Keeping In Touch

We are from the country next door and many of you are finding out that it takes more pennies to mail your letters to us, even though we share the same continent. You will not be surprised to learn that it costs even more for us to write to you.

At the moment, we have two mail addresses in North America. The P.O. Box 2430, Winnipeg MB Canada, R3C 4A7 is checked each week day. The PO box 7111, Fargo, ND, 58109, USA is also checked daily. However, what is found within the box is shipped up to Canada roughly once a month. Its main function is to provide an address in case of a postal strike in Canada. Replies are sent as fast as we can find the answers or fill the paperwork.

If you wish to call, try out answering machine at (204) 942-9494. Our reply will probably be by mail as we try to keep records of everything.

If you have a computer, we suggest either J.MANSFIELD on Genie or Linda Ross-Mansfield 70324,2252 on Compuserve. On Genie Canadian has its own category, SFRTS, Cat 25, Topic 11. Both are monitored on a regular basis. Please note that the Compuserve number has been changed. After great service to us, Albert's boss has posted him to Victoria, BC. ☸

Announcement for Jewish Members of Canadian

In 1994, the important holy day Rosh Hashanah occurs during the end of Canadian.

To ensure that observant Jewish members are accommodated, there are several possibilities:

a) we can work on locating a rabbi who can perform the services during the con

b) we can locate Orthodox families who would be willing to open their homes to con members during Rosh

Hashanah so members can walk to a synagogue and be in a family atmosphere.

c) your suggestion?

Please contact us if attending the con during Rosh Hashanah is a concern for you. Once we have an idea of the number of people involved, and of their needs, we will then be able to act.

Contact:

Victor Schwartzman, Head, Administration Division. ☸

George Barr Artist Guest of Honour

by Steve Fahnstalk

Many people have known George longer than I: John and Bjo Trimble, Tim Kirk, Alicia Austin, Jim Bearcloud, for example... but I can say with confidence that nobody likes him a whole lot more than I do. And there are probably few people in or out of fandom who dislike him.

That's one of George's many talents, I think being a genuinely likable person. Some would even say loveable, I'm not going to go that far; after all, I've got this macho image to uphold. No, I'm not gonna go that far, as the Duke would say... The hell I'm not! Yep, he is sort of loveable, that fella over there in the corner grinning and blushing and shuffling his feet. And you want to know why? Because he is a nice guy, for one.

Great Ghu, what a hackneyed phrase: "nice guy". But in George's case, it's true. Oh, he's not necessarily an easy guy to get to know... he is not exactly shy, but he's very private. But once you get to know him, you will find you have a friend for life. I can think of very few people of whom I can say that.

But what about George Barr the bon vivant, man about town, idol (as Tom Lehrer was wont to say about himself) of gibbering millions from Madagascar? You want to know about his life, his art and his aspirations, don't you?

Well, George has drawn and painted himself into some sort of notoriety. The details are best left to your imagination, but if you really want to know, you'll find more in such reference works as The Encyclopedia of Science Fiction, The Science Fiction Encyclopedia, The Art of Science Fiction, Upon the Winds of so on.

It gets worse; bear with me. He joined a cult, one of those quasi-religious groups that proselytize at bus stations, airports and high schools the so-called "fandom". He started sending "art" to "fanzines", going to "cons", and joining in clandestine meetings with "fans". Then he sent one of his "pictures" to a "promag" called Fantastic, and they gave him money he used for materials, combining them in sundry ways, and selling the product so that he could buy more paint. He became a "Filthipro".

There. You had to ask, didn't you? And I even left out the juicy bits. Like about when he learned about "music" and "food" and all that civilized decadent stuff. Let's face it, Martha: the man's a budding Sybarite.

Seriously, though, George has been a friend for about twelve years, and in that time, my respect for him has never ceased to grow, both professionally and personally. He is a lover of good things; he's not only an artist, but also a writer and a musician. He collects art (there's almost no bare space on the walls of his San Jose home) and plays the piano and has talents that I don't even know about.

So make him welcome, eh? I don't mean you have to rub his head every time you see him, or invite him to every party, but please... approach him. Talk to him. (what the heck, commission him!)

