THE MAGAZINE OF THE SCIENCE FICTION AND FANTASY FIELD

Remember why you fell in love with Science Fiction, Fantasy, and Horror in the first place It's the books!

And the best place to find out about books is in LOCUS. For the past 37 years, 25-time Hugo Award winning LOCUS magazine has been the reporter, chronicler, and backyard gossip for the science fiction, fantasy, and horror fields. If you need to know about it, LOCUS is there reporting on it.

EVERY MONTH:

LOCUS brings you COMPREHENSIVE COVERAGE of the SCIENCE FICTION FIELD with:

- Up-to-date news about awards, publishing changes, obituaries, monthly bestsellers, etc.
• Advance reviews of novels and short fiction (to help you figure out what to spend your $$$ on).
• Interviews with both well-known and up-and-coming authors.
• Complete lists of all SF/Fantasy/Horror books published in America and Britain.
• Dozens of photos of authors, book covers, etc.
• Our famous People & Publishing column - with personal and professional news items about writers and editors, including who sold what book to whom (sometimes before even they know it).

EVERY TWO MONTHS:

- Complete list of upcoming conventions
• Coverage of major conventions and conferences including Worldcon World Fantasy Con etc.

EVERY THREE MONTHS:

- Forthcoming Books - an advance schedule of English-language books for the next 9 months.
• SF around the globe - reports from many countries, plus a list of other-language publications.

EVERY YEAR:

LOCUS takes a long, careful look at what has happened in SF the previous 12 months, with:

- A summary of book and magazine publishing with charts, figures, etc.
• A comprehensive analysis of the field
• The annual LOCUS Recommended Reading list.
• Results of the LOCUS Poll & Survey.

REFLECTIONS ON WORLDCONS

By Robert Silverberg

The following article originally appeared in the September 1993 issue of Amazing Stories®. It is reprinted here with the permission of the author.

There's been a certain elegaic tone to these columns this summer, a hearkening back to earlier times, old memories of the science fiction field that used to be. Undoubtedly the deaths last year of those two colossi of our genre, Isaac Asimov and Fritz Leiber, were factors that aroused much of that feeling of nostalgia in me; and, as I noted a couple of months ago, 1993 is also the fortieth anniversary of my own first sale to a science fiction magazine. Fortieth anniversaries do have a way of getting one to look toward the past.

And now another fortieth anniversary is upon me. For this is September, the month of the World Science Fiction Convention: and this year's Worldcon will be the fortieth convention I have attended.

The Worldcon is the great annual family gathering of the science fiction clan, an assemblage of thousands and thousands of people who care passionately about this strange stuff that we choose to read and write. Everyone is there: writers, editors, artists, publishers, book dealers, and, of course, readers—the fans, who are actually the people who organize each year's Worldcon and do the brutal work that makes it happen. In the course of my forty years of Worldcon attendance, I've had a chance to meet and get to know virtually the entire roster of science fiction's great creative figures from Frank R. Paul, Edmond Hamilton, and E. E. "Doc" Smith of the earliest days of our field down to the promising novices who will evolve into the supernovae of twenty-first-century sf. I can't imagine missing a convention. Through the ebbs and flows of my career, the thought of not going to a Worldcon has never entered my mind.

The last time I missed a Worldcon, it was in San Francisco in 1954: but I lived on the East Coast then, and as a 19-year-old college student I simply couldn't come up with the funds to take me on that vast journey of 3000 miles across the country. Images of Worldcons past come floating up out of the memory bank as I look back over those astonishing forty years.

Your first one, of course, is always unforgettable. For me that was the Philadelphia convention of 1953, at the glorious Bellevue-Stratford hotel. I was eighteen: I had just made my first professional sale (and would be paid for it, all thirty dollars, at the convention). And now, at last, I would attend my first Worldcon! Staying in a three-room suite, no less.

A suite, you say? How did an impecunious college kid manage that? Where did I ever find the money—a suite at the Bellevue-Stratford must have cost all of twelve or fifteen dollars a night, in 1953—to manage such stately lodgings?

Through entrepreneurial zeal, of course. I teamed up with a fellow fan, a kid from Cleveland, one Harlan Ellison, with whom I agreed to split the bill. Then we offered crash space—couches, chairs, the floor, whatever—to our numerous friends in the fan community at $5 per night. At least twenty of them signed up. The result was a kind of convention within a convention: our three rooms were packed every night, a stellar array of 1953's great fan figures holding an intense round-the-clock party. As the organizers of the commune. Harlan and I not only got to be the ones who slept in the beds (when we slept at all, and hour or two a night) but wound up paying nothing for our suite and turning a profit of forty or fifty dollars each, besides.

