Worldcon 76

TOUR: The Winchester Mystery House (with Meal Stop)	Other	8/14/18 8:30 AM	8/14/18 12:30 PM	VTA Stop	Public	Yes
---	-------	-----------------	------------------	----------	--------	-----

Visitors to San Jose possessing peculiar sensibilities all are drawn to our local vortex of strangeness – The Winchester Mystery House. Located in the heart of Silicon Valley at the intersection of Victorian technology and Victorian weird, Sarah Winchester's folly is a mecca for explorers of steampunk and devotees of the fantastic. This morning tour is when technology reigns. The tours will focus on the strange innovative spirit that permeates the house and the sources of Winchester's compulsion to create, ornament, and augment her ever-growing structure. With elements of Lovecraftian chaos and Escherian paradox, the Winchester House is a monument to dark imagination.

To be followed with an exciting local meal stop.

- This tour is 4 hours long. (Two hours in the Mansion and two hours for lunch)
- This tour is limited to 25 people.

• The $70 fee includes your Mansion Tour Ticket ($27, discounted from $39) and the Bus Ride ($43)
• The meal stop cost is not included
• The Mansion is not ADA compliant, but the Gift Shop, Museum and Garden Tours are available for those with mobility issues. You will receive a full refund for the cost of the Mansion Tour, you only pay for the bus ride.

The pickup location for the group tours will be at the VTA Bus Stop in front of the McEnergy Convention Center.

TOUR: SLAC National Accelerator Laboratory and Alpine Inn Beer Garden	Other	8/16/18 9:00 AM	8/16/18 1:30 PM	VTA Stop	Public	Yes

*Calling all Quantum Mechanics for Bosons, Beer and Burgers!
Built in 1962, The Stanford Linear Accelerator Center is our hometown particle accelerator. Who builds a 2-mile long must-be-perfectly-straight building in earthquake country? We do. It's still the world's longest particle accelerator, has discovered fundamental building blocks of matter, created the first website in North America and is home to four Nobel Laureates.*

And if that wasn't awesome enough, we're capping it off with a leisurely lunch stop at the Alpine Inn Beer Garden. One of the oldest businesses on the Peninsula, it's been a saloon, a gambling house, a stagecoach stop, roadhouse, speakeasy, and (like the Millennium Falcon) has changed ownership in a card game. Today it's a watering hole for Stanford Students. Hmmm, 17 beers on tap and we're doing all the driving. Decisions, decisions.

Tour tickets will be advance sale only, via our registration system.

- This tour is 4.5 hours long
- The fee of $40 covers the bus ride (there is no admission fee for SLAC)
- SLAC is a government facility with some restrictions on admission

From Dystopia to Utopia (and back again) Does a period's historical trends influence the dystopic or utopic themes of writers, and the desires of readers? And why have dystopias seemed more popular generally? A look at both the history of SF/F dystopias and utopias, and the future of new works influenced by our present shifts in history.	Panel	8/16/18 2:00 PM	8/16/18 3:00 PM	210C	Public	Yes
How to Moderate a Panel It may seem a bit meta, but a panel about how to moderate panels is a good way for us to start the convention. Our panelists are all experienced at moderating in a variety of venues and styles. Led by Janice Gelb, we will not only discuss what the moderator should be doing, but what the panelists and audience should expect.	Panel	8/16/18 2:00 PM	8/16/18 3:00 PM	212C	Public	Yes

Nontraditional Materials Costuming Costumers and cosplayers are known for creating costumes out of anything: fabric, foam, plastic, paper, and yarn are just the tip of the iceberg. Nothing is off-limits if you are creative enough. 3D printing, new hobbyist electronics, and other materials are making costuming more accessible and impressive. Find out the things we've used to create costumes.	Panel	8/16/18 2:00 PM	8/16/18 3:00 PM	210G	Public	Yes
Science: The Core of SF's Sense of Wonder Many readers come to science fiction for the jolt of wonder at imagining the clouds of Venus, the chromosphere of the sun, or the frigid surface of Pluto. They want their breath taken away by the long scope of time of evolution and geology and the stars. What is that sense of wonder experience and how do people feel it differently? What science in science fiction most succeeds at getting to those feelings? Our panel of writers and readers of scifi wax rhapsodic about science in science fiction.	Panel	8/16/18 2:00 PM	8/16/18 3:00 PM	210DH	Public	Yes
Swing Dance Workshop The dance we'll be learning a bit of is the "swing dance" that was most popular during the 40s big band era and until the early rock-and-roll years. It has been, and still is, known by many names. Some call it "rock 'n' roll dancing", but essentially the same dance was popular long before rock 'n' roll happened. Some simply call it "swing", but many very different dances are all forms of "swing dancing." The dancers on American Bandstand in the 50s just called it "the fast dance". At a dance studio today it'll likely be called "single time east coast swing"; in a studio that focuses on ballroom competition, you'll find a related dance called "jive." In many other places it's commonly called "jitterbug". This is THE popular dance of the Retro-Hugo era. Roles are "lead" and "follow". LGBTQI+ welcome!	Dance	8/16/18 2:00 PM	8/16/18 3:30 PM	LL20	Public	Yes

