulated blank pages as his contribution one month.

Published bi-monthly, Aotearapa had its heyday in the early 1990s, at which time it would often exceed 180 pages. In decline in recent years, Aotearapa ran for 167 issues before going into hiatus in July 2007. In January 2008 Aotearapa resumed mailing and issue 168 re-emerged in different format, with bi-monthly electronic mailings of pdf and text files replacing the traditional paper and postage format.

Conventions and Expos

The running of national conventions (natcons) in New Zealand began in 1979. The following year the organisers were confident enough in the popularity of a natcon to invite an overseas guest: Merv Binns of Australia. Natcons have been held annually ever since with the exception of 1985 when the WorldCon was held in Melbourne (AussieCon 2) when NZ fandom thought that that event would syphon off too many local fans from a national convention. The conventions are usually held at Easter, which is a four-day weekend, or the Queen's Birthday weekend, which is celebrated on the first Monday of June. This latter date allows for guest sharing with eastern Australian conventions as Queen's Birthday is celebrated there on the second Monday of June (Queensland and Western excepted).

“In recent years, the conventions have mostly been held in one of the two largest cities, Wellington and Auckland, both in the North Island with Rotorua and Taupō conveniently placed between those two cities also taking turns.”

In the early years of the national convention, the four main cities (Auckland, Wellington, Christchurch, and Dunedin) all held the NatCon. In recent years, the conventions have mostly been held in one of the two largest cities, Wellington and Auckland, both in the North Island with Rotorua and Taupō conveniently placed between those two cities also taking turns.

With each national convention effectively starting from scratch a new national body was created to provide some continuity: the Science Fiction and Fantasy Association of New Zealand (SFFANZ). SFFANZ is a non-profit organisation founded in 2002 that aims to coordinate and facilitate science fiction and fantasy-related fan activities within New Zealand.

There are occasionally other science fiction conventions held in New Zealand between national conventions. They were particularly common during the 1980s, when they were used by national convention organising committees for fundraising and as a means for testing their convention organisation. As such, they often took place in the same centres as the following year's national convention.

With the rise of film and television fandom and the decrease in cost of air travel a new type of convention appeared: the Armageddon Expo. Armageddon began in Auckland on the weekend of 2 December 1995, at the Avondale Raceway. In 1997, the expo added a Wellington event. In 1999, Armageddon did its first Melbourne event. Armageddon held events in Australia sporadically over several years but stopped hosting there in 2016. In 2007, the first Christchurch Armageddon event was held; Armageddon has also hosted events in other cities in New Zealand including Hamilton, Manukau, and Dunedin.

Armageddon has evolved from its roots in comics and trading cards to showcase gaming, trading cards, anime, steampunk and memorabilia sales. At each event, there are numerous NZ and overseas comic creators and artists also selling their products.

Fan Funds

Once conventions and a national body had proven their popularity, thoughts turned to a fan fund. The obvious choice was a fund to further relations with Australian fans so the Fan Fund of Australia and New Zealand was set up in 1983 by John Newman (Australia) and Sue Dickie New Zealand (Sue, and her husband Vince, later became the driving force behind the establishment of the Phoenix Science Fiction Society). The first winner was Tom Cardy, then of Dunedin, who attended the 1983 Australian natcon, SynCon 83, in Sydney. That year's administrators were John Newman and Frank Macskasy, Jr.

Fan Awards

As appears to be usual practice, in 1989 NZ fandom began giving fan awards at the national conventions. However, there was no continuity in those awards with each convention doing its own thing. By 2000 the giving of awards had stopped. In 2002 the awards were revamped and reorganised, and since then the Sir Julius Vogel Awards, commonly referred to as the Vogels, have been aimed more at the professional science fiction and fantasy community. At the same time the organisation of the awards changed. These are now formally run by SFFANZ.

The awards are named for Sir Julius Vogel, a prominent New Zealand journalist and politician, who was Premier of New Zealand twice during the 1870s. In 1889 he wrote what is widely (though erroneously) regarded as New Zealand's first science fiction novel, Anno Domini 2000, or, Woman's Destiny. The book, written and published in Great Britain after Vogel had moved from New Zealand, pictured a New Zealand in the year 2000 where most positions of authority were held by women—at the time of writing, a radical proposition. In 2000, New Zealand's Head of State, Governor General, Prime Minister, Chief Justice and Attorney General were all women, as was the CEO of one of the country's largest companies, Telecom (the national telecommunications company).

In 1999 Armageddon invited its first TV/movie guests: Claudia Christian (Babylon 5) and Chase Masterson (Star Trek: Deep Space Nine). Since then, the convention has hosted celebrity guests from the worlds of movies, television shows, animation, cosplay, YouTube, comics and gaming. Event attendees can meet guests, purchase autographs, enjoy photo opportunities and watch panels featuring the guests. Armageddon Expo is one of the largest public conventions held in New Zealand.

Armageddon hosts a variety of stalls run by companies from around NZ and internationally, with merchandise including comics,

Other Fannish Activity

NZ fans have gone on to do the usual fannish things such as launch writing careers e.g. Nalini Singh, with a commercially successful string of paranormal romance novels; and Lee Murray, who incorporates Māori mythology into her science fiction, fantasy and horror stories. Or, creating publishing houses such as Steam Press, Paper Road Press and Martian Way Press. One fan, Nigel Rowe, in 1983 wrote and published a history of NZ fandom: it was titled Timeless Sands: History of Science Fiction Fandom in New Zealand Vol. 1. (Auckland: Martian Way Press).

Other fans got involved in television or films. Notable examples are: Peter Jackson, who turned a love of science fiction into a movie business; and Richard Taylor, who turned a love of model making into a special effects business. But perhaps the least well-known was a young playwright-cum-musician who turned a celebration of 1950s science fiction into possibly the biggest cult stage show and film to date: Richard O'Brien and The Rocky Horror [Picture] Show. It is worthy of note that a former Prime Minister of New Zealand, Sir Robert Muldoon, played the Narrator in a 1986 local stage production and also presented Friday Night Frights—horror movies on late evening TV. Richard O'Brien now has a statue of himself as Riff Raff on the site of the former Embassy Cinema, where he would often attend the Late Night Double Feature Picture Show. Now that is success as a fan!

ABOUT DUFF

DOWN UNDER FAN FUND

DUFF, the Down Under Fan Fund, was created by John Foyster in 1970 as a means of increasing the face-to-face communication between science fiction fans in Australia and New Zealand, and North America. It was based on an earlier fan fund called TAFF, which did the same for fans in Europe and North America. Other fan funds have spun off from these two, all in the name of promoting a better understanding of worldwide fandom.

Many excellent trip reports are still available in paper form and can often be obtained at TAFF/DUFF auctions, a regular feature of the Worldcon and many large conventions as well as specialty cons like Corflu (the Fanzine Fans convention) and Potlatch.

WHAT DUFF WINNERS DO AND HOW TO SUPPORT THEM

By Paul Weimer

What happens on a DUFF trip?

You meet other fans from the places you're visiting, let them know more about you and your fandom, and enable fans at home to vicariously share in your travels! This tends to involve helping out as much as possible at conventions, which can include taking part in the programme, possibly presenting an award if there's an award ceremony, helping with fundraising for future DUFF trips, and generally being as visible and friendly as you can. Before and/or after the convention, travelling to meet other fans in different places is expected; the winner will usually plan some extra time for this, taking in specific events where possible.

On my own DUFF trip in 2017, I not only went to Lexicon in New Zealand and Continuum in Melbourne, but I met a variety of fans and genre people in New Zealand, Melbourne, Canberra and beyond.

What is expected of the winner after the trip?

After the trip, the winner will become the new North American DUFF administrator. It will be their duty to raise and manage DUFF's money in North America, gather and count the North American votes for the next two races and take the lead role in administering the next trip to North America. (This is not as hard as it sounds, since previous administrators are generally available to help and advise.) During this time, the administrator should ideally also be writing a report of their trip, to publish and sell to raise additional money for the fund.

In that regard, in 2017, I wrote my report, "What I did on my Summer Vacation: The 2017 Down Under Fan Fund Report" which you can still buy at my website. I also have participated in a number of auctions at various cons, gotten people like Seanan McGuire to donate signed merchandise, and researched various fan organizations to obtain donations. By all of these methods, I have helped strengthen and replenish the fund. These are the sorts of activities my successor should also do.

Person X is standing. There's no way I could beat them. What should I do?

One of the important fundraising methods for DUFF is the money people pay to vote. To get people to vote there needs to be a strong field of candidates. The fund needs people to stand and then to do their best to win by encouraging more votes, since this all contributes to fundraising. Standing as a candidate can be a lot of fun even if you don't win, and good practice for standing again (by which time you might be the favourite). However, do make sure you're prepared to make the trip: there's always the chance of an upset victory!

But isn't it just a popularity contest?

Being popular and well-known throughout SF fandom certainly helps, but that might not be enough to win by itself. In the past very popular candidates have been beaten by candidates who put a lot of work into their campaigns, including active support from their nominators, which encouraged a lot more people to vote. And candidates can become more popular as a result of standing for DUFF.