It was a wonderful weekend. I stared in awe at the writers and editors I had revered all through my adolescence—Theodore Sturgeon, John W.

Campbell, Willy Ley, Frederik Pohl, Lester del Rey, L. Sprague de Camp, and dozens more—moving like ordinary mortals through the throngs in the lobby. I looked with envy on the hot young writers like Robert Sheckley and Frank M. Robinson, whose names were on the tables of contents of all the magazines, and earnestly prayed to join them there some day. (Which I did: and I formed lifelong friendships with them both besides.) I mingled with fan friends I had known only through correspondence, and worked hard to live up to my postal reputation for acute wit and erudition. I blurted out my literary ambitions to editors like Harry Harrison and Larry T. Shaw, and was encouraged by what they had to say, though probably they were just being nice to the lanky, crew-cutty tyro that I was. I watched the very first Hugos being handed out, not even daring to suppose that some day I would be a winner myself. And I went home (by bus, Philadelphia to New York) in a daze of excitement and fatigue, my life forever transformed in a single weekend.

I swore never to miss a Worldcon again. But the next year's convention, I discovered, was in far-off San Francisco, the other side of the continent from me. It might as well have been on the moon.

By the time of the 1955 convention in Cleveland, though, I was a properous young writer who had made at least a dozen sales to the sf magazines, on my own and in collaboration with the somewhat more experienced writer Randall Garrett whom I had met in New York. (At the 1953 Worldcon, Garrett had shown up one night, drunk and disorderly, at the perpetual party in the Ellison-Silverberg suite, and I had shut the door in his face. "Do you know who that is?" Harlan had asked me aghast. "That's Randall Garrett. He's a pro!" But I didn't care: we had enough loudmouths in the room as it was. (Garrett had no recollection of the incident a couple of years later when we met, and we hit it off beautifully as collaborators.) Now my stories were all over the magazines. I had graduated with lightning swiftness into the professional ranks. It all seemed pretty much like a dream to me as Garrett led me around the convention, introducing me to writers who were now my colleagues.

I met Isaac Asimov at that convention, and Fritz Leiber, and James E. Gunn, and Fred Pohl, and Anthony Boucher, and the legendary Bob Tucker, and I don't know how many others of the great. It was an awesome thing to be in their presence actually chatting with them virtually as an equal at a party where only the inner circle of writers and editors was present. The 1953 convention had been my initiation into the tribe, the 1955 one marked my debut among the pros. I was a figure of some interest to them, I could see: the field then was very small, and any prolific new writer was immediately conspicuous. (The total attendance at that 1955 convention, fans and pros together, was all of 380 people, so everyone quickly knew everyone else. Modern Worldcons are ten to twenty times as big.)

I remember the trip home from Cleveland too: six or seven of us, including Harlan, and Ian Macauley (who would become an editor with the New York Times) and jolly Karl Olsen (who still comes to conventions, jolly as ever) and some others crammed into what I think was Macauley's car for an all-night turnpike drive to New York. I didn't have a driver's license, then, but everyone else took turns at the wheel, including Karl, who also didn't have a license, but didn't tell us that until he had run the car up on the center divider. We survived.

And went on to 1956, a vast Worldcon in New York. I had sold so many stories by then that my colleagues were looking at me not with curiosity, now, but with uneasiness and a bit of horror. That was the year I won my first Hugo—the award for Most Promising New Author. (I beat out two fellows who were still pretty obscure that year, Harlan Ellison, whose professional career had barely begun, and a guy named Frank Herbert, who had two or three stories published.) It seemed a very long way from that Philadelphia convention, just three summers earlier.

I vividly remember the sweaty, exciting time just after the Hugo ceremony, as I stood there clutching my shiny trophy and accepting congratulations. Betty Farmer, Philip Jose Farmer's irrepressible wife, came up to me and gave me a hug, and then she said, "You know, Phil won the same Hugo in 1953. And he hasn't been able to sell a story since." She was just joking, of course. And he and I both managed to keep our careers afloat thereafter, as did Brian W. Aldiss, the third and final winner a couple of years later, of the Hugo in the Most Promising New Author category.