The Scurrilous History of Fandom Feuds, Langdon charts, naked ladies in elevators and naked men in rosebushes. There's a lot about fandom and science fiction that you may not know. In this panel, we tell some of the less repeatable stories about fandom. Hey, it's history.		8/16/18 2:00 PM	8/16/18 3:00 PM	210A	Public	Yes
What Turns People Onto Horror The oldest and strongest emotion of mankind is fear, and the oldest and strongest kind of fear is fear of the unknown. Roller coasters and skydiving, horror movies and dark fiction, mythology and folklore: what scares us and why are we drawn to it? Members of the Bay Area chapter of the Horror Writers Association share their first experiences with horror and discuss how their fears inspire their work. Audience members are encouraged to share their own experiences.	Panel	8/16/18 2:00 PM	8/16/18 3:00 PM	210E	Public	Yes
Writing About Fighting Join four writers and a fighter for tips on how to put the punch in your fight scenes. From traditional martial arts to the combat styles of the future, a well-crafted fight reveals character, advances plot, and just plain entertains. We'll talk about key elements to include, what to leave to the reader's imagination, and how to make it convincing even if you've never hit a heavy bag or handled a weapon.	Panel	8/16/18 2:00 PM	8/16/18 3:00 PM	210B	Public	Yes
WSFS Mark Protection Committee Meeting The WSFS Mark Protection Committee is the only permanent body of the World Science Fiction Society. Astounding: The Golden Age of Science Fiction Alec Nevala-Lee is the author of Astounding: John W. Campbell, Isaac Asimov, Robert A. Heinlein, L. Ron Hubbard, and the Golden Age of Science Fiction, which will be released in fall 2018. The book is the first full biography of Campbell, the legendary editor of Astounding Science Fiction and Analog, and one of the few recent studies of the history of science fiction aimed at a large popular audience. Alec will give a short reading, answer questions, and lead a discussion of the book's four central subjects, their work, and their complicated legacies.	Talk	8/16/18 3:00 PM	8/16/18 4:00 PM	210E	Public	Yes
Beyond Yaoi: Trends in LGBTQ+ Representation in Anime & Manga Outside of traditionally same-sex genres, how common are LGBTQ+ characters in anime and manga and how are they portrayed? Lesbian and gay characters are often found in "first love" situations, but older couples are almost unheard-of. Transgender characters often fall into "comic relief" roles, but there are exceptions. What lessons can we learn from examining good and bad examples of representation? How have trends shifted as audiences have evolved?	Talk	8/16/18 3:00 PM	8/16/18 4:00 PM	212C	Public	Yes
Carriger & Adina Talk Steampunk (tea and silliness optional) Gail Carriger (the Parasol Protectorate and Custard Protocol series) and Shelley Adina (the Magnificent Devices series) write steampunk with a feminist and funny bent. Join them for some laughter, some craft, some great clothes, and a little speculation about why steampunk lends itself so well to strong heroines.	Panel	8/16/18 3:00 PM	8/16/18 4:00 PM	210G	Public	Yes

Forgotten Victorian Fantasy Art	Talk	8/16/18 3:00 PM	8/16/18 4:00 PM	210A	Public	Yes
A vast number of terrific 19th century fantasy paintings are seldom or never seen. Richard Hescocox will show you obscure paintings by artists you know and many by artists you should know.
Historical Fencing: What Really Happens	Panel	8/16/18 3:00 PM	8/16/18 4:00 PM	210DH	Public	Yes
Fantasy novels, in particular, often include swords and fencing. But how realistic is what you're reading? Our experts from St. Michael's Salle d'Armes will discuss the types of wounds you might see, the history behind the swords and their use, and the different types of swords and armor.
International Fandom	Panel	8/16/18 3:00 PM	8/16/18 4:00 PM	210F	Public	Yes
We are everywhere! There are fans (of some kind) from the Arctic to the Antarctic circles, and on every continent. Of course, different cultures produce very different subcultures. How are Finnish conventions different from the ones in China, or Argentina? Do American folk songs translate well enough to sing in Johannesburg? Worldcon is about how we all form one super-organism of universal fandom—let's talk about how we relate to each other.
Reboots, Reimaginings, and Relaunches	Panel	8/16/18 3:00 PM	8/16/18 4:00 PM	210C	Public	Yes
Many franchises have been rebooted or reimagined. When does this change to "bait and switch" marketing or go so far from the concept of the original that it offends those who loved the original? Examples of controversial reboots include Battlestar Galactica, Star Trek Discovery, and Ghost Busters. When does the new version become the definitive version? STTNG, the Jackson LOTR movies and Westworld come to mind. Does the success or criticism of these relaunched reflect attitudes and issues in the broader society?

Unearthing Hidden Analog Indie Games		8/16/18 3:00 PM	8/16/18 4:00 PM	211C	Public	Yes
There's a whole world out there of independent analog games, including tabletop RPGs, larps, and board and card games, that is largely invisible to mainstream gamers. Some qualities that are common in these games--such as a focus on storytelling over mechanics, tight-knit creative communities, and inventive production modalities--have allowed for the creation of radically inclusive game experiences, including inspiring LGBT+ designers to create tremendously exciting art that is relevant to their own and other queer lives. Join this panel of queer game designers and players as they discuss some of their favorite queer analog games and how you can play them at home.

How Gaming is Important to Fandom Despite being an intersection of innovative storytelling formats, fantastic visual artistry, audio dramas, and community interaction, gaming's place in sci-fi, fantasy, and horror is often overlooked. How do card, board, video, and other games continue to influence the way genre stories are told? And now with the advent of podcasting, how has fandom responded to the distributed performance of these games?	Panel	8/16/18 4:00 PM	8/16/18 5:00 PM	211C	Public	Yes
Iron Bardic/Impromptu Poetry Workshop A two part workshop, in which we first discuss techniques and approaches to writing and performing poetry on little or short notice. Movement and Motion in a Rotating Space Habitat Work out in the "hamster wheel" from 2001: A Space Odyssey and you learn the hard way that movement in a rotating habitat is nothing like the movies. Jump wrong and you simply float away. Run fast and increase "gravity." Or decrease it. Or be forced to the side. This presentation will include active computer simulations of moving in a rotating habitat, and the strange effects we can expect there. Hopefully, we'll all learn a thing or two.	Talk	8/16/18 4:00 PM	8/16/18 5:00 PM	210A	Public	Yes
My First Worldcon Now that you're here, what do you do? Worldcon has a plethora of program items, events, exhibits and other things to see and experience. Night Flyers Q&A Don't miss legendary author George R.R. Martin and showrunner/EP Jeff Buhler for an intimate conversation about SYFY's highly anticipated new series -- NIGHTFLYERS based on Martin's novella. Set in the year 2093, NIGHTFLYERS is a psychological thriller that follows a team of scientists aboard the most advanced ship ever built. Their mission takes them to the edge of space but also to the edge of insanity, as they realize true horror isn't waiting for them out there -- it's already on their ship. Experience the terror, and a special sneak peek, during the panel. *Portions of this panel will be filmed for promotional use by SYFY and its partners.	Panel	8/16/18 4:00 PM	8/16/18 5:00 PM	LL21AB	Public	Yes
Ordinary People Sometimes, main characters in a story are ordinary people - not everyone is extraordinary. Can such a focus make a story more powerful? What makes them appealing? How does such a story differ from a story of heroes and villains?	Panel	8/16/18 4:00 PM	8/16/18 5:00 PM	210F	Public	Yes
Self-Publishing 101 What's working today, what are the must-haves, and what are the don't-bothers for the indie published author.	Panel	8/16/18 4:00 PM	8/16/18 5:00 PM	210G	Public	Yes
Tomorrow Through the Past From Asimov's Foundation to Palmer's Terra Ignota, writers have been using examples from history to worldbuild the future, whether it's putting the Napoleonic Wars or Vietnam in space or re-enacting the settlement of the American west on other planets. Ken MacLeod has said "history is the trade secret of science fiction." Why do we have this compulsion to re-enact the past when thinking about the future, and what are some of the advantages of doing it?	Panel	8/16/18 4:00 PM	8/16/18 5:00 PM	210DH	Public	Yes

