"A MAGI-ZINE"

Editorial Context

ello, here we are again, a little later than we'd hoped for but certainly none the worse for wear.

We have more pre-supporters (over 900) and our bidzine now has a lot more pages. We also have quite a selection of locs from interested and interesting pre-supporters filling some of those pages.

It must be something in this Orlando air, I tell you, not only has our pre-supporting list and our bidzine grown, but Orlando itself is sprouting all sorts of new and interesting growths. The expansion of the Orange County Civic Center moves onward and both Disney and Universal Studios are building new editions to their respective kingdoms.

Disney is building an incredible hotel/resort complex on their property and, just yesterday, I got a look at the Universal Studios complex accross I4 from, and near the northern end of, International Drive (the Peabody hotel is near the south end of the Drive). Several sound stages have already been erected.

Anyway, hope you like this latest edition of TOHO. The cover, by the way, is based on a photograph of our primary hotel choice, the Orlando Peabody Hotel (if you look really close you might be able to make out the duck emblem on the left side). As you may notice, we took a little bit of artistic license with the setting.

The interior of this edition is not much changed in format but you'll find 16 pages instead of 4 with a proportional increase in text and illos. (And an order of magnitude increase in locs!)

Surprisingly, this issue didn't take much longer than the first two put together once the work got started - it was the getting started that took so long. (A little matter of going back to college and running afoul of a thing called "Elementary French." Hard work and a bribe to the instructor in the form of homemade baklava garnered a "B," however, and ended that as an excuse to delay further.)

So, without further delay, enjoy the issue! (And don't forget to write!)

ORLANDO IN '92 CAMPAIGN UPDATE by Thomas Veal

Despite the fact that WorldCon races are starting to look more and more like Presidential campaigns, we still have no Gallup Poll to tell fandom what it's really thinking. Likewise absent are primaries, caucuses and media commentators. So the only way to gauge the progress of our bid to date is to look at what we've done to publicize it and how fandom has responded.

Let's start the story just after the copy deadline for TOHO #1. As that issue went to press, we had somewhat under 300 Orlando pre-supporters. By the time you receive this issue the tally will have topped 900. We will also have sold roughly 400 MagiCon T-shirts. Both figures are records for this stage of a WorldCon bid. In fact, they are pretty close to the final results for the successful 1989 and 1990 bids and well ahead of either 1991 bid. As for 1992, we leave it to the opposition to provide comparative statistics.

In terms of geographical dispersion, our largest block of pre-supporters is in Florida, and we are well represented elsewhere in the South, but our strongest states after Florida are non-southern: California, Illinois, Massachusetts and New York. In other words, as the pundits would aver, Orlando is a national, not a regional, contender.

This support did not, needless to say, rise spontaneously from the earth. Spreading the word has required a lot of work by both the MagiCon Committee and helpful friends. Our bid parties at Conspiracy and Cactuscon were huge successes. In Brighton, we gained 145 pre-supporters and sold 58 T-shirts, even though hotel problems made it necessary to hold a closed-door bidding party. In Phoenix, where the difficulties were less, the totals were 184 pre-supports and 114 (!) T-shirts - with reasonably impartial observers agreeing that Orlando threw the biggest and best parties of the con.

WorldCons and NASFICs are unique campaigning opportunities, but we have also put in appearances at as many regional and local cons as time, money and the need for occasional respites have permitted. We have thrown MagiCon parties recently at Armadillocon, Necronomicon, Windycon, Tropicon, NOSF3, Boskone, CapriCon, Lunacon, Norwescon, Magnum Opus Con and Balticon. In the aggregate, these have registered 300 or so new pre-supporters.