ABOUT GUFF

GET UP-AND-OVER / GOING UNDER FAN FUND

THE GET UP-AND-OVER FAN Fund or Going Under Fan Fund (its title depends on your point of view) was modelled on DUFF and TAFF. It was formed in 1979 by Leigh Edmonds and Dave Langford, on an idea by Chris Priest.

In Chris's words: "During the first weekend I was in Australia there was a con, and during this I was struck by one of my occasional IDEAS. We've had TAFF for years, in which, as everyone in fandom knows, a fannish visit from or to Britain or America is paid for by fannish charity ... and more recently DUFF has been in existence, in which fannish visits between America and Australia are arranged. It suddenly occurred to me that it was time the third side of the triangle was closed, and after a few minutes of non-sober reflection in the bar, GUFF was created by unanimous consent."

Dave Langford noted in an issue of Ansible: "Chris has written elsewhere about how he came back from his 1977 Australian trip full of fannish goodwill, Fosters, and eagerness to forge new bonds with antipodean fandom—provided only that someone else did the work. Thus, one fine summer morning in 1978, I received his letter explaining that against titanic odds I had won the coveted position of First European GUFF Administrator. Resistance, Chris conveyed, was useless. Leigh Edmonds was already in charge of this new fan fund's Australian end. The juggernaut had begun to move."

Edmonds (1979) and Langford (1979), have acted as administrators without ever winning the Fund. Current administrators are Marcin Klak (Poland, winner 2018) and Simon Litten (New Zealand, winner 2019). The current Going Under delegate is Alison Scott.

ALISON SCOTT

ALISON SCOTT HAS BEEN attending conventions since 1984 and running them since 1986. She's also a fan writer, editor and artist. As a member of the Plokta cabal she has won the Best Fanzine Hugo twice, and has won awards for her fan art as well as for her fanzines.

She has chaired the Eastercon twice, in 1995 before starting a family, and in 2018 when her youngest child was 17. In between she was slacking, but found time to help run the Fan Room at the 2005 Glasgow Worldcon and the Fan Village at Loncon 3, the 2014 Worldcon. She's very worried that she'll be expected to run a Fan Planet in 2024.

When not engaged in fanac, she runs a small business selling t-shirts, pin badges and other merchandise with sf, nerdy and political themes. She offsets the dodgy sustainability of all this tat by thinking (and blogging) about sustainable living.

At conventions she can often be found exercising careful quality control on the real ale deep into the night, and has now perfected a scheme for staying up entirely too late and nevertheless getting up for breakfast. She's irrepresible on panels and is looking forward to shifting her life forward by 11 hours to take a full, if virtual part, in CoNZeland.

ALONE TOGETHER AT THE EDGE OF THE WORLD

by Andi C. Buchanan

IN SO MUCH SCIENCE fiction—and apparently in the minds of some billionaires—New Zealand is the place at the edge of the map where you survive the apocalypse. Climate change is not to be fought but can somehow be run from, hidden from in bunkers. Scarily prescient pandemics? You're safe from infection in New Zealand. Nuclear war? We're just hanging out here making gliders that fly with the power of our minds.

Is this how writers from Aotearoa New Zealand imagine things? Yes, and no. The idea of people being safer from some risks in a country with no land borders is not founded on nothing (I am writing this during an unfolding pandemic, so you'll forgive me if I'm hesitant to make too definitive statements) and it's captured the imagination of as many local writers as international. But they also see a more active and collective response, with—often internationally connected—characters working together to fight the growing destruction of climate change, to pick up the pieces post disaster, or to rebuild a new world.

That international-connectedness is key in Octavia Cade's The Stone Wētā (Paper Road Press, 2020), which tells the story of a network of scientists, known to each other by code names, who smuggle scientific data throughout—and beyond—the world, ensuring it survives destruction and falsification by government interests. It is a thriller which imagines people—and in this case specifically women—not as victims or survivors of climate change, but as those who can collectively resist it.

Sodden Downstream by Brannavan Gnanalingam (Lawrence & Gibson, 2018) is both international and powerfully local in its outlook, telling the story of a Tamil refugee who needs to get to work from her home in the Hutt Valley to her cleaning job in central Wellington during a disruptive storm. Set during one of the 100-year events that seem to be becoming increasingly common, it depicts both setbacks and community support. I want to say the events play out as a microcosm of climate change, but that's not quite true because for many of us climate change will be—and already is—the increasing frequency and severity of events like this.

Where We Land by Tim Jones (Cuba Press, 2019) also centres the experience of a refugee—in this case specifically a climate change refugee. Like Gnanalingham, Jones illustrates the seemingly small actions that have large impacts, following both Nasimul, a refugee who survives the deliberate sinking of his boat, and Donna, a new member of the shore patrol who finds herself having to choose between following orders or saving another.

In Jeff Murray's Melt (Mary Egan Publishing, 2019), which follows a woman advocating for the community of a small (imaginary) Pacific island devastatingly damaged by climate change, the outlook is similarly international. The story explores New Zealand's place among the major players (India, China, and the US) as the Antarctic gets developed.

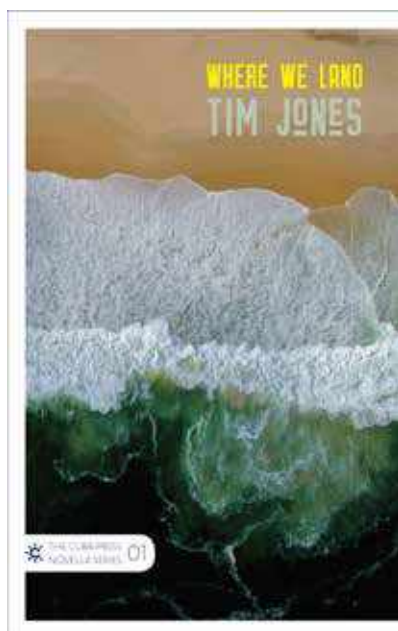

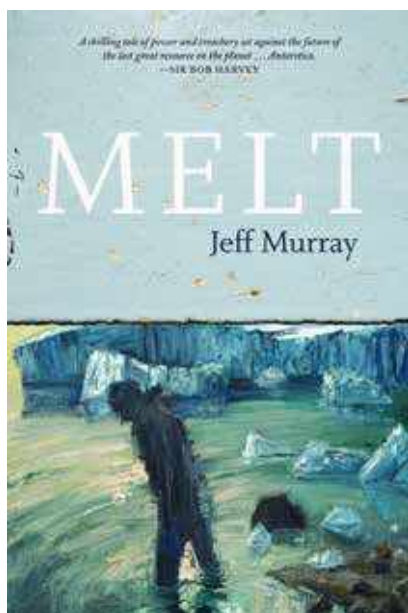

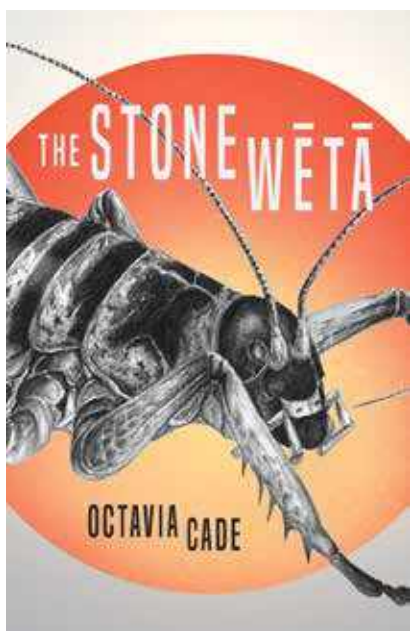

In Octavia Cade's shorter work, the actions of scientists are again a focus. Her ongoing series of short stories, including Portobello Blind in the Defying Doomsday anthology (ed. Tsana Dolichva and Holly Kench, Twelfth Planet Press 2016) and "The Feather Wall," portrays a world in which conservation scientists on outlying islands are the only survivors of a devastating (and now scarily prescient) pandemic. In this case, isolation does ensure survival—though an isolation far greater than one would find on the main islands of New Zealand—but the focus is on the preservation efforts of those survivors, and the continued importance of their work as scientists. Parallels are drawn between the near-extinction of the human race and that of the kākāpo—with the implication that both are devastating losses, but losses from which some level of recovery may be possible.

Set much further in the future, and after catastrophically destructive climate change, is Lawrence Patchett's The Burning River (VUP, 2019). In some ways it is more isolated than the other work discussed here; if the telecommunications technology of the twenty-first century exists anywhere in the world, it is not known to those in the story. And yet it is a story built around connections—between individuals, but also to the land, and to one's lineage or whakapapa.

I write this in times that feel unprecedented. New Zealand's borders are—sadly but necessarily—mostly closed. These stories of climate change and other disasters told by New Zealand authors make no attempt to separate us from the wider world—in fact, many focus on international connections. The waters that surround us are sometimes a blessing and sometimes a curse but the focus is on interconnectedness, solidarity, and the choices we make to help each other—all of which may prove far more essential to our survival than geology.