I could fill a book, I think, with Worldcon anecdotes. (Some of them would get me sued, I suspect.) The 1957 convention was the first overseas one, in London, and I made my first trip to Europe to attend it. The hotel room cost $2.40 per night, and seemed a little overpriced at that, but we had a wondrous time, all 268 of us from both sides of the Atlantic. (The hotel dining room staff would put out the breakfast cereals in open bowls every night, and would urge us please not to take short-cuts through the room on our way to the bar because it would get dust into the corn flakes.)

1958, and Los Angeles: I got to see California at last, the palm trees and the freeways, little imagining that I'd live there some day. Among those I met for the first time at that convention were Poul Anderson and William Rotsler, who became friends of decades' duration: I met Terry Carr there too, and watched him meet the beautiful woman who would become his first wife. (The marriage didn't last long, and, sadly, neither did Terry, but he and I had some wonderful times together before his too-early death at the age of 50.)

1959, 1960, Detroit, Pittsburgh. It was at one of those conventions, I forget which, that I was roaming the halls of an afternoon and came upon Gordie Dickson, Poul Anderson, and Ted Cogswell sitting in a hotel room with the door open, contemplating an entire case of tequilla. I was never a drinker on the heroic Dickson-Anderson-Cogswell scale, but I do touch a drop now and then; they invited me in and I helped them dispose of some of it. Quite and afternoon.

And Seattle, in 1961: the con was at a little motel near the airport that year. Robert A. Heinlein was the guest of honor, and gave a party in his room for the entire convention, the entire roster of 300 attendees, holding court in his bathrobe, pouring drinks himself, greeting dozens of people by name, and astonishing performance. I began to understand why Heinlein was such a mesmerizing writer: his irresistible fiction was an extension of his own magnetic personality. An extraordinary man, it was a privilege to have known him, and if there had been no Worldcons, I might never have had the chance.

Heinlein was the star again in 1962 in Chicago, materializing unexpectedly as though out of hyperspace in a white dinner jacket to collect his Hugo for Stranger in a Strange Land. Conventions were starting to get bigger, now: there were 550 people at the Chicago con, in a two-tower hotel of confusing layout. (One night Harlan Ellison and I somehow missed connections with our friends and found ourselves with no way of discovering where the party we were supposed to be attending was located. We didn't even know which building it was in. So we sat quietly by ourselves on a back staircase for an hour or two, reviewing in wonder the dizzying six-year evolution of our writing careers, until at last someone we knew came by and told us where to find the gathering we were looking for.)

There was the crazed episode in 1967, another New York Worldcon, where dozens of writers waited forever in the hotel dining room for service, and an angry Lester del Rey dumped an overdue salad on the floor while at the same moment Harlan flung a plate of popovers against the wall. And the next night I led many of the same people to a favorite restaurant of mine where we wound up in a back room next to a garbage can. and waited again for our dinners, waited so very long this time that people whose names would be recognized by you all started to go berserk, and I thought I would be lynched by my own friends. Anne McCaffrey had to quell the raging mob, finally.

I no longer regarded myself as a callow novice amidst a band of demi-gods, by then. I had been around for a dozen years and plenty of writers junior to me had entered the field—Roger Zelazny, Larry Niven, Samuel R. Delany, Thomas Disch, and more. I watched them arrive one by one, and remembered how the old-timers had watched me do the same.

Still, I was startled in 1968 when the chairman of that year's Worldcon (it was to be in Berkeley, California) phoned and asked if I would serve as Toastmaster at the Hugo Awards ceremony. The toastmastership is one of the Worldcon's most significant responsibilities, and in those years it seemed invariably to rotate exclusively among a small group of our most distinguished citizens—Isaac Asimov, Anthony Boucher, Robert Bloch. Boucher was to have been toastmaster again at that year's convention, but he had died that spring, and suddenly I found myself promoted into that little group. To me, it marked a rite of passage in the Worldcon sub-culture. (My toastmaster stint at the 1968 convention was exhausting and exhilarating, and I loved every moment of it. In the years that followed I ran the awards ceremony on four or five other occasions, and, I hope lived up to the standard set by my impressive predecessors.)

That 1968 convention was a bizarre event—marked by widespread drug use, the convention debut of weird 1960s clothing and rock bands, riots near the hotel, all the craziness of that strange era erupting all at once. No one who was there will ever forget that dreamlike weekend.