Plenty more bid parties are coming up. Look for us at - among other places - Disclave, DeepSouthCon, Midwestcon and Westercon, as well as at our spectacular, gargantuan, no-holds-barred, all-the-Florida-sunshine-you-can-carry-away Nolacon festival. New ideas (gimmicks, if you like) also proliferate. If you haven't visited an Orlando party lately, stop by to feed Audrey, examine our collection of "MagiCon potions," and ~~chuckle at~~ admire the concom's spiffy panama hats. Of course we still have door prize drawings for pre-supporters, our famous MagiCon punch, all the latest information on facilities, attractions, etc., and lots of youth, enthusiasm and Florida hospitality.

Finally, Orlando in '92 has gained favorable notice throughout fandom. Jane's Fighting Smofs*, which specializes in following SF con bidding, summarized thus:

"Washington's problems have also mounted as Orlando's competing 1992 bid has gotten out and about on the convention circuit. With more than a half dozen fans who can travel periodically, Orlando has been making the scene at regional conventions around the country where its less-well-known group needs the exposure. The Floridians (well, most of them are Floridians) showed up in force at Washington's own Disclave this May [1987] and made a good impression. Some smoffish handicappers, who saw Washington ahead last winter [1986], now think that the race is a toss-up, and that the next year of bidding will determine whether Orlando becomes the odds-on favorite. Of course, DC can always wait

This assessment was written before Conspiracy, Cactuscon and the subsequent explosion of support for Orlando. You may judge for yourself how "smoffish handicappers" should read such portents. As for the suggested opposition tactic, that won't work either: Orlando, a comfortable 50 miles inland has historically suffered less from hurricanes than coastal Washington, D.C.

* Jane's Fighting Smofs is available from Scott and Jane Dennis, 347 West Second St., Paris, KY 40361; published more or less quarterly; $10 for five issues; entertaining and informative (unsolicited plug).

BILL WILSON
by Ray Herz

Bill Wilson, 28, an associate member from Hollywood, Florida, started going to conventions in the mid-1970s with local one-day cons. He started reading SF at the age of 18 and, over the subsequent five years, has consumed a great number of short stories. Ellison was among his early favorites, while, today, his favorites include Arthur C. Clarke and Orson Scott Card.

He was elected chairman of the South Florida Science Fiction Society for 1987 and has worked both registration and compiled trivia questions for their annual December convention, Tropicon. He has attended over 30 conventions, performing a wide variety of tasks.

He has an AA in astronomy and worked for six years at the Buehler Planetarium. He received a BA in meteorology from Florida State University in Tallahassee and recently completed courses for certification as a microcomputer specialist from the University of Miami. He is currently interning as a meteorologist at a Miami television station.

Favorite quote (in Monty Pythonish sotto voce): "Fandom has been very, very good to me!"

MY PARAGRAPH by Edie Stern

Greetings, let me tell you about myself. I started reading science fiction in early childhood, became a child prodigy, earned several degrees in mathematics, matured into a "well rounded" adult with a challenging career, a loving family and an uncontrollable tendency toward writing silly paragraphs. (Hey - somebody edit this!)

Reading all the library books with Bohr atoms on the spine led to a lifelong love of the field. I was lucky enough to find fandom at last (through the fanzine and etc. column, The Clubhouse, in Amazing. One thing led to another.

I've been attending science fiction conventions for 15 years, and working them for about six. I've worked operations or programming on five WorldCons and NASFICS, as well as various committee positions on local conventions.

I am active in the local science fiction club, the South Florida Science Fiction Society, run (with my husband) the literature discussion group, and run the filksinging group. I am chairing Tropicon VII (1988).

My hobbies include anthropology, volleyball, folk music, tropical fruit trees, writing 501 (c) (3) applications and making rude comments. Hi, pleased to meet you.

I NEVER DID TRUST THAT VOMITABLE CRETIN...

FRANK DOWLER

based on an interview by William Ivey

Aside from being a MagiCon committee member, Frank is the owner of Orlando's oldest and largest (one of the largest in the country, by all accounts) SF shop, Enterprise 1701, from which he and his staff purvey books, games, movie items and novelties. His first WorldCon was SunCon in '77 but his interest in SF merchandise goes back a year earlier:

"It was actually at a Star Trek convention in Orlando in '76 that I realized that people actually sold this stuff on a regular basis. I ran into dealers. I was going 'Oh my God, they sell this merchandise!' And it was sort of fascinating."