He's a nice guy. He really is. Try him, you'll like him. ☘

Yesterday (a book devoted entirely to George and his works) and many more. It's a sordid, tawdry story, like so many others, but briefly, it goes like this:

George Barr was born. There is incontrovertible evidence of this. He had parents. Sometime in his formative years, he was exposed to the nefarious influences of Walt Disney, Maxfield Parrish, Aubrey Beardsley, odd and sundry Wyeths, a mustache named Salvador, and many other "pushers" of the "Art". In his childhood, he was given, sold or (more likely, as is with most practitioners of this solitary vice) stole the tools of his awful trade: "paper", "pencils", "ink", and, inevitably, the hard stuff: paint. "Oils", "acrylics", "watercolor", and

Getting to Winnipeg

by Paula Johanson

Some SF writers and fans from western Canada are planning to make the trip to Worldcon in '94 in style. We're going by train.

It's not just the thought of seeing the country without sitting cramped behind the wheel of a car, and it's not just the benefit of arriving without jet lag to cramp our style. The real appeal for travelling by train is the process: slightly old-fashioned and celebrated in mystery stories of great renown. There is time to talk with fellow travellers or gaze out the window, while travelling faster than highway driving or taking the Greyhound. And how many moose or black bears does anyone see from a plane, anyhow?

No moose sightings are guaranteed with the reservation, admittedly, but there are some sightings that can be expected on this trip. An Enthusiast's Guide to Observing Persons Interested in SF Phenomena will be of great use in the identification of sightings.

At the train station in Vancouver, look for a variety of SF club members, readers, and general party animals. Some of their talk is bright and animated, some serious and intent, and their groups cluster and reform. A group from the Island comes equipped with artists' portfolios, a lap-top computer, reams of printed paper and some cases marked "Fragile: this End Up" on two or more sides.

The writers among the train-travelling party can be identified in two ways: the professionals answer "yes" by reflex when asked if they are working on a new story, while the amateur's characteristic comment is "my new project should be finished Real Soon Now." Both carry pens and an aura of confidence. They are distinguished from editors of western Canadian publishing houses by the latter's harried expressions and cases of promotional flyers.

Food services range from sandwiches at a coffee bar to four-star dining room service, for those who want the linen and heavy silver to make an impression on an editor or a new friend.

SF books may even be read at odd moments between conversations and brief stops in Jasper and Edmonton. By that point, it is statistically almost certain that there will be included among the passengers bound for Canadian a singer with a guitar, and someone already decked out in full makeup and costume of one sort or another.

Will arriving at Winnipeg seem almost an anti-climax after travelling across western Canada by train? Not on your life. It's the best lead-in to Canada's first Worldcon in over twenty years. Will there be a similar expedition for people arriving from the East? Will someone organize a migration of the Society for Creative Anachronism? Will Winnipeg residents find themselves flying west to join the train on its journey to the center of Canada? Only the travel agents will know for sure. ☞

Notice to 1997 Worldcon Bidders

Kevin Standlee,
WSFS Division Head

Committees wishing to appear on the site selection ballot for the 1997 World Science Fiction Convention (Worldcon 55), must file with Conadian no later than March 5, 1994. Please note that this is a change from previous practice. An amendment to the Constitution of the World Science Fiction Society (WSFS) ratified at Magicon changed the filing deadline from "the close of the previous Worldcon" to "180 days prior to the official opening of the administering Worldcon." The 1997 Worldcon is the first site selection affected by this new rule.

The WSFS Constitution requires that bids for North American sites for the 1997 Worldcon be from the Central Zone, which is defined as all states and provinces in North America east of "Baja California, New Mexico, Colorado, Wyoming, Montana, and Saskatchewan" and west of "Florida, Georgia, South Carolina, North Carolina, Virginia, West Virginia, Pennsylvania, New York, and Quebec." Yukon and the Northwest Territories are not part of the Central Zone. Sites within 60 miles (97 km) of Winnipeg, the administering convention, are not eligible. Any site outside of North America is eligible.

Filings may be made only by mail or by delivering the appropriate documents (see below) to the Conadian's WSFS Division Chief (Kevin Standlee), or the Site Selection Administrator (Don Cook). Send filings by mail only to Conadian's main address, PO Box 2430, Winnipeg MB R3C 4A7 CANADA or by private service (Federal Express, UPS, etc.) to 321 Portage Avenue, Winnipeg MB R3B 2B9 CANADA. Do not send bid filings to any other address. If the filing is postmarked legibly by a national post office, it will be considered to have been filed as of the time and date of the postmark. If the postmark is made by a private postage meter or other means, the date of the filing will be the date of its actual receipt at the Conadian address. We encourage bidders to file as early so any problems can be resolved easily.