Nor will I forget the more prosaic convention in St. Louis the following year, but for different reasons. Again, I found myself ascending into realms of sf achievement that would have sent my adolescent self into paroxysms of disbelief. I delivered the keynote address at that convention; a couple of days later, I was handed another Hugo for my novella "Nightwings"; and then I was told, right at the end of the weekend, that I was to be Guest of Honor at the following year's convention in Heidelberg, Germany.

To be Worldcon Guest of Honor is, I suppose, the summit of the science fiction writer's course of accomplishment. I was only 35 years old when my turn came, making me one of the youngest ever—along with Heinlein and Asimov, who were 34 and 35, respectively. What amazed me even more, and left me a little abashed as well, was that at the time my elevation to the Guest of Honorship, such writers as Clifford D. Simak, Frederik Pohl, Jack Williamson, Ray Bradbury, Alfred Bester, and Jack Vance had never been chosen. (They all got their turns eventually. But they should have preceded me.)

So many stories to tell, so little space for them.

The 1964 convention in Oakland, where I rose to place a mock bid for a convention the following year at some posh resort in the Virgin Islands, and discovered, to my chagrin that the attendees were taking the bid seriously and had given me a majority vote on the spot. (I withdrew in favor of London, the genuine bidder.) The 1975 convention in Australia, where I rose to address Austalian fandom for the first time and found myself on the verge of telling an utterly unprintable joke about a wombat instead of offering some profound literary observations. The 1978 convention in Phoenix, where the summer heat shriveled our very souls, and Harlan—Guest of Honor that year—gamely wrote a short story while sitting inside a plastic bubble in the hotel lobby, and sold it to Omni on the spot. The 1979 convention in Brighton, England, where the British publisher Victor Gollancz gave a party for the convention VIPs at the glorious eighteenth-century Royal Pavilion, and we were each formally announced by a crier as though we were coming into the presence of the Queen. The 1987 Brighton convention, too, where Brian Aldiss, winning a Hugo again after a lapse of a quarter of a century, accepted it by amiably declaring, "You bastards, what took you so long?"

(Which brings to mind the grotesque 1983 Hugo ceremony in Baltimore, which was preceded by a ketchupy crab luncheon where thousands of impatient fans began to bang their spoons on the table, after which everything else that could possibly go wrong did. The winners went away happy, anyway.)

Heinlein once more, presiding over a Red Cross blood drive in Kasas City in 1976: you wanted a Heinlein autograph. you had to donate a pint of your blood. Or Fred Pohl, resplendent in tuxedo, performing tirelessly and brilliantly at four or five functions a day in his capacity as master of ceremonies at the 1989 Boston Worldcon. Or the evening I spent with Isaac and Janet Asimov at the same convention—the last time, as it turned out, that I would ever see Isaac. Or the post-Hugo party at the 1990 con in Holland, where I stood around in a crowded room in the heat of an almost tropically humid evening wearing jacket and tie while accepting congratulations for my newest award until I felt myself beginning to melt, and ran off to my hotel room two blocks away to change into fresh clothing.

The 1991 convention in Chicago where the glittering block-long bar of the Hyatt Hotel offered grappa at $350 a shot, and where I met Kim Mohan of Amazing Stories for the first time. (He bought me a drink. But our first meeting happened to take place at the hotel next door, so I didn't get a chance to put a shot of that grappa on his expense account. Just as well, I suspect.)

And 1992 in Orlando, where the elite of science fiction gathered twice a day in the lobby of the elegant Peabody Hotel to watch a parade of ducks...

And now this year, in San Francisco. Another Worldcon, a new collection of wondrous memories to add to the rich store already laid by. If this is going to be your twentieth or twenty-fifth convention, well, it'll be good to see you again, old friend. And if it'll be your first Worldcon, welcome, stranger! You're in for the experience of a lifetime.

DuMont	August 29, 1953 to May 22, 1954
NBC	December 11, 1954 to June 25, 1955

For the first four seasons, the series consisted of three 15 minute episodes, Monday, Wednesday, Friday. In the last season, there was one 30 minute episode on Saturday.