Andi C. Buchanan is a writer and editor based near Wellington, Aotearoa New Zealand. Their recent novella, From A Shadow Grave uses a historical murder as a launching point into narratives of multiple possible futures, deploying urban fantasy, historical fiction, time travel and more. Andi's short fiction is published in Fireside, Apex, Kaleidotrope, Glittership, and more—with their story "Girls Who Do Not Drown" winning a 2019 Sir Julius Vogel Award in the Short Story category. THE DAVID A KYLE BIG HEART AWARD

THE FIRST BIG HEART Award was given to E.E. “Doc” Smith in 1959 in memory of E. Everett Evans. It has been given each year since at the World Science Fiction Convention to a fan or professional who has contributed greatly of time and effort for the betterment of the Science Fiction Community. The purpose of the Award is to honor fans or pros that have gone out of their way to make new fans feel welcome, and have been very supportive of the ideals and values of our community, but have not been given the recognition they so richly deserve.

The Big Heart Award was administered by Forrest J. Ackerman for forty years until the year 2000. Mr. Ackerman then stepped down and passed the administration of the Award to David A. Kyle, who ably continued the tradition. In 2006 the Award was given to Mr. Ackerman and renamed the Forrest J. Ackerman Big Heart Award.

In 2012 at Chicon 7, David Kyle gathered a small group of fans together and asked them to assume the administration of the Award when he determined that he could no longer do so. When Mr. Kyle passed away in 2016, Steve and Sue Francis and the group assumed the responsibility of candidate selection and presentation of the Award at the Worldcon each year.

David Kyle will always be remembered as one of the original members of Science Fiction Fandom dating back to the early 1930s. To honor him and his work as the Big Heart Award administrator, the title of the Award was changed to the “DAVID A. KYLE BIG HEART AWARD” and was announced at Worldcon 76 in San Jose, California.

To date, 74 people have received the Award and the recognition that goes with it.

“The Wellington waterfront has been my refuge during the lockdown. I live close by, so my morning walks have been a saving grace: when the harbour is so misty you can hardly see anything; or when the clouds are piled high and the sun can just manage to shine through and you can see Matiu/Somes Island. Of course there’s the occasional social-distancing seagull. And even Max Patte’s sculpture, Solace in the Wind, has kept to the rules.”

EXHIBITS

“ In addition to the Dealers Hall, Art Show, and its very own colossal squid, the CoNZealand Exhibit Hall will feature an array of special displays, several of them depicting the science fiction and fantasy genre in New Zealand, and the fans who embrace it. Our Division invites you to visit our Exhibits Hall, to learn and laugh and share the full experience. Here is a taste of what awaits you.”

—Spike, Exhibits Division Head

EARLY, ORGANIZED NEW ZEALAND SF fandom features two fans who quite literally blazed a trail overseas promoting the virtues of Kiwi fandom and their friendly compatriots. Mike Hinge deserves to go first, because he was the first New Zealander to attend a Worldcon (Solacon in 1958), fully representing his homeland. His subsequent nomination in 1973 for a Professional Artist Hugo was also a significant reflection on his chosen craft.

Mervyn Barrett, on the other hand, was an active fan in three different countries throughout the 50s, 60s and 70s. He also tried to organize the first convention in Hong Kong without success. These singular achievements ensured he was a well traveled and popular fan.

* The Exhibit Hall colossal squid is the creation of Teddy Harvia. Teddy Harvia is an anagram of David Thayer. Teddy is a Hugo Award-winning cartoonist who has been creating art for publication since 1967. His best-known characters are the cute alien WingNuts. His other characters include anthropomorphic echidnas, sabertooths, opuntia, stars, flamingos, BEMs, spots, and robots. He has been contributing art to fan publications since 1977. He was given the Rotsler Award in 2015 for his lifetime of artistic contributions to fandom. David was Head of Publications for LoneStarCon2, the 1997 Texas Worldcon, and co-chair for the 2003 ConCancun Worldcon bid. He lives with wife Diana and a small tribe of felines in Dallas, Texas.

MIKE HINGE

By Jane Frank

IN 2001 I WAS introduced to the wonderfully psychedelic, futuristic, and surreal world of New Zealander Mike Hinge. One of his long-time friends in Philadelphia fandom told me that Mike needed my help.

I wasn't familiar with his name. During our first phone conversation, Mike agreed to let me represent him. He told me he had "stacks" of artworks, and he had never sold one. I told him I would do my best to get him his first sale.

Hinge had been involved in projects that innovatively blended high tech and art, ranging from imaginative typography to a cryobionic unit designed for the film 2001: A Space Odyssey. Mike was a creative experimentalist – everything he saw or touched, he wanted to keep, examine closely, then turn into something else. Nothing was off limits.

Mike worked in media including "found objects" that he made into (sometimes) kinetic sculptures. When painting, he worked colorfully, usually on poster board, in a variety of styles and media—gouache, acrylics, marker ink, automotive enamels—frequently producing works in full poster size (30" x 40") with a distinctive graphic style and vivid palette.

His psychedelic style distinguished him from other science fiction illustrators of his generation as well as contributing to our thinking of him as an American artist, although he was proud of his New Zealand roots.

When he moved to New York City, in 1966, unsurprisingly he focused on high tech, space, and robots. He drew the attention of artist, writer and publisher Jim Steranko, who gave him work in his Mediascene and published a portfolio of his work, The Mike Hinge

Graphic representations of women, idealized and "hyped" so as to be both unforgettable and visually arresting, were Hinge's specialty.

"Artwork Copyright © The Estate of Mike Hinge, used with the kind permission of Worlds of Wonder Art LLC"

Experience, and a series of eight posters collectively titled The Mike Hinge Electric Poster Trip.

Despite successes through the 1960s and 1970s, including illustrations (covers as well as interiors) for paperbacks and magazines Analog, Fantastic, Amazing, and Time, Mike often was in financial difficulty.

He lived in New York, working for ad agencies, and ultimately landed in suburban Philadelphia, Pennsylvania. Mike's obsession with hanging on to every scrap of paper he ever drew on became a problem. He was going to be evicted if he didn't clear his apartment (the fire marshall deemed it a fire trap).

Mike sent me 20 large paintings, along with his impressive bio. And because of that history, Mike told me, he wanted "top dollar." He wanted me to sell his art for thousands of dollars more than anyone would pay. In the two years I represented him, I begged him to allow me to lower his prices. He was starving, he was practically destitute. He refused.

Only after his death, in 2003, was I able to make sales for him, at prices the market would bear. I'm not sure if he would have been thrilled by the news, or absolutely furious.

MERVYN BARRETT

03/10/1932–16/01/2019

co-founder of the NZ National SF Convention

Editor of Focus and Out of Focus, and contributor to many other zines.

by Nigel Rowe

MERVYN BARRETT WAS A friend to a good many people. It is a true testament that his house was a crucial stopping off point for almost everyone of an SF persuasion, including professional writers and fans who were visiting New Zealand. Indeed several purposefully included Wellington on their travels simply to hang out with Merv.

Mervyn was an active, integral part of the fannish scene across three countries for over sixty years. Starting as a young New Zealand fan publishing zines in the early 1950's, founding and hosting the Wellington SF Circle in Wellington, before branching out to live in Melbourne, Australia, and later, London. Always on the move to bigger cities was Merv. Once in New Zealand after approaching visiting satirist and famous performer, Stan Freberg for an autograph, he was startled to discover that Stan knew Bill Rotsler, when Stan recognized a Rotsler zine Mervyn happened to be holding!

For many years Mervyn and his wife Janet were the only active New Zealand fans regularly attending Worldcons and other cons overseas and he became fast friends with many of the people he met. Especially if their common interests included not only SF, but Jazz and films, his other passions. Mervyn and John Brosnan were great mates in London for a time, and raised hell together during the “Ratfandom” era. It was a long way from the tranquil and genteel times of the Wellington SF Circle.

In 1979 he was the co-organizer and founder of New Zealand's first national SF con, Wellcon '79. And not only did 2019 host the 40th National NZ SF Con continuing this legacy, but Mervyn was pleased to learn before he passed, Wellington would also host a year later, the 2020 Worldcon, a long held dream of many fans in New Zealand. In mid January 2019 he succumbed to the lingering impacts of a second stroke that had struck several months earlier. Sadly he will not now be able to help play a role in making Wellington the center of SF fandom once more, but he will attend in the cherished and thankful memories of those who knew him.

2020 HUGO, ASTOUNDING, AND LODESTAR AWARD FINALISTS

THE HUGO AWARDS, FIRST presented in 1953 and presented annually since 1955, are science fiction's most prestigious award. The Hugo Awards are voted on by members of the World Science Fiction Convention ("Worldcon"), which is also responsible for administering them.

The Astounding Award for Best New Writer is currently administered by WSFS and the results are announced at the Hugo Award ceremony. However, the Astounding is awarded by Dell Magazines, not by WSFS.

"Hugo Award" and The Hugo Award Logo are service marks of the World Science Fiction Society, an unincorporated literary society.

BEST NOVEL

The City in the Middle of the Night*, by Charlie Jane Anders (Tor; Titan)

In The City in the Middle of the Night, a young girl is banished into permanent darkness, but she survives by befriending the creatures who live there.

