- 4.30 p.m. (approx.) End of Convention.

N.B. Although the convention programme ends at 4.30 on the Monday afternoon, bar facilities should be maintained (with just a short break from 5 till 5.30) until 10.30 p.m. for those who wish to stick around. You're welcome!

Please remember that throughout the convention there will be an alternative programme running in the Fan Room (on the floor above "PL"), although the seats will be limited in number. If any of the events on the main programme are not to your liking, please look in on the Fan Room.

Also, please bear in mind that hotel lifts tend to become congested during conventions, so when making your way from Floor "PL" to the Book Room or the Fan Room on the floor immediately above please use the stairs, which are conveniently situated and will be signposted.

The Art Show will be situated in sections "D" and "E" of the Brigantes Suite (i.e. immediately adjacent to the main Con Hall). It couldn't be more convenient, so please visit it!

The Yorcon Committee wishes to dedicate this convention to the memory of J. Michael Rosenblum, who died in Leeds on the 28th June 1978. Mike had been active in fandom for over forty years -- indeed, he was one of the prime organizers of the very first British SF convention, held in Leeds in 1937. During World War II, Mike's fanzine Futurian War Digest was at the very centre of British fan activity: from his home in Leeds, he virtually held fandom together during those difficult years.

During the 1950s Mike formed the Leeds SF Association and published the excellent fanzine, New Futurian. He became known as Britain's most assiduous collector of SF books and magazines: his library is undoubtedly the most magnificent private collection in the country.

Very sadly, Mike died just before his retirement from full-time work. He had been looking forward to re-dedicating his energies to SF book-collecting and to fandom. In particular, he had been looking forward to Yorcon, the first major SF convention to be held in his home city since 1937. A generous man, Mike will be sorely missed. He leaves a widow, Betty, a son, Howard, and a daughter and son-in-law, Diane and Peter Barrow. We wish to offer them all our condolences and to welcome them very warmly to Yorcon.

----- The YORCON Committee.