CBS developed Tom Corbett, Space Cadet partly because of the popularity of Captain Video on the DuMont Television Network. (DuMont was a short lived network owned by a company which also manufactured television sets.) Several other space oriented series began in the early fifties including Space Patrol, Flash Gordon, and Buck Rogers. All of these series were directed at a juvenile market and were televised live. The special effects were extremely minimal. Young SF viewers of the time also had the opportunity of watching a variety of theatrical serials from earlier decades. These included the three Flash Gordon serials, the Buck Rogers serial, The Phantom Empire with Gene Autrey, and a whole bunch of serials featuring legions of mad scientists and scads of diabolical inventions.

The Tom Corbett series was based on Robert Heinlein's novel Space Cadet which dealt with a young man going through military training for a future space corp. While the Tom Corbett universe is not exactly the universe of Space Cadet, there are very, very close similarities. At the time, Heinlein was known as the writer of realistic science fiction, and the show tried to keep things in that spirit. Willy Ley was the technical advisor in an era when the effects of zero gravity and why it would be a really bad idea to try breathing vacuum were not as commonly known as they are today. In spite of the effort for scientific accuracy, the series did include dinosaurs on a tropical Venus. Before becoming too critical, one should remember that scientific knowledge about the universe beyond our atmosphere has more than quadrupled since 1950.

Tom Corbett lives in the year 2350 CE. At that time, Earth, Venus, and Mars are commonwealths united under the Solar Alliance. There are also small colonies and outposts in the outer solar system and beyond. There are space stations orbiting the three inner planets, and the space stations function as centers for travel and trade. Tom is a member of the Solar Guard which is responsible for the security of the Solar Alliance. Defense is irrelevant, since no aliens (hostile or otherwise) have been encountered in the Tom Corbett universe. However, natural phenomena are more than enough to provide Tom and his colleagues with plenty of adventures.

Tom is a cadet at Space Academy. Cadets are organized into units of three with a full fledged Solar Guardsman supervising the unit. Tom's unit mates include Astro, an orphan from Venus, who has no last name. Astro has previously served in the merchant space corp and is an authority on rocket and atomic engines. He is also a head taller than his unit mates and presumably older. The blond haired Roger Manning is the third member of the unit. He is a brilliant astrogator, ladies man, and wise guy. He also has a bad temper and is always ready for a fight. Tom and Astro have to get Roger out of trouble on occasions. The trio is supervised by Captain Steve Strong, who has plenty of situations to supervise.

Space Academy training is divided between classroom instruction and field exercises aboard Solar Guard spaceships. Much of the action occurs on the spaceship Polaris. The Polaris is 200 feet of polished beryllium steel with four powerful atomic engines. Near the nose is a clear crystal blister which contains the radar deck. Twelve feet below the radar deck is the control deck and at the base of the ship is the power deck. The ship is armed with 3" and 6" atomic blasters, space torpedoes and also carries parloray guns and blast rifles. While the Solar Guard has no military enemies, you never know when such things will come in handy.

Aside from the TV series, Tom Corbett was also featured in eight hard backed books published by Grosset and Dunlap under the pseudonym Carey Rockwell. These books appeared between 1952 and 1956 and sold for 95¢ each. Frankie Thomas, Al Markim, and Jan Merlin also starred in a six month radio series in 1952. There were fourteen issues of Tom Corbett comics which appeared from Dell and Prize Comics between 1952 and 1955. Finally, a daily and Sunday newspaper strip written by Paul S. Newman and drawn by Ray Baily appeared from September 1951 to September 1953.

From Tom Corbett, Space Cadet, many ideas and a great deal of the inspiration were drawn for the space cadet theme for L. A.con IV. Anyone interested in far more detailed information on Tom Corbett should refer to www.solarguard.com/tchome.htm. That site was the source of much of the information for this article.

(From the Jungles to the Stars) The Career of Frankie Thomas

by Charles Lee Jackson II

Born into a show business family, his father was character actor Frank M. Thomas, and his mother actress Mona Bruns. Both of his parents had quite respectable careers on stage and in films and television. Ironically, the mother of Tom Corbett appeared as the mother of the Video Ranger (and his brother Hal) on Captain Video. His aunt and uncle were also actors.

Frankie Thomas hit the boards at the tender age of eleven. He started out on stage in Carrie Nation working with a young Jimmy Stewart. After a few other small roles, he appeared in the play Wednesday's Child in the longest role ever written for a child performer to this day. Selected as one of the Ten Best Plays of the Year, the rights to it were picked up by RKO pictures, which brought Frankie to Hollywood to recreate his starring role. His mother and father also appeared in the film.