January is a tidally locked world, with a permanent day side and night side, and the human colonists live in the thin strip of twilight between the two extremes. Only one person has ever gone into the night and lived: Sophie, a shy girl from the dark side of town.

Gideon the Ninth*, by Tamsyn Muir (Tor.com Publishing)

The Emperor needs necromancers. The Ninth Necromancer needs a swordswoman.

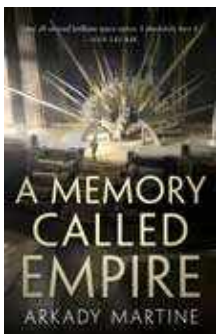

Gideon has a sword, some dirty magazines, and no more time for undead nonsense.

Tamsyn Muir's Gideon the Ninth unveils a solar system of swordplay, cut-throat politics, and lesbian necromancers. Her characters leap off the page, as skillfully animated as arcane revenants. The result is a heart-pounding epic science fantasy.

The Light Brigade*, by Kameron Hurley (Saga; Angry Robot UK)

The Light Brigade: it's what soldiers fighting the war against Mars call the ones who come back...different. Grunts in the corporate corps get busted down into light to travel to and from interplanetary battlefronts. Everyone is changed by what the corps must do in order to break them down into light. Those who survive learn to stick to the mission brief—no matter what actually happens during combat.

A Memory Called Empire*, by Arkady Martine (Tor; Tor UK)

Ambassador Mahit Dzmare arrives in the center of the multi-system Teixcalaanli Empire only to discover that her predecessor has died. Now, Mahit must discover who is behind the murder, rescue herself, and save her Station from Teixcalaan's unceasing expansion—all while navigating an alien culture that is all too seductive, engaging in intrigues of her own, and hiding a deadly technological secret—one that might spell the end of her Station and her way of life—or rescue it from annihilation.

Middlegame*, by Seanan McGuire (Tor.com Publishing)

Roger and Dodger aren't exactly human, though they don't realise it. They aren't exactly gods, either. Not entirely. Not yet.

Meet Reed, skilled in the alchemical arts like his progenitor before him. Reed created Dodger and her brother. He's not their father. Not quite. But he has a plan: to raise the twins to the highest power, to ascend with them and claim their authority as his own.

Godhood is attainable. Pray it isn't attained.

The Ten Thousand Doors of January*, by Alix E. Harrow (Redhook; Orbit UK)

In a sprawling mansion filled with peculiar treasures, January Scaller is a curiosity herself. As the ward of the wealthy Mr. Locke, she feels little different from the artifacts that decorate the halls: carefully maintained, largely ignored, and utterly out of place.

Then she finds a strange book. A book that carries the scent of other worlds, and tells a tale of secret doors, of love, adventure and danger. Each page reveals impossible truths about the world and January discovers a story increasingly entwined with her own.

BEST NOVELLA

“Anxiety Is the Dizziness of Freedom”, by Ted Chiang (Exhalation (Borzoi/Alfred A. Knopf; Picador))

An alien scientist makes a shocking discovery with ramifications not just for his own people, but for all of reality.

The Deep*, by Rivers Solomon, with Daveed Diggs, William Hutson & Jonathan Snipes (Saga Press/Gallery)

The water-breathing descendants of African slave women tossed overboard have built their own underwater society—and must reclaim the memories of their past to shape their future in this brilliantly imaginative novella inspired by the Hugo Award-nominated song “The Deep” from Daveed Diggs’s rap group clipping.

The Haunting of Tram Car 015*, by P. Djèlí Clark (Tor.com Publishing)

Cairo, 1912: The case started as a simple one for the Ministry of Alchemy, Enchantments and Supernatural Entities—handling a possessed tram car.

Soon, however, Agent Hamed Nasr and his new partner Agent Onsi Youssef are exposed to a new side of Cairo stirring with suffragettes, secret societies, and sentient automatons in a race against time to protect the city from an encroaching danger that crosses the line between the magical and the mundane.

In an Absent Dream*, by Seanan McGuire (Tor.com Publishing)

A stand-alone fantasy tale from Seanan McGuire’s Alex award-winning Wayward Children series, which began in the Alex, Hugo, Nebula, and Locus Award-winning, World Fantasy Award finalist, Tiptree Honor List Every Heart a Doorway.

This Is How You Lose the Time War*, by Amal El-Mohtar and Max Gladstone (Saga Press; Jo Fletcher Books)

Among the ashes of a dying world, an agent of the Commandment finds a letter. It reads: Burn before reading.

Thus begins an unlikely correspondence between two rival agents hellbent on securing the best possible future for their warring factions. Now, what began as a taunt, a battlefield boast, becomes something more. Something epic. Something romantic. Something that could change the past and the future.

To Be Taught, If Fortunate*, by Becky Chambers (Harper Voyager; Hodder & Stoughton)

If you read nothing else we’ve sent home, please at least read this. I ask knowing full well that this request is antithetical to what I believe in my heart of hearts. Our mission reports contain our science, and the science is by far the most important thing here. My crew and I are a secondary concern. Tertiary, even.

But all the same, we do have a lot riding on someone picking this up.

BEST NOVELETTE

“The Archonology of Love”, by Caroline M. Yoachim (Lightspeed, April 2019)

This is a love story, the last of a series of moments when we meet.

Saki Jones leaned into the viewport window until her nose nearly touched the glass, staring at the colony planet below. New Mars. From this distance, she could pretend that things were going according to plan—that M.J. was waiting for her in one of the domed cities.

“Away With the Wolves”, by Sarah Gailey (Uncanny Magazine: Disabled People Destroy Fantasy Special Issue, September/October 2019)

When I wake, I am curled up as small as a seed. My hands are tucked between my knees, my face pressed into sweet loam. Morning dew blankets my skin like thick, glistening fur. There is a small potato beetle, yellow with black stripes, on my shoulder. I don't doubt that there are more elsewhere, but I can't feel the tickle of tiny feet picking their way across my flesh.

“The Blur in the Corner of Your Eye”, by Sarah Pinsker (Uncanny Magazine, July-August 2019)

It was a nice enough cabin, if Zanna ignored the dead wasps. Their bodies were in the bedroom, all over the quilt and the floor, so she'd sleep in the living room until they ascertained whether there was a live wasp problem as well as a dead one. If she ignored the wasps, it was lovely.

Emergency Skin*, by N.K. Jemisin (Forward Collection (Amazon))

An explorer returns to gather information from a climate-ravaged Earth that his ancestors, and others among the planet's finest, fled centuries ago. The mission comes with a warning: a graveyard world awaits him. But so do those left behind—hopeless and unbeautiful wastes of humanity who should have died out ages ago. After all this time, there's no telling how they've devolved. Steel yourself, soldier. Get in. Get out. And try not to stare.

“For He Can Creep”, by Siobhan Carroll (Tor.com, 10 July 2019)

Nineteenth century poet Christopher Smart has been committed to St. Luke's Hospital for Lunatics believing God has commissioned him to write The Divine Poem. But years earlier, he made a bargain with Satan and the devil has come to collect his due—a poem that will bring about the apocalypse.

Saving Smart's soul, and the rest of the world, falls to Jeffery, the poet's demon-fighting cat and a creature of cunning Satan would be a fool to underestimate...

“Omphalos”, by Ted Chiang (Exhalation (Borzoi/Alfred A. Knopf; Picador))

BEST SHORT STORY

“And Now His Lordship Is Laughing”, by Shiv Ramdas

(Strange Horizons, 9 September 2019)

When the first breeze of the morning whistles over the green tips of the paddy-stalks to kiss the tawny jute thatching of the bungalow roof, Apa is already out on the verandah. It’s still dark but that doesn’t matter, it’s been more than twoscore years since she’s needed light to work by. All she needs is the jute and her tools. Needle and twine, knife and lime, all have their place and in Apa’s hands that place is to give form to thought.

“As the Last I May Know”, by S.L. Huang

(Tor.com, 23 October 2019)

A growing crowd of protesters trudged doggedly through the flurrying snow, bundled up into roundness against the cold until they resembled determined beetles. Back and forth they went, marching in a wobbly loop, their heads down against the wind but their voices strident as they fell into a chant...

“Blood Is Another Word for Hunger”, by Rivers Solomon

(Tor.com, 24 July 2019)

Anger is an energy. A young girl, a slave in the South, is presented with a moment where she can grasp for freedom, for change, for life. She grabs it with both hands, fiercely and intensely, and the spirit world is shaken.

“A Catalog of Storms”, by Fran Wilde

(Uncanny Magazine, January/February 2019)

The wind’s moving fast again. The weathermen lean into it, letting it wear away at them until they turn to rain and cloud.

“Look there, Sila.” Mumma points as she grips my shoulder.

Her arthritis-crooked hand shakes. Her cuticles are pale red from washwater. Her finger makes an arc against the sky that ends at the dark shadows on the cliffs.

“Do Not Look Back, My Lion”, by Alix E. Harrow

(Beneath Ceaseless Skies, January 2019)

Eefa has been a good husband, she knows, but now she is running.