If This, Then What?	Panel	8/17/18 10:00 AM	8/17/18 11:00 AM	210DH	Public	Yes
What if Hannibal and his elephants had frozen in the Alps, and never made it to Rome? What if the Catholics had never gained a hold on 11th-Century Spain? How can we extrapolate what would have changed, as a result of one of these turning points, or another--not just politically, but in culture, commerce, and daily life? Where do you begin? What do you focus on when constructing an alternate history, and what do you set aside? Also, what (if anything) would stay the same?

Volunteering for Worldcon or Other Conventions - The What, Why, & How of It	Panel	8/17/18 10:00 AM	8/17/18 11:00 AM	212C	Public	Yes
Have you thought about volunteering for a convention but weren't sure whether there would be anything you'd want to do? Or didn't know how to go about volunteering? Do you have other questions about con volunteering? Our panelists would love to r/e/c/r/u/i/t enlighten you! First-time volunteers, in particular, don't know what help is needed to make a con happen. They often don't know how to volunteer, and if they do, they often don't know what to say about themselves to get a volunteer placement that will make both them & the con happy.
WSFS Business Meeting #1	Other	8/17/18 10:00 AM	8/17/18 1:00 PM	230	Public	Yes
The WSFS Business Meeting, open to all attending members, is where the rules of the World Science Fiction Society are changed, including the Hugo Awards and the selection of future Worldcons. All members can debate and vote on changes. Today's meeting is the Preliminary Business Meeting, where the agenda is set for the rest of this year's meeting. Debate time limits are set here, and procedural rule changes and resolutions can be adopted. This meeting receives reports from various WSFS committees, and nominates members to the WSFS Mark Protection Committee, the only permanent body of WSFS. New proposals to amend the WSFS Constitution can be killed upon introduction at this meeting; and such item killed at today's meeting will not be heard at meetings later at this Worldcon. The WSFS Business Meetings are recorded, and the recordings will be posted to the YouTube Worldcon Events Channel. If you attend this meeting, your voice and image may appear in these recordings.
Young Adult: Looking at the World Through a Skewed Lens	Panel	8/17/18 10:00 AM	8/17/18 11:00 AM	210E	Public	Yes
One of the key advantages that SFF has is allowing us to tip the real world to the side to expose the interconnective tissue. This is often a powerful lens for Young Adult authors. It allows them to obscure issues with fantastic set dressing. Our panelists look at what that skewed lens offers, be it fantasy, science fiction, steampunk or other genres. How does it affect the stories they can tell and the audiences they can attract? What are some of the best ways to leverage the skewed lens of SFF for a Young Adult audience?
AT: Depictions of Libraries, Librarians, and Knowledge Work in SF and Fantasy	Panel	8/17/18 11:00 AM	8/17/18 12:00 PM	211D	Public	Yes
The library, no matter what it's called or what it looks like, will remain an integral resource in the future. Our reference librarian team of Mary-Michelle Moore and Jillian Holt will discuss the portrayal of library work in futuristic SF and Fantasy.

Classics of SciFi: The Sword of Rhiannon	Discussion	8/17/18 11:00 AM	8/17/18 12:00 PM	212C	Public	Yes
The Sword of Rhiannon has been called Leigh Brackett's best early work; concise, eloquent, fresh, poetic. "Why a sword?" is answered, also "Is this science fiction?" Perhaps unanswerable by human beings, but addressed, are questions of identity, motive, recognition, and will, during an adventure in our great romantic tradition.
Collaborators in Genre: The Writer Calls On The Scientist	Talk	8/17/18 11:00 AM	8/17/18 12:00 PM	210B	Public	Yes
Sci-Fi authors commonly take liberty with the reality of how the world actually works. But how does the author get the background knowledge to know what is and isn't possible and when to play fast and loose with the facts of real (and current) science. Join an author and a science consultant as they discuss the intersection between real science and science fiction, as well as the working relationship between an author and consulting expert.

Intro to American Sign Language	Workshop	8/17/18 11:00 AM	8/17/18 12:00 PM	212B	Public	Yes
Learning American Sign Language is an important community building tool. Deaf people have been part of fandom for years, and the best way to both support Deaf fan engagement, and Deaf creator engagement is to build bridges through language. This workshop intends to give you some of the basics, so that you can interact with fellow SFF fans and creators, and create a more welcoming Worldcon for all.