His next film, the modest but well received A Dog of Flanders, based upon the childrens' classic about the poor Flemish boy and his faithful pooch. O.P. Heggie, today remembered as the blind hermit from that same year's Bride of Frankenstein, as Thomas' aged grandfather, headed up a supporting cast of durable character players.

From then on, Frankie bounced back and forth between Los Angeles and New York. Movies were here. Theater and radio (and, eventually the early days of television) were there. And Frankie did a lot of all of them. Plays like Remember the Day on Broadway, radio programs like Stella Dallas, and movie after movie.

But it was his next assignment that brought him the first of his claims to genre fame, as the star of the 1937 Universal serial, Tim Tyler's Luck. In the days before television, the serial, or chapter-play, was a mainstay of movie-house programs: a kid could go to the local theater and see — for a nickel or a dime — a double feature, comedy short subject, animated cartoon, and a chapter of a continuing adventure, that might run twelve or fifteen weeks before the (hopefully) thrilling conclusion. Three of the industry's smaller studios released most of Hollywood's serials, and they played to appreciative audiences for over 25 years.

Tim Tyler's Luck was based on a popular newspaper strip created by Lyman Young (brother of Chic, of "Blondie" fame) and was easily filmed in less than a month on the extensive back-lot at Universal City, under the watchful eyes of producer Henry MacRae and his new associate Elmer Talbert. Ford Beebe and Wyndham Gittens directed, and Thomas starred as the youthful Tyler, whose common sense was often overridden by his desperate desire to find his lost father (played by vaudevillian Al Shean), a scientist studying apes in darkest Africa. Also along were Frances Robinson as a mysterious girl seeking to clear her brother's name and bring to justice the notorious "Spider" Webb, played by nasty Norman Willis. Billy Benedict and Jack Mulhall, who would later appear together in Adventures of Captain Marvel, villain Anthony Warde, and Alan Bridge, a favorite of director Preston Sturges, provided fine support.

The story progressed in fits and starts, with Tim and friends finding, losing, and re-locating the bad guys and Professor Tyler through the weeks. Tim also made friends with a black panther, and with an elephant who took rather a shine to young Thomas off- as well as on-screen. An interesting sidelight is that the "Jungle Cruiser", a fanciful and futuristic tank featured prominently in the narrative, had been built for the Republic serial Undersea Kingdom (it's the vehicle to which Crash Corrigan is bound when he utters that deathless phrase, "Go ahead and ram!").

Though somewhat dated in appearance due to the graininess of the stock on which the film was shot, Tim Tyler's Luck still holds up well and has a fine period feel to it, and benefits from Thomas' fresh, eager performance as the adventure-prone young hero.

After contributing to M-G-M's class production, Boys' Town, as one of — surprise — the boys, in support to Spencer Tracy and Mickey Rooney, Thomas headed back to Universal to appear in Little Tough Guys in Society, an installment in the series that had been spun off from the "Dead End Kids" across the street at Warners.

It was there, on the other side of Barham Boulevard, that Frankie went next, settling in at Warner Brothers for an extended period, and where he would presently join the original "Dead End" kids toward the end of their work at that studio, in 1939's The Angels Wash Their Faces and the clumsily titled The Dead End Kids On Dress Parade.

But his big splash came in a series he made in parallel with the tough-kid pix. As Ted Nickerson, faithful companion to Nancy Drew, the girl detective embodied by Bonita Granville, he capitalized on his youthful exuberance to convey the perfect combination of impatience, curiosity, and adventurousness. In 1938's Nancy Drew — Detective, and three 1939 releases — Nancy Drew... Reporter, Nancy Drew... Trouble Shooter, and Nancy Drew and the Hidden Staircase — the trouble-bustin' teenagers solved the mysteries and caught the bad guys, with only minimal help from the grown-ups, led by John Litel as Nancy's father Carson Drew.

The remainder of his film career was taken up with a variety of roles, from small parts like the role of a stockboy in the gangster pic Invisible Stripes to parts in films such as One Foot in Heaven and The Major and the Minor.

During World War II, he volunteered for service and spent five years in the Navy. Returning to New York after his tour of duty, he found himself working steadily in radio doing over 1500 shows. As dramatic radio fell before television, Frankie switched channels and moved into the world of television. Liking actors with a background in live theater—after all, television of the time was live and anything could happen—he did guest appearances on all the shows of the period including Studio One and the first five-days-a-week soap opera A Woman to Remember. It was his stage work and his experience in a daily show that Frankie believes helped him get the lead in Tom Corbett, Space Cadet.