"That was basically it, I walk in there and see all these dealers and see this massive volume of stuff - even at that time - I didn't realize there was that much stuff on the market. Within a short period of time I was working for one of the dealers who planned to open up a store."

Frank worked in the store for about a month before becoming a partner and in early '79 he bought the original dealer out. Since starting out, the store has moved around a bit.

"We started in Longwood [FL]. We had a store for six months in Longwood, realized it was going nowhere - the area was too far out at the time - and we moved to Mills [Ave., Orlando] in January-February '77, I guess, and it stayed there for five years. Course Star Wars came out and the Science Fiction market went crazy later that year. We got into gaming, too; those were the two things that made the store finally go."

Since then the store moved again, first around the corner where there was more space but less parking, and then to it's present location down the street from the Orlando Naval Training Center (which supplies a steady flow of customers).

Recently, Frank has gotten involved in a project to set up an SF art display at the Orlando Science Center (see blurb elsewhere in this ish). When asked how this idea came about he recounted the

THE MAGICON, ORLANDO IN '92 BID
NOW HAS 923+ PRE-SUPPORTERS!

And, to quote a certain pair of wine cooler salesmen:
"We thank you for your support!"

A comment about our new numbering system: If you were on the pre-supporter's list in TOHO #1 and you've noticed that this list gives you a different number, don't panic. We've switched data base systems and took the opportunity to modify the membership numbering a little bit. The new numbers better reflect the chronological order in which pre-supports were received. Better living through data manipulation.

"World Fantasy Con in '85. Ingrid [Nielson], Cindy [Haight] and I went out to dinner with Don Maltz. At the time, he was teaching art classes in college over in the St. Petersburg area, and I said, "Has somebody ever done a, just a, you know, a general public science fiction and fantasy art show?" He wasn't familiar with anybody that had done it and I said, "Well, maybe it ought to be done."

Frank didn't get an enthusiastic response to the idea from the art centers, but last year, while working with the Science Center on the Far Side of Science exhibit - doing in-store promotions for the Far Side, he mentioned the idea to them. They said "That sounds great," and in December they came back and wanted to discuss filling two open months this summer with it.

Bagels and LOCs

This time around we actually have some fan mail. Please note that a lot of these letters were received around November of 1987 and we apologize for the delay in response (if you saw my house, you'd understand).

Note: If you want me to print your address so that people can write to you or visit you at 3:00 a.m. mention that in your letter. Otherwise, I'll just print your state or province and country if other than the U.S.A.

Dear William,

Let me start by attempting to clear up the confusion which always seems to arise about my name. It is not, has never been, and, if I can manage it, will never be "Ben R. Schilling." I am "Ben Schilling." Please remove the offending initial.

I presupposed your bid for the reason that I presuppose other bids, I try to presuppose all the WorldCon bids. I figure that unless you fold instantly, I should be able to get enough partying to cover the presuppose fee between now and the voting, no matter how it works out in the end. I am very much undecided as to which bid to vote for at the present time. I am looking forward to obtaining more information about all bids to enable me to make an informed decision.

Best regards,
Ben Schilling
(Michigan)

Our efficient data processing department will make every attempt to correct your name in our lists, so rest easy on that point (if you actually saw our DP dept. you might choose to rest uneasy). As far as your decision goes, we'll try out best to keep you informed and ~~try~~ sway your vote.

Dear Mr. Ivey:

Allan Dean Burrows? Well! Not that I'd mind having an income like his... (Actually, the "D" stands for David; I figure just the initials are enough to distinguish me from any other Allan Burrowses lurking out there.) I'm glad you wrote me when you did. There's something I wanted to consult with you about.

