Steffans Ask to Host Corflu 30!

Renowned fans Dan and Lynn Steffan have expressed the desire to host the 2013 Corflu, 30th in the series. The con, which would be held in the Portland, OR, area, would be known as Corflu Triple X.

The association between the popular fan couple and Corflu goes back to its earliest years. Dan and Lynn were prominent member of the committee that staged the third Corflu in Tyson Corners, VA.

Says Dan of his adopted hometown: "Portland will be an excellent site for Corflu. There are more bookstores, brew pubs, tattoo parlors, and strip clubs in Portland, per capita, than anywhere else in the country. We have no sales tax, beer, no pump gas stations, beer, a mostly free train/trolley system that will allow attendees to fully explore the city without a car, beer, and a food cart revolution that has recently been voted 'the best street food in the world.'

And the restaurants ain't half bad, either.
Oh, and beer."

Dan notes that, at this early date, all the details are yet to be determined. He and Lynn plan to be ready with a detailed presentation at the Corflu Glitter banquet.

Corflu does not utilize a bidding system to choose future sites for the annual event. When more than one group of fans expresses the desire to host Corflu in a given year, the groups work out things in private, with a good fan-nish spirit.

The Corflu Glitter Countdown

The Corflu Glitter Countdown continues and so do the reminders. This time, it's an alert to those considering entering the baseball hitting contest in a replica of a famous major league stadium. This is a very popular facility and we need a prime Sunday slot.

Realistically, we can't approach the site until we have eight wannabe sluggers. The sooner we have eight, the more likely this will actually happen.

Andy Hooper and Rich Coad have already signed up for Home Run Beanie. If you want to take part, write to me

Q&A: Who Can Participate in Corflu?

Corflu Glitter is an open convention that will not turn away any fan that pays the membership fee. It appeals most strongly to those who like to write, draw, post and publish within the context of Fandom, but the welcome mat is out for fans who decide to come check out this marvelous fannish phenomenon.

We received a question concerning the basis of participation for fans that aren't able to come to Las Vegas for the Trufans' World Reunion next April.

All interested fans are invited to watch the program and talk to fans at the con in the Virtual Consuite and are also invited to compete in the "at home" division of the Corflu Glitter Trivia Challenge. The same holds true for any other Corflu activities, like voting in the Fan Activity Achievement Awards. If you aren't at the con, you don't have to pay, though we are grateful to those who buy supporting memberships, such as Kim Huett.

This seems like a good place to reiterate that a Corflu membership includes access to the bountiful food and drink in the con suites (including unlimited beer and soft drinks), the Sunday banquet, discounts on room accommodations, the program booklet and the Sightseeing and Restaurant Guide.

That's All for Now

So ends the 35th issue of Glitter in as many weeks. News permitting, #36 will be here next Friday. Meanwhile, keep fanning! — Arnie Katz