She’s kept their hearth warm and their home clean. She’s prayed each dawn and dusk at the twin temples of Ukhel and Idral, serene and pious as a dove. She’s sent her wife off to war a thousand fucking times, lining the streets with the other husbands and pretending to weep with pride rather than terror.

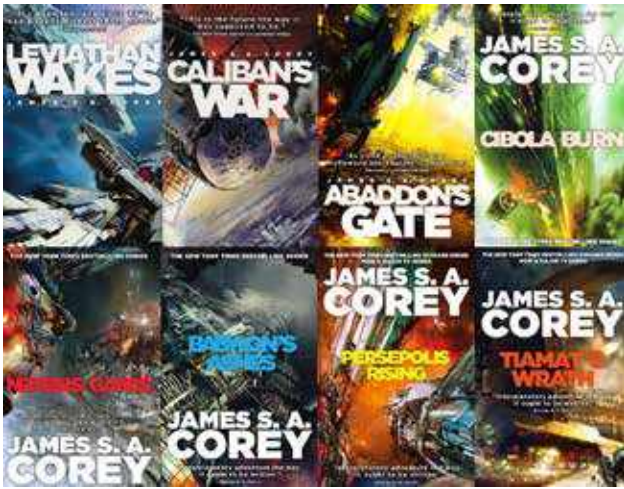

“Ten Excerpts from an Annotated Bibliography on the Cannibal Women of Ratnabar Island”, by Nibedita Sen

(Nightmare Magazine, May 2019)

1. Clifton, Astrid. “The Day the Sea Ran Red.” Uncontacted Peoples of the World. Routledge Press, 1965, pp. 71-98.

“There are few tales as tragic as that of the denizens of Ratnabar Island. When a British expedition made landfall on its shores in 1891, they did so armed to the teeth, braced for the same hostile reception other indigenous peoples of the Andamans had given them. What they found, instead, was a primitive hunter-gatherer community composed almost entirely of women and children. [. . .]

BEST RELATED WORK

Becoming Superman: My Journey from Poverty to Hollywood*, by J. Michael Straczynski (Harper Voyager US)

In this dazzling memoir, the acclaimed writer behind Babylon 5, Sense8, Clint Eastwood's Changeling and Marvel's Thor reveals how the power of creativity and imagination enabled him to overcome the horrors of his youth and a dysfunctional family haunted by madness, murder and a terrible secret.

Joanna Russ*, by Gwyneth Jones (University of Illinois Press (Modern Masters of Science Fiction))

Joanna Russ believed science fiction was the ideal genre for expressing radical thought. Her outstanding novels and stories, essays and criticism helped shape the field and exercise a powerful influence in SF and feminist literary studies today. Author and critic Gwyneth Jones offers a comprehensive appraisal of Russ's work.

The Lady from the Black Lagoon: Hollywood Monsters and the Lost Legacy of Milicent Patrick*, by Mallory O'Meara (Hanover Square)

This book uncovers the legacy of Milicent Patrick—the only woman to create one of Hollywood's classic movie monsters. A true-life detective story and a celebration of a forgotten trailblazer, it establishes Patrick in her rightful place in history while calling out a culture where little has changed since.

The Pleasant Profession of Robert A. Heinlein*, by Farah Mendlesohn (Unbound)

A major new critical study of the writings of a giant of the SF genre by a Hugo award-winning critic and historian.

“2019 John W. Campbell Award Acceptance Speech”, by Jeannette Ng

“John W. Campbell, for whom this award was named, was a fascist. Through his editorial control of Astounding Science Fiction, he is responsible for setting a tone of science fiction that still haunts the genre to this day. Sterile. Male. White. Exalting in the ambitions of imperialists and colonisers, settlers and industrialists. Yes, I am aware there are exceptions.

But these bones, we have grown wonderful, ramshackle genre, wilder and stranger than his mind could imagine or allow....”

Worlds of Ursula K. Le Guin*, produced and directed by Arwen Curry

Produced with Le Guin's participation over the course of a decade, Worlds of Ursula K. Le Guin is a journey through the groundbreaking writer's career and her worlds, both real and fantastic. The intimate film features stunning animation and reflections by luminaries including Margaret Atwood, Neil Gaiman, Vonda McIntyre, Samuel R. Delany, David Mitchell, Michael Chabon, and more.

BEST GRAPHIC STORY

Die, Volume 1: Fantasy Heartbreaker*, by Kieron Gillen and Stephanie Hans, letters by Clayton Cowles (Image)

Six forty-somethings are forced to return to the world they were dragged into as teenagers. A notably bleak deconstruction of portal fantasies, with adults facing how their lives have gone awry in a setting constructed from all the elements that went into the modern role-playing game. In short: “goth Jumanji”.

LaGuardia*, written by Nnedi Okorafor, art by Tana Ford, colours by James Devlin (Berger Books; Dark Horse)

In an alternate world where aliens have integrated with society, pregnant Nigerian-American doctor Future Nwafor Chukwuebuka has just smuggled an illegal alien plant named Letme Live through LaGuardia International and Interstellar Airport... and that's not the only thing she's hiding.

Monstress, Volume 4: The Chosen*, written by Marjorie Liu, art by Sana Takeda (Image)

Maika and Corvin make their way through a warped and lethal land in search of Kippa, who is faced with her own terrible monsters. But when Maika comes face-to-face with a stranger from her deep past, startling truths are uncovered, and at the center of it all lurks a dangerous conspiracy that threatens the Known World. Maika is finally close to getting all the answers she ever wanted, but at what price? With war on the horizon—a war no one wants to stop—whose side will Maika choose?

Mooncakes*, by Wendy Xu and Suzanne Walker, letters by Joamette Gil (Oni Press; Lion Forge)

One fateful night, teen witch Nova Huang follows reports of a white wolf in the woods and discovers her childhood crush—werewolf Tam Lang, battling a horse demon. Now, against the background of a slowly rekindling romance, Tam and Nova must investigate the dark supernatural forces eager to claim wolf magic for evil.

Strange Horizons

Vanessa Rose Phin, Catherine Krahe, AJ Odasso, Dan Hartland, Joyce Chng, Dante Luiz and the Strange Horizons staff

Strange Horizons is a free weekly webzine with a global perspective. We were founded in 2000 with the intent to open publication opportunities to new and marginalized writers. In 2019, we published a million words of speculative fiction, poetry, reviews, and essays, including special issues on Nigerian and Brazilian SFF.

Uncanny Magazine

Editors-in-chief Lynne M. Thomas and Michael Damian Thomas, nonfiction/managing editor Michi Trota, managing editor Chimedum Ohaegbu, podcast producers Erika Ensign and Steven Schapansky

Four-time Hugo Award-winning Uncanny Magazine is an online magazine featuring passionate SF/F fiction and poetry, gorgeous prose, provocative nonfiction, and a deep investment in the diverse SF/F culture.

BEST FANZINE

The Book Smugglers

Editors Ana Grilo and Thea James

Created by Ana Grilo and Thea James in 2008, The Book Smugglers is an award-winning blog, dedicated to reviews and essays covering SFF and genre fiction for all ages. Its continuing mission: to discuss and call attention to diverse, underrepresented books, authors, and voices in speculative fiction fandom.

Galactic Journey

Founder Gideon Marcus, editor Janice Marcus, senior writers Rosemary Benton, Lorelei Marcus and Victoria Silverwolf

Journey Planet

Editors James Bacon, Christopher J Garcia, Alissa McKersie, Ann Gry, Chuck Serface, John Coxon and Steven H Silver

Editors Elizabeth Minkel and Gavia Baker-Whitelaw

A weekly newsletter about fanfiction and fandom, curating news, art, events and fanfic recs. Edited by fan culture journalists Gavia Baker-Whitelaw (The Daily Dot) and Elizabeth Minkel (Fansplaining), it publishes a mix of aggregated and original material, including fandom primers and interesting nuggets of fannish history.

BEST FANCAST

Be The Serpent

Presented by Alexandra Rowland, Freya Marske and Jennifer Mace

A speculative fiction, media, and fanfiction analysis podcast hosted by three redheaded fantasy authors—Alexandra Rowland, Freya Marske, and Jennifer Mace. Together, the Serpents dig into trope taxonomies, discuss works of deep literary merit from all walks of life, and crack more dirty jokes than you could shake a snake at.

Claire Rousseau's YouTube channel

Produced & presented by Claire Rousseau

The Coode Street Podcast

Presented by Jonathan Strahan and Gary K. Wolfe

The Coode Street Podcast began in May 2010 as a series of informal discussions about SFF between editor Jonathan Strahan and critic Gary K. Wolfe. Soon they began inviting occasional guests, which included Ursula K. Le Guin, Gene Wolfe, Neil Gaiman, William Gibson, and N.K. Jemisin. This year represents their seventh fancast Hugo nomination.

Galactic Suburbia

Presented by Alisa Krasnostein, Alexandra Pierce and Tansy Rayner Roberts, producer Andrew Finch

Alex, Alisa and Tansy have been bringing a feminist and Australian perspective to speculative fiction for a decade. Produced by Andrew Finch (aka the Silent Producer), we discuss awards, the culture we consume, and issues that are relevant to our lives and our fiction.