Opioid Crisis -- Fact and Fiction	Panel	8/17/18 11:00 AM	8/17/18 12:00 PM	210A	Public	Yes
There are people with chronic pain who need opioids and there are people who are abusing opioids. The news is full of headlines about "opiate abuse". Are some of the statements being made false or inaccurate? How do we make sure that people in pain obtain the relief that modern medicine can provide and still at the same time protect against the misuse of these medications?
Paying it Forward	Panel	8/17/18 11:00 AM	8/17/18 12:00 PM	210DH	Public	Yes
For nearly 100 years, fans have been doing scientifiction things together. Whether arguing the merits of Doc Smith, fighting about most anything, or inventing plaid ink, fans have produced literally tons of publications, countless criticisms and arguments, and conventions to have them at. What we are today, and what fandom is grew out of what they did. We can't thank them, but we can pay it forward by making sure they are not forgotten. We'll talk about where we came from, and how you can keep our history alive. Fandom is what we make it. Fan history is what we preserve of it.
Pronouns Matter -- Gender Courtesy for Fans	Panel	8/17/18 11:00 AM	8/17/18 12:00 PM	210C	Public	Yes
Spend an hour talking about pronoun and identity variations, and why they matter to our fellow fans. How do we ask about pronouns? What possible pronouns are there? How can we make our fannish spaces more inclusive when we write, name, and interact with other fans?

Successfully Negotiating Book Contracts	Panel	8/17/18 11:00 AM	8/17/18 12:00 PM	211C	Public	Yes
A publisher's interest and an author's are not always in perfect alignment. Enter the contract. Each clause in the contract exists for a reason. Which ones protect an author's interest and which ones benefit the publisher? How do you ask for changes? What are the rights an author should be prepared to give up and which ones should you fight tooth and nail for. Hear from agents and other industry experts on how to survive your book contract negotiation with your skin, and your rights, intact.

The Myth of the Astronaut - Who Are the Space Cadets of Yesterday, Today, and Tomorrow?	Panel	8/17/18 11:00 AM	8/17/18 12:00 PM	210E	Public	Yes
The current definition of an astronaut is someone who crosses the Karman line: 62 miles from the surface of the Earth. With Virgin Galactic selling trips over the line to more than 700 people already, let's start to ask ourselves: who have these idols of society been, really, and how are we going to re-shape our narrative of what an astronaut is and should be in the coming years?

The Power of Names – Naming Characters: Techniques and Thoughts	Panel	8/17/18 11:00 AM	8/17/18 12:00 PM	212D	Public	Yes
Few things cause writers as much angst as naming their characters. A poor choice can create dissonance that undermines our storytelling. A good choice sounds inevitable, and may even reverberate in the outside world, where people may name pets or even children after beloved characters. Let's discuss techniques of crafting names, pitfalls in naming, and ways SFF names appear in the wider world.

Translation & Communication of Chinese Science Fiction	Panel	8/17/18 11:00 AM	8/17/18 12:00 PM	210F	Public	Yes
Chinese science fiction has been phenomenal in recent years: Liu Cixin and Hao Jingfang winning Hugos with their translated stories, the on-going Chinese science fiction translation project on Clarkesworld, the upcoming anthologies and novels of contemporary Chinese science fiction published in various languages. Chinese science fiction has a large visibility globally. What's special about it? How does it get here? What can be learned from the case? This panel brings in editors, translators, authors and industry practitioners together to give general introduction and discuss about special cases.

Report to the Bridge! Artemis Spaceship Bridge Simulator turns any room into the bridge of a spaceship. You and your friends assume the jobs of Captain, Helm, Science, Communication, Engineering, and Weapon Control. Together you operate your ship and defend the sector from evil aliens. Artemis is a social game where several players are together in one room ("bridge"), and while they all work together, one player plays the Captain, a person who sits in the middle, doesn't have a workstation, and tells everyone what to do. Our staff will walk you through the simulation. Be prepared for some unannounced special games over the weekend.
AT: Frankenstein: Matter, Life, and Death	Panel	8/17/18 12:00 PM	8/17/18 1:00 PM	211D	Public	Yes
This academic panel features two papers addressing Mary Shelley's Frankenstein and its portrayal of creation. King's paper reads Frankenstein in contrast to Hans Heinz Ewers' novel Alraune and its portrayal of an artificially created woman. Volk's paper contextualizes the novel within larger debates about the relationship between the body and soul within late Enlightenment science.

Borderlines	Panel	8/17/18 12:00 PM	8/17/18 1:00 PM	210B	Public	Yes
Humans divide things. We divide life into plants, animals, etc. We divide colors into ROY G BIV. We divide the Earth into things we call "Nations." None of those borders are found in the world--they are ways our human minds divide things for our own convenience. National borders are historically recent. Borders between races and languages are arbitrary and arguable. Is it even possible or useful to have "borders" between spacefaring civilizations? In cyberspace? How about between Science Fiction and Fantasy and Horror, or between cyberpunk and MiSF and "hard" SF? Come help our panel of writers and scholars put the pieces together (or not).
Costuming Outside the Box	Talk	8/17/18 12:00 PM	8/17/18 1:00 PM	211C	Public	Yes
Do you feel nervous about wearing costumes because you feel you might not have the right body type or gender to portray a particular character? Would you be uncomfortable wearing a costume because you feel it's too revealing? Are you nervous about wearing a costume when you think your sewing/crafting/assembling skills are not good enough? We'll discuss ways to overcome your fears and concerns about cosplaying/costuming and put yourself "out there" on display with courage. Suitable for kids!

Geeks Guide to Literary Theory	Talk	8/17/18 12:00 PM	8/17/18 1:00 PM	210F	Public	Yes
Once upon a time, some teacher may have tried to convince you of the right way to read. Lit theory is not about the "right" or "wrong." It's like a wibbly-wobbly group of lenses through which we view art to gain a greater understanding of the work. Geek culture has already mastered at several of these lenses. Come find out what lenses you already use and learn about other. Plus, you'll get to sound hella smart at parties.

