About Montréal

America's largest French-speaking, and Canada's second largest city, Montréal is less than an hour's drive from the U.S. border and is easily accessible whether you prefer to drive, fly in or take the train to come to the convention.

Montréal has everything needed for visiting: from museums and other tourist attractions to festivals and events you will be sure to enjoy, not to mention a huge number of restaurants of all types.

Our Facilities

Situated in the heart of downtown Montréal, the Palais des congrès is just north of Old Montréal, and a block away from Montréal's Chinatown. It is connected directly to Montréal's metro system and the underground city, giving you easy access to tourist attractions, restaurants.

With several hotels and over 500 nearby restaurants, everyone should find accommodations and meals to suit their needs and budget.

The Convention

Anticipation will be a bilingual convention where both francophone and anglophone fans can find things to do. Novels, short stories, films, and BD (bandes dessinées); a lot of SF has been created in French since the days of Jules Verne. Come and discover it!

In addition to that, Anticipation will be the 2009 Convention—the Canadian National Convention—and will present fans from all over with an opportunity to discover Canadian SF in both English and French.

Taral Wayne

Taral says of himself: "I was drawing almost before TV's were common. I was drawing furry characters before there was such a fandom. I might have been the first to use a computer to cut mimeograph stencils.

What I have done includes some magazine and book illustration, a short and obscure career in b/w comics, private commissions, dealer at cons, and too many years as an active science fiction fan to care to number."

Our Master of Ceremonies is an award-winning, best-selling science fiction author and editor. Her work has won several awards, including three Prix Aurora Awards.