Section 3.5 of the WSFS Constitution specifies the information that bidders must submit in order to appear on the ballot:

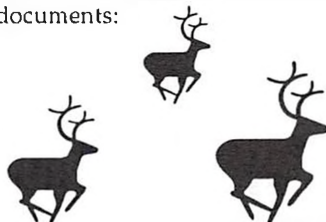

Bids from prospective Committees shall be allowed on the ballot by the current Worldcon Committee only upon presentation of adequate evidence of an agreement with the proposed sites' facilities, such as a conditional contract or letter of agreement. To be eligible for site selection, a bidding committee must state the rules under which the Worldcon Committee will operate, including a specification of the term of office of their chief executive officer or officers and the conditions and procedures for the selection and replacement of such officer or officers. Written copies of these rules must be made available by the bidding committee to any member of WSFS on request.

Conadian will consider a bid to have fulfilled its filing requirements if it submits the following documents:

1. Letter(s) of agreement or similar documents for the prospective convention's principle programming site and principle hotel.
2. Articles of incorporation and bylaws (if incorporated) or constitution, articles of association, or similar document (if unincorporated) of the organization that is responsible for the bid.
3. If any of the above documents are not applicable or unavailable, consult with Conadian's WSFS Division Chief, Kevin Standlee, or the 1997 Site Selection Administrator, Don Cook, concerning acceptable substitutes.

NASFiC Site Selection: There is an amendment pending to the WSFS Constitution which will change the NASFiC site selection procedures. If the amendment is ratified at ConFrancisco and a non-North American site is selected for the 1997 Worldcon, then the 1995 NASFiC, DragonCon, will administer the election to select the site of the 1997 NASFiC. If the amendment is not ratified and a non-North American site is selected for the 1997 Worldcon, then Conadian will administer the election to select the site of the 1997 Worldcon. If the pending amendment is not ratified, rules for potential 1997 NASFiC bidders will be published in a future Conadian Progress Report.

Send questions about bidding procedures to the Conadian main address or to Kevin Standlee at PO Box 95, Sutter CA 95982-0095 USA (CompuServe user id 72377,3623).

We don't think you should!

After all, the home of the "Cradle of Texas Liberty" has convention facilities that make SMOFs drool, enough hotels to hold a couple of Shriners conventions, and more food than a swarm of locusts can consume.

San Antonio in 1997

There's something there for every fan: Texas Fiesta for the theme-park buffs, Sea World for those with a wetter appetite, Natural Bridge Caverns for the spelunker, a world-class zoo for the animal lovers, and the Buckhorn Hall of Horns if you're hunting for something different.

We also got chili...

News from Canada on the GST

The goods and services tax (GST) is a tax paid by consumers on goods and services in Canada. The tax is charged at a rate of seven percent (7%) on most sales of goods and provisions of services.

Recognizing the importance of US and overseas conventions to the Canadian economy, the Canadian Government's Department of Finance issued a press release on December 18, 1990 announcing a non-resident rebate provision to include GST paid in respect to meeting rooms and exhibitions space supplied to non-resident convention and conference organizers. A second press release, issued May 15, broadened the non-resident rebate program to apply to a wide range of expenses incurred by foreign organizers and exhibitors. Expenses will include such items as:

- audio visual
- business equipment
- convention show services
- destination management companies
- electrical services
- exhibit design and display
- floral decorations
- moving services
- newsletter services
- personnel services
- photography

- security
- simultaneous interpretation equipment
- speakers and educational seminars
- specialty advertising and premiums
- telecommunications
- translators and interpreters
- transportation services between venues

Art Show

Like all Art Displays at Science Fiction Conventions, the Art Show is a standing exhibit, which can be visited during the convention by any of its attendees. The year's best Artwork in the fields of Science Fiction, Fantasy, Science, Fandom, etc. is put on display and sale from artists all around the world.

The Canadian Art Show will be an auction-based show, with sales going to either the highest bidder on the bid sheet or by voice during the auction.

We are currently working out the budget for the Art Show and expect to have all fees finalized by Confrancisco. We will do our best to make the problem of Customs easy and expect to have no problem bring in works for the show.

Please write to me for complete rules and forms. These will be available after October 1, 1993.