No doubt you have heard, (no doubt at all in fact), about Florida's new gun laws, (or, perhaps more appropriately, lack thereof). Word has certainly reached Toronto about them. This rather lessens my enthusiasm for a worldcon in your state; walking about among "honest citizens" carrying rods who only need to decide I'm suspicious looking to pull on me does not sound like a congenial setting for a con, especially if one of these "honest citizens" should visit the con and decide that it's a communist plot or some such nonsense. I am seriously considering withdrawing my support for your bid because of the gun laws.

Well, as I say, I'm glad you wrote me and gave your address so that I could write to you about my concerns. I felt that I owe you the opportunity to convince me that I'm worrying over nothing before I actually decide to withdraw my support. (I suppose I should mention that I have a local reputation for being paranoid.) And, by the way, while I'm writing, where exactly is your proposed site? I heard "Orlando" and thinking, "Goshwow, that's in the general vicinity of the Kennedy Space Center!" (and seeing the presuppose fee was reasonable), jumped on the bandwagon without pausing to wonder about such minor matters.

At any rate, thank you for the bidzine and your attention and such like and I hope to hear from you soon.

All due regards,
Allan D. Burrows
(Ontario, Canada)

Yes, we heard about the new gun law (endlessly, it seemed). There is a lot of misinformation floating about concerning just what happened. Prior to the new law each county set up their own rules about concealed weapons permits. Some frankly refused to issue permits no matter what, some would issue permits with almost no fuss. Worse, permits from one county weren't much good in another, this made it tough for people with a legitimate need to carry a gun (couriers, for instance) to travel from county to county.

The new law puts the control over permits in the hands of the state. The state law is more liberal than some counties' laws and stricter than others'. Even as I write this there are moves afoot to make the state permit rules stricter.

Our proposed site is at the Orlando end of the Bee-Line Expressway which gives you an easy route to the KSC area with a travel time of an hour or less. (We will likely have some kind of tour arrangements set up, but that's for the future.)

Finally, we'll see what we can do about your middle name, 'kay?

Dear William,

So you want to know what made me presupport MagiCon? Well, that's hard. I mean, there are some reasons against it. As I live in Europe it won't be cheap.

When I decided to presupport I wasn't sure of having enough money in 1992 and even not of having enough for the rest of Conspiracy '87. So, after paying the cabdriver with my last money, I walked up the stairs into my room, made some calculations and the outcome was: unless the 3rd world war broke out, I could go.

But, you must ask yourself, what made me do it? The answer to that consists of several parts:

- 1) It was my first worldcon and I was interested in everything that happened, including bids and room parties.
- 2) Just before joining the MagiCon room party I talked with some American friends about American worldcons, a conversation that made me dying to attend one.
- 3) This conversation made me thirsty and guess where I found something to drink?
- 4) While I was drinking I read about MagiCon, the Americans I mentioned convinced me that it was going to be a great con.
- 5) They presupported MagiCon.

As you can see, a classic case of force majeure.

Yours truly,

Erwin Blonk,

Werkhovenstraat 115,

2546 VD Den Haag, Nederland

All I can say is thank you, Erwin, and I hope to see you in '92 (we'll be sure to postpone WW III so as not to strain your bank account). In a followup letter, Mr. Blonk says he'd like to correspond with S.F. fans (especially Lee, of Lubbock, TX, who was with a group of Americans and Australians at Conspiracy). Write in English or Dutch if you expect him to read it.

Dear MagiConMen:

Thanks very much for the first edition of Toho. It's good to know that you are producing a bidzine; Noreascon 3's The Mad 3 Party is showing everyone how it's done, and I feel it's a valuable tool to let your prospective voters see just what you have in mind for your bid. It also gives us something material for our $5 pre-sup, and the advertising it does for the bid doesn't hurt, either. It may also help you win the bid, as it shows something about your level of organization [I like this guy!-ed.] Washington may have been first off the mark, but your level of organization is making this a real race, and it's just less than two years until we vote on '92 in Boston.