Our Opinions Are Correct

Presented by Annalee Newitz and Charlie Jane Anders

Explore the meaning of science fiction, and how it's relevant to real-life science and society. Your hosts are Annalee Newitz, a science journalist who writes science fiction, and Charlie Jane Anders, a science fiction writer who is obsessed with science. Every two weeks, we take deep dives into science fiction books, movies, television, and comics that will expand your mind—and maybe change your life.

The Skiffy and Fanty Show

Presented by Jen Zink and Shaun Duke

The Skiffy and Fanty Show is a two time Hugo-finalist podcast produced and hosted by Shaun Duke and Jen Zink. The show focuses on science fiction and fantasy, including discussions about major topics in the field, interviews with authors and creators, reviews and discussions of new and old sf/f films, and Torture Cinema, our infamous bad movie extravaganza. Our show is a fan venture supported by listeners.

BEST FAN WRITER

Cora Buhlert

Cora Buhlert is a writer, blogger, teacher and translator. She was born and bred in Bremen, North Germany, where she still lives today—after time spent in London, Singapore, Rotterdam and Mississippi. Cora has been a fan of SFF for as long as she can remember. Though she writes in various genres, science fiction and fantasy will always be her first love. She is thrilled to be a Hugo finalist.

Alasdair Stuart

Alasdair Stuart is a professional enthusiast, pop culture analyst, and writer. He co-owns the Escape Artists Podcast Network, and hosts their weekly horror fiction show, PseudoPod. He is a Hugo finalist, writes an award-nominated weekly pop culture newsletter, The Full Lid, blogs at www.alasdairstuart.com and tweets @AlasdairStuart.

Paul Weimer

An expat New Yorker who has inexplicably found himself living in Minnesota in the United States for the last 15 years, Paul Weimer counters the banal mundanity of his normal life with a love of science fiction and fantasy, along with a strong interest in photography.

Adam Whitehead

James Davis Nicol

Bogi Takács

BEST FAN ARTIST

Iain Clark

Iain works mainly in acrylics but dabbles in oils, pencils and inks. He created the cover art for the Dublin 2019 Souvenir Book and Pocket Guide, plus badges, adverts, t-shirts and progress reports. He is currently working on the Glasgow Worldcon bid and creating fan art. He fits painting around work and young daughters.

Grace P. Fong

Grace P. Fong (“Fictograph”) is an illustrator, concept artist, and comic creator living in Vancouver, BC. She makes covers for speculative fiction magazines and anthologies as well as promotional art for authors. Select 2019 clients include Strange Horizons, Lackington’s, Paul Kreuger, and Akemi Dawn Bowman. You can view her work at: <http://www.artstation.com/fictograph>.

Ariela Housman

Ariela Housman (she/her) apprenticed to a master calligrapher as part of a high school internship program and has been working as a professional calligrapher since 2003. She has a particular fondness for Art Nouveau. By day she does technical work for a non-profit. She enjoys swing dancing and a good cup of tea.

LODESTAR AWARD FOR BEST YOUNG ADULT BOOK

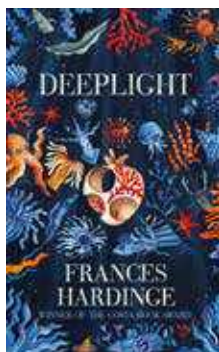

Finalists 2020

Catfishing on CatNet*, by Naomi Kritzer (Tor Teen)

Because her mom is always on the move, Steph hasn't lived anyplace longer than six months. Her only constant is an online community called CatNet—a social media site where users upload cat pictures—a place she knows she is welcome. What Steph doesn't know is that the admin of the site, CheshireCat, is a sentient A.I.

When a threat from Steph's past catches up to her and CheshireCat's existence is discovered by outsiders, it's up to Steph and her friends, both online and IRL, to save her.

Deeplight*, by Frances Hardinge (Macmillan)

The gods are dead. Decades ago, they turned on one another and tore each other apart. Nobody knows why. But are they really gone forever? When 15-year-old Hark finds the still-beating heart of a terrifying deity, he risks everything to keep it out of the hands of smugglers, military scientists, and a secret fanatical cult so that he can use it to save the life of his best friend, Jelt. But with the heart, Jelt gradually and eerily transforms. How long should Hark stay loyal to his friend when he's becoming a monster—and what is Hark willing to sacrifice to save him?

Dragon Pearl*, by Yoon Ha Lee (Disney/Hyperion)

Rick Riordan Presents Yoon Ha Lee's space opera about thirteen-year-old Min, who comes from a long line of fox spirits.

Min would like nothing more than to escape Jinju, her neglected, dust-ridden, and impoverished planet. She's counting the days until she can follow her older brother, Jun, into the Space Forces and see more of the Thousand Worlds.

When word arrives that Jun is suspected of leaving his post to go in search of the Dragon Pearl, Min knows that something is wrong. She decides to run away to find him and clear his name.

Minor Mage*, by T. Kingfisher (Argyll)

Oliver was a very minor mage. His familiar reminded him of this several times a day.

He only knew three spells, and one of them was to control his allergy to armadillo dander. His attempts to summon elementals resulted in nosebleeds, and there is nothing more embarrassing than having your elemental leave the circle to get you a tissue, pat you comfortingly, and then disappear in a puff of magic. The armadillo had about wet himself laughing.

He was a very minor mage. Unfortunately, he was all they had.

Riverland*, by Fran Wilde (Amulet)

Full of both adventure and heart, Riverland is a story about the bond between two sisters and how they must make their own magic to protect each other and save the ones they love.

The Wicked King*, by Holly Black (Little, Brown; Hot Key)

You must be strong enough to strike and strike and strike again without tiring.

The first lesson is to make yourself strong.

ASTOUNDING AWARD

Finalists 2020

Sam Hawke (2nd year of eligibility)

R.F. Kuang (2nd year of eligibility)

Rebecca F. Kuang is a Marshall Scholar, translator, and the Nebula, Locus, and World Fantasy Award nominated author of The Poppy War and The Dragon Republic. She has an MPhil in Chinese Studies from the University of Cambridge and is currently pursuing an MSc in Contemporary Chinese Studies at Oxford University.

THE UNTHINKABLE HAPPENED!

China invaded Canada while world governments stagger beneath a natural disaster of unprecedented proportions. Disillusioned, unable and unwilling to kowtow to the new authorities Mark Elders and his wife struggle to survive in a work camp. Overworked, Jada dies in childbirth, their infant along with her, and Mark snaps. His rebellion prompts the Camp Commandant to load him onto the truck headed for the mines with other recalcitrant. But fate isn't finished with Mark, and what it has in store for him is the farthest thing from his wildest imagination...

“ In December, the pōhutukawa bloom a brilliant red. They punctuate the pure blue of the sky along the Wellington waterfront, our own version of Christmas bunting. In January, the blooms fall, carried off by the ever-present wind. Drifts of red stamens build up in the gutters and in the cracks of the footpaths, giving everything a lava makeover.”

“ You leave the Michael Fowler Center and cross the street to the Cuba Mall, a pedestrianized section of Cuba Street. It is packed with interesting shops and restaurants, but you are on a mission. You walk two and a half blocks and turn right onto the Left Bank. Passing the fabulous Pegasus used book store and the inexplicable California Sushi stand, you go through a courtyard into a covered passageway. You found it. You have been reading The Unlikely Escape of Uriah Heep, by H. G. Parry. It is surprisingly excellent. You wanted to find the location of the extradimensional gateway to the Dickensian Victorian street. This is it. But you can't see it. Is it because you aren't [redacted]? Or is it gone now? Cool mural, though. “

“ You’re in New Zealand for a while, and you need to wash some clothes. If you were staying in an apartment, but no, you need to find a laundrette. There’s only one in the downtown convenient to the convention. Fortunately it’s excellent. The Agitator is in a residential neighborhood not too far from some of the big backpacker’s hostels. The New World supermarket on Wakefield is on the way, so you can get some unscented biodegradable laundry detergent. The Agitator has self-service machines as well as wash and fold service. There are plenty of machines and everything is clean and in working order. Other fans come in with their laundry. Conversation ensues. You realize that Wellington has many pubs and cafes, but with one laundrette, everyone has to come by. You have found the ultimate hangout.