The leading character of "Tom Corbett, Space Cadet" is so well realized that it is surprising to learn that the part was originally written to be very different. At first envisioned as a rank neophyte, a naif to whom everything would have to be explained, Tom was changed when Thomas stepped into the role. Corbett, though still a cadet (Frankie's still boyish good looks belied his actual age), became a take-charge, heroic figure. His inexperience and boldness could get him into trouble, but he always had the intelligence and pluck to get back out.

The series' creators took pride in the scientific accuracy of their show, and made sure that the cadets were always depicted as just that: students learning how to be space lawmen. While "Captain Video" relied on gobbledygook and incomprehensible pseudoscience, and "Space Patrol" concentrated on high adventure, Corbett and company tried to keep their stories as close to hard science as the TV format allowed.

After the series wrapped, Thomas retired from acting. After that he took up teaching bridge, something he called "a good way for a former actor to find an audience". He became president of the American Bridge Teachers' Association, editor and publisher of "The Quarterly" bridge magazine, and associate editor of "Popular Bridge" magazine.

He also joined the ranks of professional writers. Surprisingly perhaps, his writings haven't been in the universe of science fiction. Under the name of Frank Thomas, he's written a dozen Sherlock Holmes novels. These have included Sherlock Holmes and the Sacred Sword, Sherlock Holmes and the Golden Bird, Sherlock Holmes and the Masquerade Murders, and combining two of his passions, Sherlock Holmes Bridge Detective.

He felt that, as an actor, where could he go after being the perfect space cadet, Tom Corbett.

For, through low budgets and short schedules, he had made the part his own, bringing the space cadet to the airwaves — both television and radio — from 1950 through 1955. In those years, Corbett and Thomas had many adventures, in space and on public-appearance tours, not to mention mishaps and near-disasters on the set. Thomas has many stories about his exploits, and, often in concert with his buddy Jan (Roger Manning) Merlin, revels in relating them to the many fans he still has, even half a century later.

Noreascon 4

In their November issue, Locus magazine noted that “Noreascon 4 was the most widely reported Worldcon ever.” If you’d like to see some of the reviews of the Worldcon, read about things as they happened in our at-con web log (with guest writers), or view some of the thousands of fan-shot pictures from Boston, see our web site at www.noreascon.org for as many links as we could find! (If you find some we missed, please email us at webmaster@noreascon.org.)

Thank You!

The Committee of Noreascon Four would like to thank the fans who attended, supported, and worked with the 62nd World Science Fiction Convention for helping build a “wicked awesome” fannish family reunion in 2004. Worldcon is all about people with a common passion, and your passion lit the city of Boston in vivid colors.

And, of course, we want to take one last chance to thank our amazing Guests of Honor: Terry Pratchett, Jack Speer, William Tenn, and Peter Weston.

We’re looking forward to seeing many of you in Glasgow, Los Angeles, Yokahama, and wherever else the Worldcon takes us!

Student Science Fiction and Fantasy Contest

Sponsored by

Cascadia Con, the 8th North American Science Fiction Convention, and Baltimore Worldcon 1998, Inc.

Science fiction and fantasy expand horizons and open new worlds for their readers. The stories they tell can take us to the farthest reaches of the universe, explore new facets of the world around us, or take us to a magical realm. . . . Science fiction and fantasy aren't limited to the written word. Science fiction and fantasy art can illustrate a story or tell one of its own. . . . Science fiction is grounded in science fact. The science of today, whether it is exploring the possibility of life on Mars or mapping the human genetic structure, can serve as the basis for science fiction stories.

Cascadia Con, the 8th North American Science Fiction Convention, in conjunction with Baltimore Worldcon 1998, Inc., a section 501(c)(3) charitable organization, is sponsoring a contest for the best short story with a science fiction or fantasy theme, the best science fiction or fantasy artwork, and the best science essay. This contest is open to all students in elementary school(5th grade and below), middle school(6th through 8th grade) and high school(9th through 12th grade). Each entry must include a completed entry form each student may enter/win in any or all of the story, art or essay categories, but may only enter once in each of the categories. Please do not include the student's name on the front of any entry.