The Culinary Speculative: Food In Fiction	Panel	8/17/18 12:00 PM	8/17/18 1:00 PM	210C	Public	Yes
Food is crucial to identity, and also intersects heavily with class, gender, and power. How does speculative fiction engage with these intersections? How do we use food as a lens to examine cultural narratives, or even to move beyond dominant Western narratives--for instance, who gets to decide what's a delicacy and what's disgusting? Whose appetites are catered to, and whose are labeled monstrous?
The Danger of Near-Earth Asteroids: Are We Doing Enough? What More Should We Do?		8/17/18 12:00 PM	8/17/18 1:00 PM	210DH	Public	Yes
Many thousands of asteroids cross the orbit of our planet in their paths around the Sun. Collisions with such asteroids are inevitable; we have good evidence on such collision led to the "great dying" epoch that killed the dinosaurs. New observing programs are helping us to catalog all the asteroids that might be a danger to us one day. Close-up missions to asteroids are finding out more about their make-up and vulnerabilities. What would we do if an asteroid with real destructive capabilities were heading our way?

We live in the Golden Age of astronomy and astrophysics, and one instrument has single-handedly contributed the most to this revolution in our understanding of our Solar System, our Galaxy, and the Universe... NASA's Hubble Space Telescope. Where would we be without it? Through its images, we've looked back in time over 13 billion years to view the early Universe, and obtained jaw-dropping images of galaxies, nebulae, and infant star systems that were not possible before. Is Hubble the most important human-created tool in Earth's history? Is this space-based telescope, its electronics and instruments, the knowledge it has spurred, and its effects upon all of us as important as fire, the wheel, electricity, or our many other great innovations?

Beyond the Border I: What Is Happening to SF on the Other Side?	Panel	8/17/18 3:00 PM	8/17/18 4:00 PM	210A	Public	Yes
At the Golden Globes when asked how he balanced darkness and joy, Guillermo del Toro answered "Because I'm Mexican". What does "being Mexican" mean within the context of science fiction? What does writing in Spanish mean for its future? There's movement on the other side of the border, a one-sided conversation where English-language SF is happening. We want to expand it and bring it forward. All over Latin America and Spain, SFi is rising again. We want to talk about what shapes it is taking, and how this viewpoint may be changing. Is there a Latino-futurism? What does it look like?

TOUR: The Winchester Mystery House (with Meal Stop)	Other	8/17/18 3:30 PM	8/17/18 7:45 PM	VTA Stop	Public	Yes
Visitors to San Jose possessing peculiar sensibilities all are drawn to our local vortex of strangeness – The Winchester Mystery House. Located in the heart of Silicon Valley at the intersection of Victorian technology and Victorian weird, Sarah Winchester's folly is a mecca for explorers of steampunk and devotees of the fantastic. This dinnertime tour is when mystery takes over. The tours will focus on the strange innovative spirit that permeates the house and the sources of Winchester's compulsion to create, ornament, and augment her ever-growing structure. With elements of Lovecraftian chaos and Escherian paradox, the Winchester House is a monument to dark imagination. To be followed with an exciting local meal stop. Tour tickets will be advance sale only, via our registration system. <ul style="list-style-type: none"> This tour is 4 hours long. This tour is limited to 25 people. The $70 fee includes your Mansion Tour Ticket ($27, discounted from $39) and the Bus Ride ($43) The Dinner stop cost is not included The Mansion is not ADA compliant, but the Gift Shop, Museum and Garden Tours are available for those with mobility issues. You will receive a partial refund for the Mansion Tour. The pickup location for the group tours will be at the VTA Stop in front of the McEnery Convention Center.
Afrofuturism: From Octavia to T'Challa	Talk	8/17/18 4:00 PM	8/17/18 5:00 PM	210DH	Public	Yes
Afrofuturism is the science fiction, fantasy, and horror produced by or dealing with the children of the African diaspora. While it extends into music, art, and even fashion, it is movies like Black Panther and the literary works of Octavia Butler and Samuel Delaney that spring first to most minds. Join us for a celebration of an incredibly energetic and popular creative movement, hosted by Afrofuturism pioneer Steven Barnes.

Architecture in Worldbuilding: The Structures of Your World	Panel	8/17/18 4:00 PM	8/17/18 5:00 PM	210E	Public	Yes
What a people builds says a lot about their society – whether they live in tents, or skyscrapers, or turf huts. Buildings reflect a community's history and resources, values, fears and conflicts. Decisions about what gets built and where may be intensely political. At the same time, individuals are shaped by the structures they live in. In speculative fiction, the function and appearance of structures are critical choices for world-building. What opportunities does architecture offer to a writer?

Evolution of the Fanzine	Panel	8/17/18 4:00 PM	8/17/18 5:00 PM	210C	Public	Yes
The earliest form of fannish communication was through the letter columns. Fans found this didn't give them enough interaction and the fanzine was born. Although more immediate forms of social media now exist, fanzines have evolved, and they still exist alongside Facebook, Twitter, and Instagram. What do fanzines have to offer that other forms of communication don't have? Where does fanzine activity take place and how can someone find fanzines in an electronic world so far removed from the original fans?
Fandom & Costuming	Panel	8/17/18 4:00 PM	8/17/18 5:00 PM	210G	Public	Yes
Aren't feedback loops fun? Costume competitions go way back in fandom. Wearing costumes at fan events naturally followed. Costuming grew and began its own subsets of special interests. Some of those spun off into sub fandoms.

Gender-Free Contra Dance	Dance	8/17/18 4:00 PM	8/17/18 6:00 PM	LL20	Public	Yes
Contra dance is an American community dance form with lively jigs, reels and old-time music. Partners pair up for one dance; the one on the left is lark, the one on the right is the raven, and anyone can be in either role. The dance form has roots hundreds of years back, but the "larks" and "ravens" roles are cutting-edge, developed in the Bay Area in 2011. Alan is an experienced contra caller and will guide you through the figures even if you have no experience. For best results come at the beginning, and dance rather than watch. Gender-role-free teaching; LGBTQI+ welcome! Live music! "A contra dance is like an amusement park ride we make for ourselves."