The Capital is Cool, But Don't Call It Little

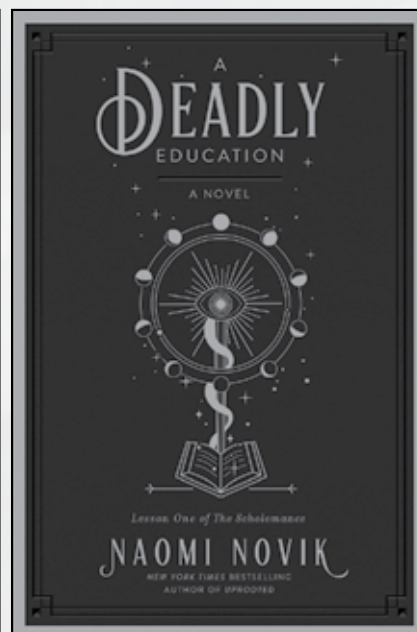

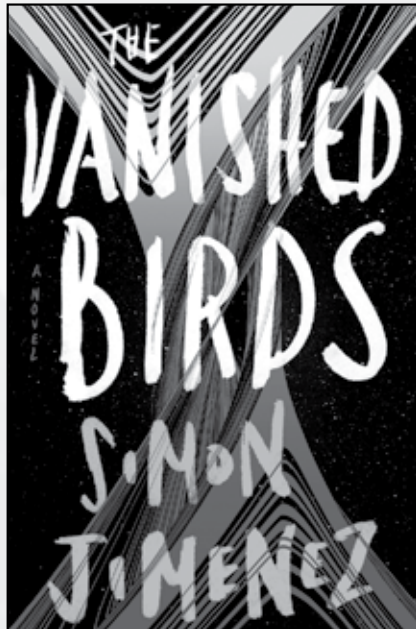

By Jenny Hammond

Wellington may seem small to some, but not to me. In fact, it's so big I can't limit myself to having only one best Wellington secret. So, here's two secrets for the price of one.

There's a track leading up to the hills behind the Wellington suburb where I live. Once at the top of the hill you can see the South Island in the distance, or, you can turn right around and look over the whole of Wellington Harbour, from the CBD, over the suburbs, to the shore on the other side of the harbour. If you like, you could take another track and walk to Mt Kaukau, the highest point in Wellington. But pick your day for a walk, it can be windy. That's Wellington for you.

My other secret is at the shore on the other side of the harbour. My favourite beach, Sorrento Bay, has changing rooms, a tap to wash sand from your feet, a picnic table, and a small strip of sand with gentle little waves leading you into the water, sheltered between two bands of rocks. The sheltered bay lets you take gentle steps into the harbour and allows you to sink into calm, cold water on a hot day. From there you could swim all over the harbour if you want to, or you could stay and float and stare up at the blue sky. Wellington is as big as you want it to be.

2020 SIR JULIUS VOGEL AWARD FINALISTS

NEW ZEALAND'S SFF AWARDS

THE SIR JULIUS VOGEL Awards have been presented each year at the natcon since 2002. They recognise achievement in a number of professional and amateur fields in New Zealand SF, fantasy and horror. They replaced the earlier New Zealand Science Fiction Fan Awards, which recognised fan achievement only and which were presented between 1989 and 2001.

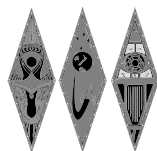

Voting on the Sir Julius Vogel Awards takes place before and at the National Science Fiction convention each year.

About the name

Sir Julius Vogel was a Prime Minister of New Zealand, and wrote in 1889 what was probably the first full length Science Fiction novel by a New Zealander, Anno Domini 2000 - A Woman's Destiny.

This book was strongly centred around New Zealand, and was a utopian view of the future in which women would hold many positions of authority.

At OdysseyCon in 2001, the proposal was made to have the fan awards called the Sir Julius Vogel Awards. The vote by the fans was near unanimous in favour of the name.

BEST NOVEL

Sir Julius Vogel Award Finalists 2020

The Prince of Secrets* by AJ Lancaster

Wyn knows falling for a human is a bad idea—especially one who’s magically bonded to a jealous sentient estate. More than scandal and crumbling finances are at stake, for Wyn’s past is coming back to bite him.

Ten years ago, he broke an oath and shattered the power of his home court, and the fae have been hunting him ever since. Now they’ve found his hiding place, they won’t rest until he’s dead or the debt is repaid—and they don’t play nicely.

The Dawnhounds* by Sascha Stronach

“Come here, my dearest calamity. I’ve a story to tell—it starts with a shipwreck, and ends with a kiss.”

A ship rolls through the fog, its doomed crew fallen victim to an engineered plague. Yat Jyn-Hok—disgraced cop, former thief, long lost love to a flame-haired street girl—stumbles across its deadly trail, but powerful men will do anything to keep it secret.

Solar Federation* by SE Mulholland

The earth is in crisis. Centuries of rapid growth have created a technologically triumphant industrial civilization that spans the globe, but now it is falling victim to its own success. Entropy nips at the heels of this behemoth—the core continues ahead, while the periphery struggles and fades. Violence and chaos threaten the prosperity of the international order.

The Blacksmith* by Barbara Howe

How is the king like a blacksmith? He has a hammer as well as a sword.

No one understands that riddle, not even in the Royal Guild of Swordsmiths. It isn’t Duncan Archer’s business anyway. Good sense tells him to stick to beating iron into shape in his backwater town, and not worry about the nobility abusing Frankland.

But good sense never stopped Duncan from poking his nose into everyone else’s business.

Into the Ashes* by Lee Murray

The great mountain warriors of New Zealand’s central plateau, the Kāhui Tupua, are preparing for battle. The nation’s leaders scoff at the danger—until the ground opens and all hell breaks loose.

With the mountains spewing rock and ash, NZDF Sergeant Taine McKenna and his section are cut off. If they’re to rescue the stranded civilians, they’ll need another route out, but a busload of prison evacuees has other ideas. And, deep beneath the earth’s crust, other forces are stirring.

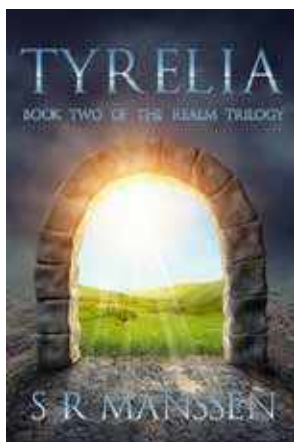

BEST YOUTH NOVEL

Sir Julius Vogel Award Finalists 2020

Ringlet and the Day the Oceans Stopped* by Felicity Williams

An eleven-year-old mergirl has better things to do than save the oceans from deadly stagnation. Except there's no one else. And worse still, something monstrous is hellbent on stopping her. Forced into a dangerous journey to the Upworlds, she must find a fiercely guarded scrap of flame and deliver it to the rightful owner, thus fulfilling the prophecy, 'she who sleeps must wake'. It's Ringlet against time and tides... and there's not much left of either.

Tyrelia* by S R Manssen

She escaped death. She unlocked the mystery of the Tablet to discover the long-lost bridge across the chasm. She passed through the Wall. But fourteen-year-old Freya's biggest challenge is yet to come: all alone, she must enter Tyrelia, following new clues that lead her on a new quest deep into Tyrelia. All communication lost, will Freya find the Ancient before it's too late for her family trapped in the Golden City? Tyrelia is the second book in the Realm Trilogy

The Clockkill and the Thief* by Gareth Ward

Sin is dying, poisoned by his blue blood. His troubles deepen when the traitor who poisoned him escapes from the custody of the Covert Operations Group and sets out for revenge. COG tasks Sin, his friend Zonda Chubb and their frenemy Velvet Von Darque with recapturing the traitor, whatever the cost. Taking to the air in pursuit, they must battle skyirates and the terrifying Clockkill to complete their mission. But with his condition worsening, can Sin survive long enough to save his friends, himself and the day?

Light in My Blood* by Jean Gilbert

When Harper discovers a clue in Isabelle's journal that may save the people of Nön from Vör'Ghul's dark hold, Harper and Jack set their differences aside to return to Nön, where a black diamond shard is more than a key and truth is as deceptive as the night.

Dragon Rift* by Eileen Mueller

A captive dragon master. A dangerous rift between mages and riders. And a secret weapon that will tear Dragons' Realm apart.

BEST NOVELLA OR NOVELETTE

Sir Julius Vogel Award Finalists 2020

From a Shadow Grave* by Andi C. Buchanan

This is no ordinary ghost story

Wellington, 1931. Seventeen-year-old Phyllis Symons' body is discovered in the Mt Victoria tunnel construction site. Eighty years later, Aroha Brooke is determined to save her life.

Urban legend meets urban fantasy in this compelling alternate history by award-winning author Andi C. Buchanan.

We All Fall* by Helen Vivienne Fletcher

Something is not right at the circus. Since Myra's accident, there have been an unexplainable number of falls, and a strange, hot wind whispering through the tents. When someone she cares about becomes the next victim, Myra must face the unnatural cause behind the falls. Will Myra be able to save the people she loves, or will she be the next one to drop?

Would She Be Gone* by Melanie Harding-Shaw

Detective Virginia Wright is going undercover in the criminal world of spoken poetry to hunt down suppliers of illegal open-access e-readers. She has buried herself in her work ever since her mother died. But when her remaining family are arrested for literary crimes, her world starts to crumble. And when the criminal she is supposed to catch gives her the most precious gift of all, her moral compass is sent spinning.

Hunger's Truth* by A.J. Fitzwater

"Hey sexy! Give us a smile!"

Danyor had a handful of seconds to decide: a close-mouthed smile, and feel dirty all day; flash pearly white, hope against citizen arrest, and feel dirty all day; ignore, and feel dirty all day.

She tongued her broken eye tooth, pressed her lips together, set eyes forward, and ploughed through the crowd.

"Bitch! You're too ugly to fuck anyway!"