The short story must be an original story with a science fiction or fantasy theme. It must be in English, typewritten using a standard business font and double-spaced. It must be at least 5 pages long for students in elementary school, 10 pages long for students in middle school, and 15 pages long for students in high school, and should be no more than 50 pages. Entries will be judged on their originality and creativity, grammar and spelling, structure, character development, plot development, and the use of science fiction and fantasy elements.

The artwork must be an original work with a science fiction or fantasy theme, in pencil, pen & ink, pastels, charcoal, or paint. It must be a flat, two-dimensional piece that is mounted in a mat suitable for hanging, at least 5" by 7" and no more than 11" by 17". It may be an illustration of an existing story or an original idea. Entries will be judged on their originality and creativity, artistic technique, and the use of science fiction and fantasy elements.

The science essay must be a factual work including a list of references used. It must be in English, typewritten using a standard business font and double spaced. It must be at least 3 pages long for elementary school students, 6 pages for middle school students, and 9 pages for high school students, and should be no more than 35 pages. Entries will be judged on content, grammar and spelling, structure, and use of references.

Entries should be mailed to Student Science Fiction and Fantasy Contest, P.O. Box 314, Annapolis Junction, MD 20701, USA. Entries must be postmarked by March 31, 2005 Winners will be announced at a special ceremony honoring the contestants at Cascadia Con on Saturday, September 3, 2005.

Entries may be displayed at science fiction conventions and may be (non-exclusively) published by Baltimore Worldcon 1998, Inc. Entries will not be returned.

All contestants will receive a certificate for participating. Semi-finalists will be invited to attend Cascadia Con for Saturday, September 3, 2005. Finalists will also receive a commemorative T-shirt and a $10 gift certificate from a major book store. The winners will be invited to attend all five days of Cascadia Con and will receive a commemorative T-shirt and a $50 gift certificate from a major book store.

Cascadia Con will be held September 1 through 5, 2005, in Seattle, WA. For more information, see their website at www.cascadiacon.org. For more information about this contest, see www.buconeer.worldcon.org.

Installment Plan

Are our membership rates higher than you can afford right now? Would stretching payments out over a year make joining our convention easier? L.A.con IV has an installment plan under which you can make payments at your leisure over a 12-month period.

All you have to do is buy a Supporting Membership for $50 and let us know you want to buy an Attending Membership on the installment plan. Your Attending Membership rate will be locked at the rate in effect when you enrolled. (The current rate is $150.) Then, over the next 12 months, make payments as often as you want, whenever you can, in the whole dollar amount you want to pay. The rate for the Attending Membership will not go up as long as you complete your payments within 12 months. Your payments plus the $50 you paid for the Supporting Membership must equal the total for the Attending Membership rate at the time you enrolled in the installment plan.

If you fail to complete your payments within the 12-month period, the Attending Membership rate will be unlocked and will go up to its current rate. Payments made after the 12-month period ends will continue to apply to an Attending Membership but at the rate in effect at the time. To start the installment plan or if you have questions, contact us at the convention address or via e-mail at membership@laconiv.org.

Fine Print:

No bills, statements, or reminders will be sent out. It's up to you to remember to make your payments. You cannot transfer your membership to someone else until the membership is fully paid for.

Filk GOH

Heather Alexander and Uffington Horse

Presented by Friends of Filk

Cascadia Con Proudly Presents: Teachers Mini Conference

This intensive one day professional development teacher's and librarian mini conference runs concurrently with the 5 day North American Science Fiction and Fantasy Convention, Cascadia Con. The conference is specifically designed to provide teachers with the tools and concepts needed to successfully integrate the use of Science Fiction with their districts instructional media and requirements. Workshops will feature panel discussions and presentations by professionals in education, science, and science fiction writing. Clock hour credit will be available and we are negotiating college credit at this time. SWOC, the sponsoring organization for Cascadia Con is a non-profit 501(c)(3) literary corporation whose mandate and mission includes education.

Science Fiction and Fantasy Film Festival

Our Film Festival is designed to showcase the abilities of amateur movie/film makers in the Science Fiction, Fantasy and Horror Genre.

We are an audience focused film festival – which means we are seeking to present a broad range of Science Fiction and Fantasy films to an audience which might not otherwise have access to such material.

Categories: Feature Film, Short Film, Animation and Documentary

Special Category: Young Film Maker

This festival will stand apart from the normal Fan-Film type of Film Fest we have previously seen at our local conventions. We have placed "calls for submissions" out worldwide and have had responses from several countries and many interested parties. This will be a professional film festival that will run concurrently with our convention.