Playing for a Better World: Social Activism in Games Any system expresses a worldview; games, as systems to be played, are no different. Indie games like Borders by Gonzalo Alvarez and Depression Quest by Zöe Quinn exist expressly to engage with social issues. Other games, such as Choice of the Deathless by Max Gladstone and Monsterhearts by Avery Alder aren't about specific issues, but seek to normalize a diverse range of experiences. What are some of the ways games agitate for change, question the status quo, or spark awareness? The Victorian & Edwardian Tech Tree -- Why Didn't They Build Tanks, Submarines & Airships?	Talk	8/17/18 5:00 PM	8/17/18 6:00 PM	210E	Public	Yes
Everyone who has played the Civ series of games is familiar with the concept of a tech tree. The Victorians and Edwardians were more technically advanced than many people realize. They had most or all of the technology to build Airships, Tanks, Submarines and many advances we link with the 20th century. Why weren't these used until later?
Steve Frankel presents an overview of the technology available during the late 19th century and what may have prevented its wide spread acceptance. This is a fun review of history as well as a reality check for those writing alternate history and steampunk.
Tom Swift, Makers & SF	Panel	8/17/18 5:00 PM	8/17/18 6:00 PM	210G	Public	Yes
Every Fan knows about Tom Swift, the teenage millionaire inventor who, in each book in the huge series, develops an amazing device and uses it to make a fortune or defeat an enemy (or both). When the first of the books was written the devices were pushing the limits of possible and of affordable. Today, the Maker Movement has shown that there are many interesting and useful gadgets that can be made easily and cheaply using readily available materials and tools. The Tom Swift-like Maker is no longer a very common SF trope, but it should be. The panel of Makers, Engineers and Fen discusses gadgets from various pieces of SF which can, or might, be achievable by existing makers.

Getting Into Comics: Why You Should, and How You Can To many people, "comics" means people in brightly-colored costumes fighting each other in cheaply-printed pamphlets of paper. That isn't so true in 2018. In a world of webcomics, indie comics, self-published comics, and of graphic storytelling that includes every genre from romance to steampunk (and yes, you can still find super-hero stories), where can you start? What's the good stuff, and how can I find what I might like?	Panel	8/18/18 10:00 AM	8/18/18 11:00 AM	210G	Public	Yes
Historical Swordfighting and Weapons Demo Whether in fantasy or science fiction, swords and other bladed weapons are common. But what is it really like to use a sword? Is it really heavy? Join our experts from St. Michael's Salle d'Armes as they demonstrate the different styles of swords, from two-handed through small swords, as well as the appropriate protective and auxillary gear for each era. A group lesson with longsword will be included (size limited to the number of practice weapons available).	Other	8/18/18 10:00 AM	8/18/18 12:00 PM	LL20	Public	Yes
How Would a Civilization Evolve If...: How Human and Nonhuman Concepts of "Universe" is Shaped by Their Environment Since humans' origins on Earth, our place in the solar system has dictated our biology and physiology, our understanding of the universe, even our religious dogma. Imagine how humanity could have evolved differently in a planetary system unlike our own. For instance, what if we lived in a much more compact system, with smaller distances between planets? How would different gravity on other possible Earth-like worlds change biology and physiology?	Panel	8/18/18 10:00 AM	8/18/18 11:00 AM	210E	Public	Yes

Evolving Military SF Military SF is a constantly evolving genre because the tools of war change. Battlefield technology, autonomous weapons, small-scale printable autonomous weapons, off-the-shelf mods (use of small drones by ISIS for example), so-called "centaurs" (human/machine teaming). With the rise of private military companies, and the ability of the extremely wealthy to purchase private armies it often feels like the real world is coming closer to SF. At the same time, the core of military SF is the sense of a team, which has not changed since swords. Ursula K. Le Guin, Spider Robinson, and Peter S. Beagle all credit Edgar Pangborn's fiction as an inspiration. Born in 1909 to a literary family, his work created a "humanist" school of science fiction which focused on human, emotional stories. He mentored these young writers through letters and, to a great degree, through his fiction. Yet today, he is largely undiscovered by 21st-century readers. Peter S. Beagle and Spider Robinson sit down to talk about Pangborn's work, the man, and his influence.

SPACE COMMAND is an original Epic Science Fiction Drama series that follows the adventures of the United Planet's Space Command, a dedicated group of scientists, soldiers and adventurers exploring the solar system. The series recalls the space operas of the golden age of science fiction that enthralled audiences with an optimistic view of future and a belief in the triumphant spirit of mankind. Seen through the eyes of three families, the KEMMERS, the ODARAS and the SEKANDERS spearhead a new wave of settlers who head out into the new frontier as the exploration, settlement and development of Mars, the asteroid belt and the outer moons and planets of our solar system begins – and you can be there with SPACE COMMAND! Tech Towns and Smart Cities: Urban Planning and Silicon Valley Alternatives	Panel	8/18/18 4:00 PM	8/18/18 5:00 PM	210B	Public	Yes
Portrayals of smart cities and technological towns abound within SF, and they are swiftly becoming reality. These new technologies have the ability to change the world, not just for tech reasons, but for inclusive reasons as well. Whether the real-world developments like Silicon Valley's Google Data Center or the "City of the Future" in Abu Dhabi, or SFF portrayals like Metropolis, Blade Runner, or "Folding Beijing", urban planning continues to change as infrastructure capabilities and technology change. Can these new technologies be used to break down barriers instead of build new ones?