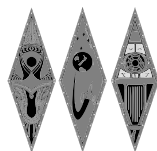

A white-robed leader of a gaggle of Sisters of the Silence flinched as Danyor stormed by. As Daddy had taught her, she tried not to stare at the evenly spaced stitches around their lips. There must've been a big public blasphemy trial recently for the SoS to be out in force.

Ventiforms* by Sean Monaghan

The windy, parched planet Zepheirre discourages visitors. Actively. Tailé Aronsen's mission to find her son strikes problems from the moment she arrives in orbit. But the extraordinary Ventiform sculptures might reveal more than they hide. If Tailé can figure out where to look. A Shilinka Switalla story from the author of Defragging Carla and Raven Rising.

BEST SHORT STORY

Sir Julius Vogel Award Finalists 2020

“Losing Face” by Lee Murray

(Things in the Well Publications)

Social Warriors Closed Group—Rules: What passes between warriors, stays between warriors. No self-promotion.

Nevil: Been quiet in here lately. What’s happening?

Harry: Replying to Nevil. Not much. Not unless you count getting screwed for half of everything.

Drako: Replying to Nevil. Enjoy it while you can. She’ll come crawling back.

Harry: Replying to Nevil. Not this time.

Drako: Replying to Nevil. You gotta PERSUADE her, you know what I mean?...

“Proof of Concept” by James Rowland

(NewMyths.com)

There was nothing unusual about the postcard. It waited on my doormat, nestled within a bill and some junk mail... Scrawled across the back, an inked afterthought, letters curved together to say: Even now, made me think of you. Hope you’re doing well. Erin x. My finger traced the words. There was nothing unusual about the postcard.

Except Erin didn’t exist. ...

“The Fisher” by Melanie Harding-Shaw

(Newsroom)

It was Wednesday and a man was standing on a small rock jutting out of the ocean a few metres from the beach in Oriental Bay. He had a fishing rod in his hands and an old paint bucket by his side for when his luck found him. He was wearing a tatty blue and purple jacket that looked like it wouldn’t keep the water out at all....

“Work and Income Gothic” by Jack Remiel Cottrell

(Flash Frontier)

You approach the door. In place of a security guard there is a sphinx. She asks you a riddle. You answer it correctly but she pretends she cannot hear you.

The receptionist asks for your name. She asks for your client number. She asks for your most painful childhood memory. She asks for a sliver of your soul.

You wait. Your name will be called. Hours pass. Days. Years. When they call your name you no longer recognise it....

“Chasing Oumuamua” by Sean Monaghan

(Asimov’s Science Fiction, Issue 5, 2019)

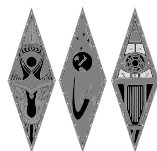

An extraterrestrial object is hurtling through our solar system, but the only hope of getting a good probe there in time lies in the work of a young inventor who’s trapped by mental illness.

“A Shriek Across the Sky” by Casey Lucas

(Sponge Magazine)

At first we thought a plane crashed in the Sound. Which was sad, you know, but not the end of the world. We were wrong about a lot.

Something huge shrieked past overhead, obscured by the rain-fat clouds, trailing sparks in its wake. There was a great, concussive roar from somewhere in the distance and the shock wave sent our boat wobbling. Beyond the clouds, the sky whited out, then dulled. Terns took to the air, squawking indignantly. ...

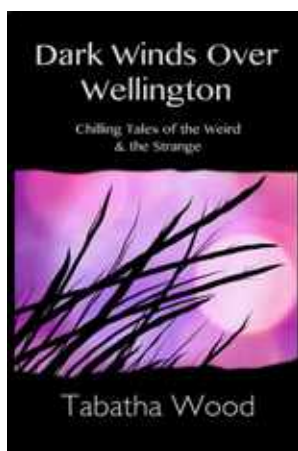

BEST COLLECTED WORK

Sir Julius Vogel Award Finalists 2020

Year's Best Aotearoa New Zealand Science Fiction & Fantasy, volume 1 edited by Marie Hodgkinson

Thirteen of the brightest stars in Kiwi speculative fiction feature in this first volume in a new annual series. From monstrous bears born of climate monstrosities to postapocalyptic period supply runs, these stories represent the very best in New Zealand short SFF writing from 2018.

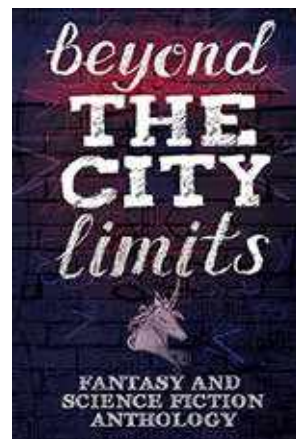

Dark Winds Over Wellington by Tabatha Wood

Welcome to Wellington, the Coolest Little Capital, where nothing is quite what it seems.

Strange creatures lurk in the shadows of the Beehive, while a beast From The Deep is determined to destroy us all. Being Neighbourly might just change your life, and if you listen closely you can hear demonic Whispers in the wind. So sit back, take a sip of A Good Cup of Coffee and question all The Things You See. In the city, there are no Second Chances and every chapter might be your last.

Inspired by local legends and folklore, these thirteen original short stories will drag you on a chilling journey through the eerie, the weird and the strange.

Beyond the City Limits: Fantasy and Science Fiction Anthology edited by Kura Carpenter

The great mountain warriors of New Zealand's central plateau, the Kāhui Tupua, are preparing for battle. The nation's leaders scoff at the danger—until the ground opens and all hell breaks loose.

With the mountains spewing rock and ash, NZDF Sergeant Taine McKenna and his section are cut off. If they're to rescue the stranded civilians, they'll need another route out, but a busload of prison evacuees has other ideas. And, deep beneath the earth's crust, other forces are stirring.

Flash Frontier: Speculative Fiction Issue, Edited by A.J. Fitzwater and Tim Jones, Flash Frontier

The December 2019 Spec-Fic issue of Flash Frontier magazine contains eight speculative fiction stories selected by guest editors AJ Fitzwater and Tim Jones, plus interviews with the co-editors, and Vaughan Rapatahana's interview with poet Kiri Piahana-Wong. It showcases how well speculative fiction can work at the shortest lengths.

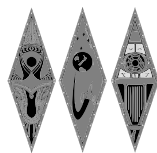

Into the Mire by Casey Lucas

In the first years following a brutal war, residents of the Deel Valley struggle to recover. They rebuild their homes, replant their crops, and attempt to reconcile the past they long for with the reality they're stuck in.

Most of them seek, above all, a return to some semblance of "normal."

Others seek profit and adventure.

SERVICES TO FANDOM

Grace Bridges

Grace Bridges chaired GeyserCon and does a great deal to support writers and artists both nationally and internationally. She represents NZ well on an international stage and encourages young creators to practice and pursue their own dreams. She plays well with others and is a good example of positive fandom.

Grace Bridges has been an integral member of New Zealand’s fan community for over a decade. A writer, graphic artist, cosplayer, publisher, editor, gamer, speaker, panellist, mentor, and strong community activist.

Grace fully embraces her role as both a creator and a fan of science fiction and fantasy. Her formal roles include serving as chair of the GeyserCon National science fiction and fantasy convention in Rotorua June 2019, as a member of the Core of SpecFicNZ for close to a decade (and President of the group for much of that), and as an active member of Young New Zealand Writers (promoting and developing young creatives in science fiction and fantasy) from 2017 onwards. She promotes New Zealand genre work and fandom both locally and internationally and advocates for a science fiction and fantasy community which encourages inclusiveness for all. Most of Grace’s spare time over the past ten years has been devoted to growing and supporting our fan community—usually while dressed as Capt. Kathryn Janeway or as your favourite TimeLord—making her a highly worthy recipient of this award.

SERVICES TO SCIENCE FICTION, FANTASY AND HORROR

Melanie Harding-Shaw

Mel has been instrumental in bridging the gap between Kiwi SFF and Worldcon. She has organized a local group of Wellington writers across the SFF spectrum, including those who are familiar with Kiwi fandom and those who have historically worked in the literary scene. She is also coordinating Kiwi SFF participants at CoNZeland, both ensuring a wide variety of voices and encouraging those who might not otherwise attend to consider doing so. She is involved both with SpecFicNZ and the New Zealand Society of Authors to bring all authors of speculative work together to share knowledge and resources and celebrate Science Fiction, Fantasy, and Horror writing in Aotearoa.

NEW ZEALAND NATCONS

LIST OF PAST NATCONS

NEW ZEALAND NATIONAL SF conventions (natcons) usually take place over the Easter or Queen's Birthday long weekend. There is no standing committee to organise them; each year's natcon is run by a committee of volunteers who announce their bid at an earlier natcon, preferably two years in advance.

Special Thanks

There have been some special people who have helped us on this journey, but who, for various reasons, have left the crew. We want to thank them for their time and efforts.

- Emily Cottlier
- Jill Eastlake
- Brenda Fortin
- Alison Jack
- Colin HARRIS
- Yvonne Harrison
- Michelle Lovi
- Paul Mannering
- Mapu Palamo
- Elizabeth Wiltshire

And a special thanks to the Transformation team, who jumped in and kept things moving forward when the world was in upheaval. We couldn't have done this without you.