Mary Hanson-Roberts' wizard and cauldron is a marvellous piece of art, and with the proper attention by the t-shirt printer, it makes a pretty spiffy T-shirt. Bought ours at Smofcon just this past weekend from Joe Siclari and Becky Thomson. A pleasure to meet you both at Smofcon, and we'd like to help with the bid if we can.

I should let you know that our names are misspelled in the pre-supporters' list. It's Penney, just like the department store [are you listening, DP department?-ed].

Not a long letter, but it is a start. I don't know when Toho 2 is due [even as we speak-ed], but please do keep them coming.

Yours,
Lloyd Penney
(Ontario, Canada)

It's letters like this that make editing fun!

Never met a worldcon bid that couldn't use help - enclosed is a check for what seems to be rapidly becoming the real presupporting membership cost.

Please let me know if I can do anything to help [you did, you did!-ed].

Thanx,
Rembert N. Parker
P.S. - cash it before I come to my senses!

(Illinois)

We hear and obey!

Dear Magicon Commems,

You asked for a LOC, so here it is. You also asked for reasons why people are pre-supporting Magicon. As if you didn't already know!

I go to all the major cons in Britain and a few of the smaller ones too. My only Worldcon, so far, has been Conspiracy in '87, although I'm hoping to get to New Orleans this year. The reason I pre-supported Magicon is because it's in Orlando.

Orlando means Disneyworld and Epcot!
Orlando means fantastic weather!
Orlando means access to Canaveral!
Orlando is within easy reach of the best fun-type tourist attractions in the world!

Orlando means interesting pubs, sorry, bars (bleedin' foreigners!) and interesting people!

Orlando has an international airport!

Orlando has nice hotels with good cheap food and cheap rates! Orlando is one of the best places I've ever visited - and I've been around! Even the police are friendly!

Bad points? Orlando means no sidewalks [that seems to be changing-ed]. Everyone drives. Whatever happened to Pedestrians' Rights? Orlando also means tourists, but that isn't necessarily a bad point.

Okay, so now you know... My reasons for presupporting had nothing to do with S.F.

Best wishes anyway, see you all in '92!

Salutations,
Ray Thompson
(Tyne & Wear, U.K.)

See you in '92, and in New Orleans in '88, we hope.

GO AHEAD, SEND US YOUR LOCS! JUST SEE IF WE CARE!

We do care, and we'll print as many as we can in each issue. Tell us about yourself and your thoughts on our bid. Don't delay, fire up the ol' typer/word processor/pencil and hurl one our way!

Just send your LOC to:

MagiCon
Attn: BIDZINE EDITOR

Orlando, FL 32862-1992

ADVERTISE YOUR CON HERE

That's right, you can advertise your next convention right here in our MagiCon bidzine: The Tohopekaliga, Okefenokee and Okeechobee Gazette.

We will be accepting convention advertising for future editions starting immediately. Each paid ad gets one full page all to itself, and you will be reaching an audience that you know is interested in con going.

Rates will be published in future editions of TOHO, or you can write to the address below for a rate card and mechanical information. Just to get you started, however, the ideal size for your ad submission is 25% oversized (we shoot most pages down to 80% of original) with the same aspect ratio as one of the pages in this issue. Camera ready artwork is requested (if we can resize it on a photocopier we won't charge extra, but if the art has a lot of fine detail or large black areas we'd have to go to a PMT to resize it and we do charge extra for those).

Deadlines: We'd appreciate at least six months or more lead time to make sure your ad is run prior to the date of your convention. Since the publishing schedule of TOHO is a little irregular at this time, please give us a date beyond which you don't want the ad to run (for instance, a good cut-off date for a July '89 con might be March '89). If we miss the cut-off date we'll refund any money you've paid and cancel the ad. Unless you tell us otherwise, your ad will be placed in the next issue of TOHO following the receipt of your ad copy.