Even as newer writers rebel against some of Campbell's ideas, he still exerts an influence.	Panel	8/18/18 4:00 PM	8/18/18 5:00 PM	210F	Public	Yes
The Body and The Shadow of the Imagination How necessary is the visual or descriptive charge of an image in science fiction? How much do you have to let the viewer see and when do you suggest so that the reader's imaginative engine works by itself? How do we open dialogues with the reader or viewer so that they activate their own channels of imaginative communication?	Panel	8/18/18 4:00 PM	8/18/18 5:00 PM	211C	Public	Yes
The Evolution of Science Fiction Music From the cosmic jazz of Sun Ra in the '50s to David Bowie's anthems of alienation in the '70s all the way to Janelle Monae's Dirty Computer and clipping.'s Hugo-nominated posthuman hip hop of today, science fiction music has paralleled and reflected the SF canon for decades. What can we learn from this evolution? And where do we think it will be going in the future?	Panel	8/18/18 4:00 PM	8/18/18 5:00 PM	212D	Public	Yes
YA Books and YA Comics: What do they have to learn from each other? The young adult book market, as a defined group of consumers experienced an explosion in recent decades, and comic books, aimed at teens and adults for many year, now more deliberately targets YA, MG and all ages consumers. What do YA/MG comic books and YA/MG books have to learn from one another?	Panel	8/18/18 4:00 PM	8/18/18 5:00 PM	210G	Public	Yes
Lively Bouncy English Ceilidh ("kay-lee") It's not an Irish ceili or a Scottish ceilidh, it's an English ceilidh!What's that? In the late 1960s and early 1970s, a movement started in English folk music clubs to have parties with traditional English music (that is, stuff collected from the English countryside, whether or not it originated with a known composer) and easy traditional dances. Aware of the meaning of the "ceilidh" (in Scots Gaelic) of an evening party with music, they started calling those parties "English Ceilidhs". That movement goes on today, and English Ceilidh dances have pretty much taken up the social function of an American "Barn Dance" - community dancing for non-hobbyists, done at folk festivals like Sidmouth, weddings, school mixers, PTA fundraisers, ceilidh dance series and the audience for it is quite mixed - there are a lot of Uni student dancers and callers as well as old hippies. Music is whatever works, from the bass-heavy electric sound of a band like Peeping Tom to the eclectically-sourced Scandi tunes of the Committee Band to African-influenced Boka Harat. We bring you an authentic Englishman playing and calling an authentic English ceilidh. Check it out - you'll bounce, you'll sweat, you'll grin. Afrofuturism: It Ain't New Millions of people learned the term Afrofuturism when Black Panther became a box office sensation. However, this ain't new. Sun Ra, Parliament Funkadelic, Earth, Wind, and Fire, Octavia E. Butler, and Samuel R. Delany created a foundation that inspired musicians, artists, and writers like Janelle Monae, Nisi Shawl, Nalo Hopkinson, Kyle Yearwood and others long before Ryan Coogler brought T'Challa to the big screen. Author vs Fan Ownership How much do readers "own" the books they read? Writing is a private art intended for public display. Once the story is out of the writer's hands, it can take on a life of its own--inspiring fandoms, fantheories, and fan interpretations that can vary widely from the author's. How much do the fans own the work? Can you (and should you) divorce the writer from their fiction? What is the writer's role in participating via social media in debunking or encouraging fan theories? Can the author be "wrong" about their own work? Our panel of authors and expert fans discuss the various and increasingly complex interactions between work, author, and reader.	Panel	8/18/18 5:00 PM	8/18/18 6:00 PM	210DH	Public	Yes

Just like the cultural difference between Chinese and Western fantasy, there are also gaps between our readers. On this panel, we will introduce the origins of Chinese and Western fantasy culture, and compare the tastes and preferences of our readers. Beyond the differences, will there be anything universal? What does Game of Thrones and the Novoland series share in common? Fantasy Aliens We often think of aliens as science fictional beings--extraterrestrials--but there is also a rich tradition of crossover between fantasy and science fiction. Lovecraft gave us alien-like monsters in his fantasy stories, while Anne McCaffrey gave us fantastical dragons in her science fiction. As our stories and storytelling methods evolve, how is the crossover potential of science fiction and fantasy evolving with it? WSFS Business Meeting #3 The WSFS Business Meeting, open to all attending members, is where the rules of the World Science Fiction Society are changed, including the Hugo Awards and the selection of future Worldcons. All members can debate and vote on changes. Today's meeting is the Site Selection Meeting. At the start of the meeting, the official results of the 2019 NASFiC and 2020 Worldcons will be announced, and the winning bids will make their initial presentations. This will be followed by Question Time for the 2019 Worldcon, and (time permitting) brief presentations from groups bidding for the 2020 NASFiC (if required) and the 2021 Worldcon. After a short recess after Site Selection, the Second Main Business Meeting will resume consideration of business where yesterday's meeting left off. The WSFS Business Meetings are recorded, and the recordings will be posted to the YouTube Worldcon Events Channel. If you attend this meeting, your voice and image may appear in these recordings. Today's meeting will end before 12:30 to allow time for the Worldcon Chairs' Photo Session, which will be held shortly after the meeting.	Other	8/19/18 10:00 AM	8/19/18 1:00 PM	230	Public	Yes

We Dressed Those Girls: Subverting Tropes or Reinforcing the Status Quo?	Panel	8/19/18 11:00 AM	8/19/18 12:00 PM	210F	Public	Yes
When Zack "let's subvert the trope of Hollywood objectifying women by objectifying women" Snyder directed the film Sucker Punch, he explained why the film focused on scantily clad young women imprisoned in a brothel from which they occasionally escape with monster weaponry to kill people and explode things. "I didn't dress those girls in the costume. The audience dressed those girls," he opined. "They start out as cliches of feminine sexuality as made physical by what culture creates."
In this panel we ask: Who is responsible for what culture creates? How difficult is it to actually subvert tropes, and how often do attempts to subvert tropes turn into reinforcements of the status quo? When as creators and audience are we sabotaged by our unexamined pre-sets, and how do we dig out from under them? Finally, under what circumstances can a narrative choice that may seem trivial or status quo become the biggest trope subverter of all?

Sciencing the Heck out of Exposition One of the joys of hard science-fiction is the science itself. Sometimes you can gloss over the details of exactly how doubly uniparental inheritance of mitochondrialDNA works, and sometimes you need people to know about the package in the sperm's tail. Sometimes the rocket just launches, and sometimes you need the reader to understand the details of orbital mechanics. The Hugos are named after Jewish inventor Hugo Gernsback, who coined the term "science fiction" and Judaism has had a big influence on the genre before and since. Jewish stories frequently explore diaspora, almost featuring it as a character or trait with space being the natural extension of that idea in everything from Star Trek to Space Balls. The ultimate displacement, if you will, but this time deliberately, purposefully, to seek out new life, etc. How does diaspora shape fiction? What is the state of Israeli SFF compared to Jewish SFF in the US?

