L01	fanzine	Slant #3	Published by Walt Willis in collaboration with James White as Art Editor. Spring 1950, 26 pages. Slant was the first fanzine Walt produced; today issues are legendary and rare. Handset type, printed (not mimeographed) until Slant #7, which was produced after Walt's printing press broke. Donated by Joe Siclari.	£25
L02	fanzine	Slant #4	Published by Walt Willis in collaboration with James White as Art Editor. Fall 1950, 38 pages. James White's first published words appeared in Slant 4 when, in an article critical of E.E. Smith, he inserted "[These opinions of the great Smith are not those of the typesetter, J. White]." Donated by Joe Siclari.	£25
L03	fanzine	Slant #5	Published by Walt Willis in collaboration with James White as Art Editor. Spring 1951, 45 pages. Donated by Joe Siclari.	£25

L07	fanzine	Hyphen #11	Walt Willis and Chuck Harris, editors. Noted for the "First Word on Page 28," which actually was "Harry", but refers to what he was saying in the phrase "Harry Turner says  to Mike Wallace...". The page 28 was that of Hyphen #11, in the letter column; the word from which we are protecting the Post Office's tender sensibilities was "a rather vulgar synonym for testicles". ("Balls") November 1954. 34 pages. Donated by Joe Siclari	£12
L08	fanzine	Hyphen #13	Walt Willis and Chuck Harris, editors. March 1955. 42 pages. Donated by Joe Siclari	£12
L09	fanzine	Hyphen #22	Walt Willis and Chuck Harris, editors. March 1960. 24 pages. Donated by Joe Siclari	£12
L10	fanzine	Hyphen #25	Walt Willis and Ian McAulay, editors. November 1960. 26 pages. Donated by Joe Siclari	£12