The Meaning of Science Fiction and the Meaning of "Meaning"	Talk	8/19/18 3:00 PM	8/19/18 4:00 PM	212C	Public	Yes
SF editors, writers, and fans have spent so much time proposing and dismissing definitions of "science fiction" that the exercise has become tedious. Nevertheless, something new can be said. Instead of beginning with SF and then asking "What is it (how is it to be defined)?", begin with the question "What is a definition?" and then apply possible answers to SF. In short, a survey of different theories of "definition" as found in linguistics and philosophy -- a survey which should appeal to anyone with broad interests in lexicography or philosophical essences -- and then relate those theories to possible definitions of SF.

The Coming Plague	Panel	8/19/18 5:00 PM	8/19/18 6:00 PM	210C	Public	Yes
Plague is a term that applies both to a specific disease, and to almost any epidemic. We have seen multiple diseases run rampant in recent years, ranging from SARS to H1N1 Influenza to Ebola to Zika. What other threats are out there? What can we do about them? Is there a way to prevent future epidemics?
The Impact of Evolutionary Theory on Nineteenth Century Science Fiction	Panel	8/19/18 5:00 PM	8/19/18 6:00 PM	210A	Public	Yes
A popular argument is that modern science fiction emerged as a consequence of the rise of modern science and the secular theory of progress, and rapid changes in human life brought about by technology and industry. But was evolutionary theory of equal, if not more importance, in triggering the development of modern science fiction in the nineteenth century? Was it only after Darwin and other key nineteenth century evolutionary writers that modern science fiction really blossomed? What important and essential themes and ways of thinking did evolution contribute into the creation of modern science fiction?
The Working Class in Science Fiction	Panel	8/19/18 5:00 PM	8/19/18 6:00 PM	210F	Public	Yes
Labor unions are an important part of the everyday life for millions of American workers, yet labor unions seem to be largely absent from our science fictional narratives, as compared to the presence of corporate businesses. This panel will explore whether there's an underlying assumption in science fiction that workers will not organize themselves, or whether there are alternative social models that are being explored. In the process, panelists will attempt to identify and analyze a very small but diverse body of SF works that do include images of unions, in ways that range from the symptomatic to the radically suggestive.
Why Do Writers Kill Characters?	Panel	8/19/18 5:00 PM	8/19/18 6:00 PM	210DH	Public	Yes
Why does a writer kill off a character? Does it inspire a hero to action? Does it make the narrative more poignant? Does the lack of death demean the value of the protagonist's actions? Does it make a difference if it's a main character or a supporting character?

Economics of Terraforming SF sometimes envisages terraforming as a very slow process – in which case, what would the economics of such a (really) long-term investment look like? In other SF we have terraforming being done at much faster rates – would that only make it more profitable, or might there be drawbacks to fast-track terraforming for the corporation or society doing it? In this talk we'll explore the economic and financial implications of different kinds of terraforming and compare with how we see terraforming portrayed in SF.	Talk	8/20/18 10:00 AM	8/20/18 11:00 AM	210DH	Public	Yes

Science Fiction and Futures Studies Since the time of Verne and Wells, science fiction has had a profound impact on our thinking about the future. Yet over the last century, professional futures studies has also evolved a relatively independent and rich variety of methods and theories for understanding the future. Wells and Stapledon, among others, synthesized both approaches to the future; Wells, in fact, is often referred to as the "father" of both modern science fiction and modern futures studies. What can each learn from the other? And what accounts for the contemporary divergence of science fiction and futures studies?	Panel	8/20/18 10:00 AM	8/20/18 11:00 AM	210E	Public	Yes

Sci-Fi and Patents	Panel	8/20/18 11:00 AM	8/20/18 12:00 PM	210DH	Public	Yes
Could Dr. McCoy's Tricorder have been patented by Gene Roddenberry when it appeared in Star Trek? Should a sci-fi author apply for a patent for an item they described, but made by somebody else later? Can an invention described in a sci-fi book keep you from patenting something? What are the panelists' favorite inventions in sci-fi/fantasy that have or haven't been patented in the real world? What has been patented, but only exists in sci-fi? What patented inventions first appeared in sci-fi? How would a patent system work in the Star Trek world, after a patent is granted? Would Data and other AIs own their inventions? Since there is no money (and no monetary damages) in Star Trek (except for latinum, I guess) what kind of remedies are available for patent infringement in the post-scarcity, Star Trek world? Assuming there is a Federation-wide patent system, how do they harmonize time across planets to decide who filed first? Do they look at stardates? If you invent time travel, can you patent it? If so, when?
Stop The Bleed	Workshop	8/20/18 11:00 AM	8/20/18 12:00 PM	210A	Public	Yes
Today we live in a world where terrorism, the actions of unstable people, and the dangerous impulses of friends and relatives are very real and becoming increasingly more frequent. Massive bleeding from any cause, but particularly from an active shooter or explosive event where a response is delayed can result in death. Similar to how the general public learns and performs CPR, the public must learn proper bleeding control techniques, including how to use their hands, dressings, and tourniquets. Victims can quickly die from uncontrolled bleeding, within five to 10 minutes. However, anyone at the scene can act as immediate responder and save lives if they know what to do

Something Wiki This Way Comes	Panel	8/20/18 12:00 PM	8/20/18 1:00 PM	210B	Public	Yes
Many formal archives began as a single fan's collection, which was passed to a library. That library took on the responsibility of collecting, curating and caring for the archive. With modern technology, curating an online collection can be crowd-sourced, but still often begins as a single fan's labor of love. Wikis, databases, Pinterest are all ways of collecting and sharing a body of knowledge. Why do we love gathering all that information, and what mediums are best for curating and sharing it? If you're part of a fandom, what are the best practices for starting your own virtual collection?
